WHO WILL MARRY PRINCE OF WALES?

Only a Limited Number of Eligible Princesses From Which a Choice Can be Made

It is the habit of Royalty to mate early, and that is why the matchmakers are already discussing the matrimonial possibilities for the Prince of Wales. That Edward is the most desirable "catch" in the world, even apart from his heirship to the British throne, is a point that has been brought out in the discussion, but his rank removes him from all calculations respecting ladies not of Royal blood. There have been cases of Royal ... princesses being married to ... that princes, as, for example, the Marquis of Lorne and the Duke of ... but while such matches were extremely popular it is not likely that the heir to the British throne would be permitted to wed one of his fair compatriots, since he will be expected to marry for reasons of State rather than for reasons of sentiment. This is not to insinuate that Royal marriages are not the result of affection, for ... often they are true romances, but love must ... merely incidental and while it is not likely that a Royal ... would be thrust into a union absolutely hateful to them, neither would they be permitted to let their fancies rove where it pleased from cottage to castle.

The Czar's Daughter

There are two princesses whose names naturally occur as filling all the conditions necessary for a marriage with the heir to the British throne. One is the Grand Duchess Olga of Russia, the eldest daughter of the Czar, the other is the Princess Victoria Louise of Germany, the only daughter of the Kaiser. The Princess Olga is about the same age as the Prince of Wales and is said to be a very pretty girl, though not such a beauty as ... It is thought that a marriage between this pair would be very gratifying to both the Dowager Empress of Russia and the Queen Mother Alexandra. From a political point of view it is believed that the match would be approved by the present Government, but opposed by the Unionists, who have no great fancy for further Russian alliances. The King and Queen, too, it is hinted by those who are supposed to know, would not be favorably inclined though it is for expected that they would actually oppose anything decided on by the Government. It is only natural, however, that in the matter of this sort the wishes of King George and Queen Mary would have especial weight.

The Kaiser's Only Daughter

As regards the German princess, it is said that as she has been brought up with a family of brothers, who are all supposed to be anti-English, the young people would not likely be congenial. Moreover, there are political objections to still further Germanizing the British Crown. That such a union would do much to cope out the existing relations between the two countries, which are far from being as cordial as might be desired, is claimed by those approaching this question. It is doubtful, however, if these hopes would be realized by a marriage alone, for it is to be borne in mind that the situation with regard to Germany and Britain has developed with the grandson of Queen Victoria, the nephew of King Edward and the cousin of King George on the German throne and of the Kaiser, deep affection for his grandmother. There never has been any question.

A Roumanian Princess

Another charming princess against whom there could be no political objections is the Princess Elizabeth of Roumania. This ... the daughter of the ... ## DANGER PERIOD OF WOMANS' LIFE FROM 45 to 50

Interesting Experience of Two Women—Their Statements Worth Reading.

Whito Oak, Ont.—"At Change of Life when doctors could do no more and I was given up by my friends, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound came to the front and did wonders for me. I had been having female troubles for years, my head troubled me severely at times, I had bearing down pains and backache and I was very anaemic from excessive flowing. I recommend your Compound highly and do all I can to advertise it as a genuine woman's medicine."—Mrs. SYLVESTER MANNING, White Oak, Ontario.

The Case of Mrs. Kirlin.

Circleville, Ohio.—"I can truthfully say that I never had anything do me so much good during Change of Life as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"Before I had taken one half a bottle of it I began to feel better, and I have continued taking it. My health is better than it has been for several years. If all women would take it they would escape untold pain and misery at this time of life."—Mrs. ALICE KIRLIN, 358 W. Mill St., Circleville, Ohio.

The Change of Life is one of the most critical periods of a woman's existence. At such times women may rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

This story has been recall of by the threatened disturbances in Ulster. During one of the early Belfast riots a man who asked for a mob what his religion was. He did not know whether his interrogators were Catholics or Protestants, but he looked at their weapons, their bludgeons, and their firearms, surveyed all carefully, and answered: "Gentlemen, I am of the same opinion as that gentleman there with the big axe."

FAMOUS STAMP COLLECTIONS

Lord Crawford's Was One of the Most Extensive in the World

Stamp dealers in all parts of the world are discussing the sale to a London dealer of the bulk of Lord Crawford's great collection. What he sold was probably one of the finest collections of foreign stamps in the world, and what he retains includes the finest collection of United States stamps, and a collection of British stamps second to that of King George alone. Before the sale Lord Crawford's collection was the finest that the expenditure of unlimited money and the research of half a lifetime ever accumulated, with the possible exception of the collection of Count Philipe la Renotiere, said to be worth about $5,000,000. Lord Crawford's collection of United States stamps, however, was unrivaled, and no matter what else a collector might be willing to spend in the effort, he could not duplicate the collection because of the peculiar circumstances in which some of the unique specimens were obtained.

SETTING THE TABLE ON AN OCEAN LINER

Four Millions Expended in a Single Year on North German Lloyd Vessels

The many cafes aboard modern liners have the atmosphere of the boulevards. The old long, baronial board, presided over by the captain, to which passengers were summoned by bell or trumpet, has given way to separate tables at which one is free to dine, lunch, or sup alone, at any hour. In any seat, at any one of a hundred small tables seating two or more, to join a party at a table seating seven, all surrounded by decorations that rival those of the best restaurants ashore. And as in any first class hotel, the guest is not restricted to a table d'hote menu, and can order from an epicure's bill of fare—but on shipboard all meals are included in the price of the passage. Cafes for those who do not smoke, a new convenience, have the air of such places as Vienna. These are distinct from the open-air verandah cafes with their teakwood tables.

Instead of the salt meats of 20 years ago, both cabin and steerage passengers have fresh meat daily. Twenty-eight thousand pounds of meat and 15,000 liters of beer were consumed by the passengers of a single North German Lloyd liner on one recent voyage, while on the same ship the cost of setting the tables for a single year was $1,000,000.

Ah, it is the expense, then, that deters you? This talk of de luxe accommodation sounds expensive? But you do not need to take these expensive cabins unless you are willing to and can pay for them. All of the other comforts, conveniences, and luxuries are as free to the poorest traveler as to the richest, and not the least interesting fact about ocean travel is that its cost is constantly growing less.

The voyage to England now costs on the best ships about half the rate charged by the Britannia, the first mail steamer to cross the ocean, 70 years ago. One can go first class for three cents a mile; second class for half that, and third class—with better accommodation than the best in the Britannia's day—for about 80 cents a hundred miles, and these rates include meals. Compare them with the standard railroad passenger costs and meals in the dining cars or station eating-houses extra.

MONEY BRINGS IMPORTANCE

Welsh Laborer Finds Himself Suddenly a Millionaire

Price Goodwin Beavan is the name of a farm laborer in Breconshire, Wales, who is acclaimed as the heir to £200,000—one million dollars—left to him by his father, Richard Goodwin, who died in Texas. The farm laborer has employed a solicitor of Llandrinded Wells to devote his time to securing the inheritance, and Price Goodwin Beavan has left the farm at Llwynfilly, exchanging his slouch hat, corduroys and gaiters for a new black suit and hard felt hat. Beavan is now being deluged with hundreds of begging letters for his money, besides which he is asked to contribute to scores of benevolent and church projects.

A new gold camp has been discovered on the National Transcontinental route in the district immediately south of Hurricanaw, a rapidly growing town, 140 miles east of Cochrane, Ontario. This district is in the immediate vicinity of Kionawisik Lake, 45 miles southeast of the town.

The new Grand Trunk hotel, the Chateau Laurier, was opened at Ottawa on Saturday.
