London Times's Comment.

London, Aug. 26.—The signing of Panama Canal bill by President Taft was the signal for editorial comment in most of the principal London newspapers this morning.

The Times says:—"We understand and make full allowance for the exceptional conditions which dominate American politics in a Presidential year, but considerations of that kind, it need hardly be said, cannot be allowed to affect our attitude on a subject of such deep consequence to the interests of our trade and the trade of the whole Empire.

"Should the text of the law bear out, upon examination, the view that it does in fact gravely violate our clear rights in the matter of first-rate importance, we shall, of course, renew the representations to the Government at Washington, and should these unhappily fail to bring about a satisfactory settlement we shall appeal to the Arbitration Treaty of 1908, and request that the whole controversy, and the proper construction, scope, and bearing of the Canal Treaty, be referred to The Hague for decision.

"Suggestions have been freely made in certain quarters that the United States is not likely to entertain a request of that kind. That, as we have said before, is a blow the whole principle of arbitration which we absolutely refuse to contemplate, unless and until it is delivered.

"No Government or no nation has more loudly preached resort to arbitration than the Government and people of the United States. It is hardly credible after so preaching it to others they should cynically decline to adopt it where it concerns themselves.

"A refusal of this kind would inevitably create a certain indisposition on the part of all self-respecting nations to enter into contractual arrangements with a State which reserved to itself the exclusive right of interpreting the measure of its own obligations."

Treatment of Ivy Poisoning.

(From the 'Youth's Companion.')

Poisoning the skin by poison ivy (Rhus toxicodendron) is frequent in the summer and the early autumn. Some fortunate persons are not susceptible, but most are poisoned if they came in direct contact with the plant.

The disorder causes discomfort always, and sometimes suffering. It shows itself within a few hours, with redness, heat and irritation of the skin, swelling and the formation of small vesicles. These vesicles may occur in great numbers. Often many of them coalesce to form blisters, and they also break and exude a sticky yellowish serum. It is this fluid that by its escape spreads the disease to the adjacent skin or to the face and other parts of the body.

The swelling may be so considerable as completely to close the eyes. As a rule the acute symptoms continue several days, at the end of which time the vesicles either discharge or crust over and the swelling and redness slowly disappear. In this stage the itching may be intense and is likely to provoke repeated scratching, which may in turn bring about eczema.

The best way to treat ivy poisoning is simple. The inflamed skin should be copiously washed with lukewarm water and a soap that does not irritate. The parts affected should then be bathed with a watery solution of permanganate of potash as hot as can be borne. If the skin is broken a 5 per cent solution should be used; if the skin is not broken, however, the strength of the solution may be increased up to 2 or 3 percent. Treatment should begin the instant symptoms are observed.

In mild cases one treatment is enough. Occasionally the poison is more deeply seated and the permanganate must be applied for some time. In these cases and in the extremely rare instances of systemic infection due to the entrance of the poison into the circulation, a physician must be called.

The patient must avoid scratching of course. Bandages are undesirable because they tend to spread the poison over the surrounding skin. If any protector is needed let it be a loosely applied dressing of absorbent cotton and gauze, changed frequently and kept moist at all times with warm water containing a little bicarbonate of soda.

Permanganate of potash discolors everything with which it comes in contact and stains the skin a deep brown color, but that is a small price to pay for the relief it affords. The stain will wear off in a few days or it can be removed by vigorous application of soap and water. In the healing stages of the disorder soothing ointments may be used.

Served the Robbers Right.

A crowd of New Brunswick harvest hands bound for the Western wheat field on the C. P. R. annual excursion met with an unpleasant reception at Coldwell, four hundred and fifty-six miles west of North Bay, which checked their exuberance. When the special train stopped at Coldwell a gang of young men proceeded to raid the farmers' gardens near by, but when gleefully gathering up their spoils they were stung into realization of their crime by a broadside of birdshot from the shotguns of farmers in ambush. About a dozen of the harvesters were wounded painfully, but no serious injuries are reported. It has been impossible to discover thus far who was responsible for the shooting, but the farmers near the C.P.R. stations are ready this year for any acts of the lawless bands.

The Maintenance of a Microbe.

A country school-teacher was cashing her monthly check at the bank. The teller apologized for the filthy condition of the bills, saying, "I hope you're not afraid of microbes."

"Not a bit of it," the schoolmarm replied. "I'm sure no microbe could live on my salary!"—September Lippincott's.

Vegetarian Warriors.

The heroes of Homer prepared their food with their own hands, and were not, therefore, great sufferers from inefficient domestics. In the happy simplicity of the Homeric age, writes F. W. Hackwood in "Good Cheer," the great heroes who dealt such terrible blows, leaving death and desolation behind them, when they reposed after their exploits, partook of a blameless dish of beans or a plate of homely lentils.

It may be difficult to imagine Diomedes in the act of peeling onions or Achilles washing cabbages. But although the wise Ulysses roasted, with his own hands, a sirloin of beef, vegetables occupied the most conspicuous places at all the great banquets of ancient Greece.

Parsley formed the crown with which Hercules, as conqueror of the Nemean lion, crowned himself. Anacreon celebrates the plant as the emblem of joy and festivity. Fabius makes parsley the food of courage, the warriors of Homer fed their charges with it before battle.

The cabbage was adored by the Egyptians, who raised altars to it. Afterward they made this strange god the first dish in their repasts. The Greeks and Romans ascribed to it the happy quality of preserving from drunkenness, and looked upon it as a sovereign remedy against paralysis.

Alexander found the onions in Egypt, where the Hebrews had learned to like it. He had it cultivated in Greece, and given as food to his troops, in the belief that it excited martial ardor. Whosoever wishes to preserve his health, says an ancient saw, should eat every morning before breakfast, young onions and honey. But this does not sound like a very tempting preservative.

Asia is said to be the native soil of the asparagus. Yet the Romans cultivated it with such marvelous success that the stalks raised at Ravenna are said to have weighed three pounds each, and we are asked to believe that the African variety, grown in Libya, reached a height of twelve feet.

WILL DISCOURAGE MIGRATION OF CONSUMPTIVES.

Physicians in all of the eastern and southern states will be asked by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis to stop sending consumptives in the last stages of tuberculosis and without sufficient funds to the southwestern part of the United States in search of health, according to an announcement made by that association.

While it is impossible to tell accurately how many consumptives there are at present living in the states of Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona, Southern California, and Western Texas, it is probable that no less than 10 per cent of the 6,000,000 people in this territory have tuberculosis themselves or have gone to the West because some member of their family has had it. Every year, the health authorities estimate, not less than 10,000 consumptives hopelessly diseased come West to die. For these cases, the climate of this section of the country can do nothing and they are compelled to die in strange surroundings and thousands of miles from home and friends.

The National Association points out further that from 50 to 60 per cent of these advanced cases are too poor to provide the proper necessaries of life and they are either starved to death or compelled to accept the meagre charity which this part of the country affords.

In an effort to stop the migration of consumptives of this class to the Southwest, the National Association will ask physicians to be more careful in ordering patients to go away, and will also ask railroads to discontinue their practice of selling "charity" tickets to those who cannot afford to pay full fare. "No consumptive should go to Colorada, California, or the West for his health, says the association, "unless he has a good chance for recovery from his disease, and unless especially he has at least $1,000 to spend for this purpose, over and above what his family may need.

"Tuberculosis can be cured in any part of the United States, and it is not necessary for tuberculosis patient to go West. Whenever possible, the National Association urges tuberculosis patients who have not ample funds to go to a sanatorium near home, and if they cannot do this, to take the cure in their own homes, under the direction of a physician."

An Action in Replevin.

Wherever buying and selling go on, there are those who do not scruple to take a little extra profit if it can be done secretly. The deed is not always carried off so boldly as in this amusing adventure narrated in Mrs. Phillimore's recent book of travel, "In the Carpathians."

The yellow horse—the Phillimores' journey was made in a peasant's cart drawn by a horse whose "skin was the color of honey when the sun shines on it," and driven by a romantic and elegant Pole, whose name was Milak—the yellow horse was preparing to shake the dust of Dosliska from his heels when an elderly Jewess detached herself from an excited crowd in the market-place and hurried toward the cart.

"My weight!" she demanded in a loud voice.

"What weight?" inquired Mr. Phillimore.

"In the sugar," replied the old lady.

"What sugar?" queried Mr. Phillimore.

Milak came to the rescue. "I bought loaf sugar," he explained.

"The weight is in the sugar. I made a mistake," volunteered the aggressive lady with much wrath and no embarrassment. "Am I to wait all day?" she continued, impatient at the stupidity of these foreigners.

Guilelessly, Milak produced the bag of sugar. A more knowing villager offered a bowl, into which the old lady hastily dumped the sugar, disclosing in the bottom a brass weight of three or four ounces.

"That's it," she said, unblushingly. "I forgot to take it out," and hastily restoring the sugar to her customers, she turned and marched back to the market-place.

The Phone and the Hymn.

An admiring parishioner of a young divine in an Ohio town recently had a telephone installed in the clergyman's house. The good man was delighted with the convenience, and used it immediately before going to church.

When the time came for him to announce the first hymn, he read the first lines with his usual impressiveness, and concluded with:

"Let us all unite in hymn seven O three."—September Lippincott's.

MOTHERHOOD SUGGESTIONS

Advice to Expectant Mothers

The experience of Motherhood is a trying one to most women and marks distinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared or understands how to properly care for herself. Of course nearly every woman nowadays has medical treatment at such times, but many approach the experience with an organism unfitted for the trial of strength, and when it is over her system has received a shock from which it is hard to recover. Following right upon this comes the nervous strain of caring for the child, and a distinct change in the mother results.

There is nothing more charming than a happy and healthy mother of children, and indeed child-birth under the right conditions need be no hazard to health or beauty. The unexplainable thing is that, with all the evidence of shattered nerves and broken health resulting from an unprepared condition, and with ample time in which to prepare, women will persist in going blindly to the trial.

Every woman at this time should rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong.

SELF-RELIANCE

The farm is the greatest training school in the world for self-reliant men. The farmer and the farmer's sons simply have to do things themselves. There is nobody else around to do them. The farm boy early in life learns to do things, and if he can't accomplish the thing which has to be done one way he casts about for another until he finds out how to do it. This makes him resourceful. It develops in him the ability to find a way out of the difficulties about him. This training follows him all through life, and for this reason he is more apt to be able to take care of himself in almost any situation than the man who has never had to rely on himself. It is this sort of thing which develops manhood. Unfortunate is the boy who is surrounded by luxury conveniences and wealth, for he has little opportunity to learn to depend on himself.

HARVESTERS' EXCURSIONS.

Urgent Need for Men Along Canadian Northern Western Lines.

Given warm sunshine for the next ten days, Western Canada will reap the largest grain crop in its history. All indications at present are favorable and the Western farmer is busy preparing for a bumper crop. 50,000 men will be needed to garner this immense crop and store it for future use. This army of sturdy workers will have to be drawn mostly from Ontario, and many of them will stay in the West after getting a glimpse of its many possibilities. The man who goes out with the harvesters' excursion gets an exceptional opportunity on a small investment. He not only gets an opportunity to make a little money, but also a chance to look over some of the finest wheat land in the world with a view to possible future settlement. Many farmers in the West to-day owe their prosperity to the fact that they went out with a harvesters' excursion a few years ago and later took up a homestead, and there are thousands of acres of rich fertile soil waiting for others.

Along the lines of the C. N. R., the road that has tapped thousands of miles of virgin wheat land in the West, an army of men will be needed. The demand will be keen and the highest wages will be paid. The fare will be $10.00 to Winnipeg with a rate of one-half cent a mile to points on the C. N. R. beyond. Five excursions will leave Ontario points between August 16th and 31st, and the route via Chicago and Duluth will be followed, the most interesting to the West.

For full information apply to any agent of the C. N. O., the Bay of Quinte Ry., or the Central Ontario Railway. 10-3t.

[illegible] IS?

God Developing Most Wonderful Creation in Universe.

A Question Long In Dispute Is Now Clear Through a Better Understanding of Bible—"The Path of the Just is as the Shining Light, Shining More and More Unto the Perfect Day."

PASTOR RUSSELL

London, August 4.—London Tabernacle was crowded, as usual, twice to-day to hear Pastor Russell. We report one of his discourses from the text, "Not of works, lest any man should boast; for we are His workmanship."—Ephesians ii, 9, 10.

If the Bible taught that salvation would be the reward of good works, it would harmonize better with the common conception. Why should God specially reward faith? Why should He not specially reward good works? The answer to this question can be appreciated only by an understanding of the future, as well as of the present, of the Divine Plan, said Pastor Russell. In God's general dealings with angels and with men, His principle is to reward works, obedience. God's exceptional dealings are with the Church—for special reasons, which we shall see.

During Messiah's glorious reign, for which we pray, "Thy Kingdom come," the world in general will not be on trial so much for faith, but rather for works—as we read, "They shall be judged, every man according to his works." Thus obedience to the laws and regulations of Messiah's Kingdom will be rewarded by gradual Restitution to perfection. With every exercise of righteousness and obedience will come the reward of strength of mind and body.

The Church Walks by Faith.

But how different matters are now! said Pastor Russell. Everything is dark, except as the eye of faith can see more or less obscurely in the light of God's promises and the types of the past. "So," said the Apostle, "we (the Church), walk by faith and not by sight." St. Peter declares that we should take heed to the word of prophecy as a light in a dark place while waiting for the dawning of the New Day (II. Peter i, 19). We are very near to that New Day now, but we still need the light of the Lamp, the Word of God, and it is shining more clearly than ever before. It is showing us the explanation of our text, that the Church is not being judged or tested according to works, but according to her faith.

In the present time perfect works are impossible anyway, because of our imperfection through heredity from the fall, and because of the imperfection of all in contact with us in the affairs of life, and because of the evil influence of Satan and the fallen angels—"Seducing spirits."—I. Tim. iv, 1.

It is when the believer reaches the point of a full consecration of himself to God that Jesus becomes his Advocate with the Father and imputes of His merit as a covering for the sinner's blemishes, and thus makes Him acceptable to the Father as a living sacrifice and footstep follower of the Master and prospective heir of God and joint-heir with Jesus Christ his Lord.

We Are God's Workmanship.

However, as soon as the Father has accepted the sinner, as soon as he has been begotten of the Holy Spirit as a New Creature, old things are passed away, and thenceforth he may do works—must do works indeed. If he does not do works he will die spiritually. But the old creature, the sinner, can do no works to merit Divine approval. His faith in the Redeemer makes him acceptable. As a New Creature he has no sins to be forgiven. The New Creature has no heredity from the past, but may cry, "Abba, Father." As a son the New Creature is permitted to work and must be about his Father's business—must seek first the interests of the Divine Kingdom.

The Church Class is God's New Creation. In the remote past He created the thousands of millions of worlds, samples of which may be witnessed on a starry night. But with all their immensity they were as nothing to His new creation of angels in various orders, and later, the creation of man, of the earth earthy. Even the smallest insect is a greater creation than the creation of an inanimate world, because the insect has will, volition, soul, of its own. God having created all these other things at last purposed the creation of a still higher order of beings than the angelic, who are soon to be "partakers of the divine nature."—II. Peter i, 4.

For more than eighteen centuries God has been working on this New Creation. First of all, Jesus, the great Messianic Head, was made perfect through sufferings, prepared for this divine nature and received to it in His glorious resurrection. Since Pentecost God has been accepting by the begetting of the Holy Spirit such of humanity as avail themselves of the glorious privilege of this Age. Only those possessing faith can be of this class. To all others the invitation and glorious description of the heavenly nature are foolishness.

By what means does God work in these New Creatures? Ah, wonderful! He operates not by force, but in their minds, through their consecrated wills. The mighty forces by which God operates in their hearts and minds ("working in you to do His good pleasure") are merely promises—words—words that to others are empty, foolish, or poetic hyperbole. But to those who believe they are "Wonderful words of life."
