ON MARRIAGE.

From what I wrote in my last, you will easily see that I could never pretend to advise whom you should marry, but I can advise whom you should not marry. Avoid a companion that may entail any hereditary disease on your posterity; particularly, that most dreadful of all human calamities, madness. Do not marry a fool, he is the most intractable of all animals; he is led by his passions and caprices, and is incapable of hearing the voice of reason. It may probably, too, hurt your vanity, to have husbands for whom you have reason to blush and tremble every time they open their lips in company. But the worst circumstance that attends a fool is his constant jealousy of his wife's being thought to govern him. This renders it impossible to lead him, and he is continually doing absurd and disagreeable things, for no other reason but to show he dares do them.

A rake is always a suspicious husband, because he has only known the most worthless of your sex. He likewise entails the worst diseases on his wife and children, if he has the misfortune to have any.

If you have any sense of religion yourselves, do not think of husbands who have none. If they have tolerable understandings, they will be glad that you have religion, for their own sake, and for the sake of their families. If they are weak men, they will be continually teasing and shocking you about your principles. If you have children you will suffer the most bitter distress, in seeing all your endeavors to form their minds to virtue and piety, all your endeavors to secure their present and eternal happiness, frustrated and turned into ridicule.

As I look on your choice of a husband to be of the greatest consequence to your happiness, I hope you will make it with the utmost circumspection. Do not give way to a sudden sally of passion and dignify it with the name of love. Genuine love is not founded in caprice; it is founded in nature; on honorable views, on virtue, on similarity of taste and sympathy of souls. If you have these sentiments you will never marry any one when you are not in that situation, in point of fortune, which is necessary to the happiness of either you. What that competency may be, can only be determined by your own tastes. It would be ungenerous in you to take advantage of a lover's attachment, to plunge him into distress; and, if he has any honor, no personal gratification will ever tempt him to enter into any connection which will render you unhappy. If you have as much between you as to satisfy all your demands, it is sufficient. I shall conclude, with endeavoring to remove a difficulty which most occur to any woman of reflection, on the subject of marriage.

What is to become of all those refinements of delicacy, that dignity of manner which checked all familiarities, and suspended desire in respectful and lawful admiration. In answer to this, I shall only observe, that if motives of interest or vanity have had any share in your resolution to marry none of these chimerical notions will give you any pain; nay they will very quickly appear as ridiculous in your own eye as they probably always do in the eyes of your husbands. They have been sentiments which floated in your imaginations, but have never reached your hearts. But, if these sentiments have been truly genuine, and if you have had the singular happy fate to attach those who understand them, you have no reason to be afraid.

Marriage, indeed, will not at once dispel the enchantment raised by an external beauty; but the virtues and graces that first warmed the heart, the reserve and delicacy which always left the lover something farther to wish, and often made him doubtful of your sensibility or attachment may and ought ever to require. The tumult of passion will necessarily subside; but it will be succeeded by an kindness that affects the heart in a [illegible] more sensible and more [illegible] manner.

[illegible] thus given you my opinion [illegible] the most important [illegible] of your future life, chiefly [illegible] for that period [illegible] you [illegible] the world. I have [illegible] avoid some peculiarities which, from their contra- [illegible] general practice of the [illegible] reasonably have sus- [illegible] so well founded. But, [illegible] you, I am afraid my [illegible] too full, and too warm [illegible] to allow me to keep this [illegible]. This may have produced [illegible] barrassment and some seem- [illegible] radiction. What I have writ- [illegible] has been the amusement of some [illegible] tary hours, and has served to [illegible] some melancholy reflections.

Bar Divorced Man From Episcopal Bench.

Albany, N.Y., Nov. 20. By resolution the Episcopal Diocese of Albany at to-day's session of the annual convention endorsed the action of the convention's standing committee in refusing to consent to the consecration of Rev. Dr. H. H. Silver, of Topeka, Kan., the newly-elected Bishop of Kansas, because he is a divorced man.

When a clergyman is elected to the Episcopic in the Episcopal Church his election has to be confirmed by the other dioceses of the country. The standing committee refused to consent to confirm Dr. Silver's election.

The Secret of Hood River's Great Success is APPLE WORSHIP

You will understand thoroughly just what this means if you will go with Mr. Randall R. Howard, the writer and apple-grower, for a day's trip through the famous Oregon apple district, see the orchards, talk with George I. Sargent, O. T. Wedemeyer, John A. English and other successful growers and see them picking and packing the fruit. You can do all these things by reading Mr. Howard's remarkable article on "Apple Worship," the story of you will find it well worth your time to read these five other big features of this issue:

Where the Blue Ribbons Blow. A complete account of the greatest dairy cattle show ever held. It has just been concluded in Chicago, and this interesting story of this wonderful exhibit, with splendid photographic illustrations, will be well worth your attention reading.

A New Dictator for the School, by William Allen Keever, of the Kansas State Agricultural College. This is the first of several articles in which Mr. McKeever tells how certain progressive communities are revolving antiquated country schools and enabling pupils to get greater benefits, and teachers and school boards greater results.

Fortunes From Fertilizer, by J. Russell Smith. The sandiest soil can be made to yield big crops if the right kind of commercial fertilizers are used in the proper amounts. This article tells what those fertilizers are and how they should be used.

Farm Insurance at Cost, by Harry Snowden Stabler. Do you belong to a farmers' coöperative insurance company? Mr. Stabler, who has closely studied rural insurance, shows how coöperative insurance companies can be made to give maximum protection at minimum expense and at the same time promote community interest and fire prevention. This is one of a series of articles on Thirty-One Hundred Million Dollar Fire Waste.

Revamping Old Gore, by David P. Hughes. A gripping story of the contest between the farmers of the old and the new schools, and how it turned out.

And in addition, the valuable regular weekly departments conducted by the foremost authorities in the country. These departments, each one dealing with an important phase of agriculture, are The Farmer's Business Market, an explanation of the beef shortage and the effect of the large crops on the market; The Political Observer, a clear and concise statement about the unfinished work before the third session of the 62d Congress; The Country Gentlewoman, a special article showing why a farmer's wife should be careful about her personal appearance, and several pages devoted to housefurnishings and house management; Little Stories of Success, short and interesting accounts of farmers who have found good ways to do important little things about the farm, and the Poultryand Garden Departments, with the newest and most important information concerning these two subjects.

THE ARMAGEDDON OF THE SCRIPTURES

Pastor Russell Presents Some Astounding Views.

He Claims That the Time For the Establishment of Messiah's Kingdom Is Here — Not Recognizing This Truth, Papacy, Protestantism and the Civil Powers of Earth Are About to Unite In Common Cause.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Nov. 3—The Brooklyn Academy of Music was crowded to the limit to-day to hear Pastor Russell's discourse on the "Battle of Armageddon." His text was: "He gathered them together unto a place called in the Hebrew tongue Armageddon." (Rev. xvi, 16.) He said: Armageddon in the Hebrew signifies the Mount of Destruction.

The Lord has associated the name Armageddon with the great controversy between Truth and Error, during which the New Age of Messiah's glory will be ushered in. He has used figures of speech in Revelation to hide certain important truths until due time for their revealment.

"Unclean Spirits Like Frogs."

Three unclean spirits, according to the context, will proceed from the mouth of the Beast, the Dragon and the False Prophet, and will assemble all the kings and their armies on one side for the great Armageddon battle. In this highly symbolical language, doctrines or teachings are represented as "frogs." The Pastor discussed frog characteristics — pompousness, inflation of dignity, and croaking. Thus read, the symbol signifies that these systems will send forth similar teachings.

They will look "wise" and see little respecting the differences between them. They will prate on Apostolic Authority, the Divine prerogatives of the clergy and the civil power. They will croak alarmingly respecting the dire results of personal and press liberties. They will thus alarm intelligent people and cause the wheels of progress to turn backward toward medieval conditions.

Dragon, Beast and False Prophet.

The Dragon of Revelation represents the Civil power; the Leopard of Revelation xiii, 1, 2, represents Papacy; the "False Prophet" is but another name for the Image of the Beast of Revelation xiii, 14, 15—Federated Protestantism. Good people in these three great Systems are being led into the Armageddon battle without realizing that they "fight against God."

The foretelling of evil to the professed people of God, is not a pleasant task. Nevertheless the time has come to "cry aloud and spare not," to show God's people the errors in which we have become involved and warn against enlisting on the wrong side of the Armageddon battle.

The Lord is not accountable for the moral character of all the people who will fight on His side. The Scriptures declare, "His servants ye are to whom ye render service." In the coming battle some very good, intelligent and moral people will be found fighting on the side of Mammon; contrariwise, some very ignorant people will be found fighting with the Lord.

The Errors Which Ensnare.

The Bible declares that God has committed to the Gentile Governments the privilege of ruling the earth during a period of 2,520 years — "The Times of the Gentiles." Meantime, God has been electing a saintly few from all nations, to be associated with Messiah in His Kingdom, now due to supplant Gentile rule. Neglecting the teachings of the Bible, Christendom thinks that Christ and His Church have been reigning over the kings of the earth for the past thousand years. They delude themselves into thinking that their armies are preparing to fight the Christian warfare. They pray, "Thy Kingdom once," while rejecting the King and His Kingdom.

Suddenly, "in one hour," (Revelation xvii, 10) the most terrible Revolution will occur. (Revelation xvi, 18.) The masses will hope for victory through the ballot. When this final recourse shall have failed, the Social explosion will bring anarchy: "There shall be a time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation." (Daniel xii, 1.) Our Lord added, "And except those days be shortened there should no flesh be saved." (Matt. xxiv, 21, 22.) But those days will be shortened; the Elect, with their glorious Head, will establish the Messianic Kingdom.

Armageddon Not Yet But Soon.

For forty years the Armageddon forces have been mustering for conflict. Strikes, lockouts and riots have been merely incidental skirmishes. Court and Army scandals in Europe, Insurance, Trust and Court scandals in America, have shaken public confidence. Dynamite plots, charged by turns on employes and on employers, have made each distrustful of the other. The lines of battle are daily becoming more distinctly marked. Nevertheless Armageddon cannot yet be fought, according to prophecy.

Gentile Times have still two years to run. The "Image of the Beast" of our context must yet receive life—power. The Image must be transformed from a mere mechanism to a living force. Protestant Federation realizes that its organization will still be futile unless it receives vitalization—unless its clergy be recognized as possessed of apostolic ordination and authority to teach. This the prophecy indicates will come from the two-horned beast, which, we believe, symbolically represents the Church of England. Protestantism and Catholicism, operating in conjunction for the suppression of human liberties, await this vivifying of the Image.

SUFFERED EVERYTHING

For Years, Restored To Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Canadian women are continually writing us such letters as the two following, which are heartfelt expressions of gratitude for restored health:

Glanford Station, Ont.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and never found any medicine to compare with it. I had ulcers and falling of womb and doctors did me no good. I suffered dreadfully for years until I began taking your medicine. I also recommend it for nervousness and indigestion." — Mrs. HENRY CLARK, Glanford Station, Ont.

Chesterville, Ont. — "I heard your medicines highly praised, and a year ago I began taking them for falling of womb and ovarian trouble.

"My left side pained me all the time and just before my periods which were irregular and painful it would be worse. To sit down caused me pain and suffering, and I would be so nervous sometimes that I could not bear to see anyone or hear any one speak. Little specks would float before my eyes and I was always constipated.

"I cannot say too much for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills, for there are no medicines like them. I have taken them and I recommend them to all women. You may publish this testimonial." — Mrs. STEPHEN J. MARTIN, Chesterville, Ontario, Canada.

MANUFACTURERS AND THE BRITISH PREFERENCE.

We want to see less British and foreign manufactures come in, and more "Made-in-Canada." How to accomplish this end should be the chief consideration governing all tariffs, including the British Preference.

The foregoing is an extract from Industrial Canada, the official organ of the Manufacturers' Association. The language used could not well be more explicit. "We want to see less British manufactures come in," the organ says. How to attain this end, how to prevent the admission of some of the goods now coming in should, we are further told, be the chief consideration in the framing of all tariffs, including the British preference. It is a frank declaration in favor of erecting a tariff, high as Haman's gallows if need be, not against the United States alone, but against the motherland as well.

If any stronger proof as to the attitude of the protected interest is required it is supplied by a report of the address of the new President of the Manufacturers' Association, R. S. Gourlay, given in the same organ. Mr. Gourlay, in the address referred to, said that representatives of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, while in conference with British manufacturers, had been asked if they would favor an increase in the British preference "on articles not made in Canada." Note the distinction. The Canadian manufacturers were not asked to submit to a lower scale of protection as against Britain on iron, woollen or other goods which are being manufactured in Canada to-day; they were merely asked if they would not consent to a lower rate on British goods of a kind not made in Canada at all. But even here the reply was in the negative. The British manufacturers were told that "we (that is the protected Canadian manufacturers) are not in sympathy with any such increase." The reason given was, that while certain articles may not be made in Canada to-day, there is a possibility that they may be made here to-morrow. Consequently it was held that British goods which do not compete with the present output of Canadian factories should be compelled to go on climbing over a tariff wall until such time as protected Canadian manufacturers are ready to enter these new lines. When Canadian manufacturers are ready to do this there will doubtless be a demand for a further elevation in the tariff against British goods.

The real sentiments of the protectionist interest as towards Britain are not voiced in the singing of "God Save the King." They are voiced in the demand that the tariff shall be so framed as to prevent British manufacturers from competing in the Canadian market save under the handicap of a thirty per cent. tax. The attitude of the protectionist interest as herein revealed shows something else it shows that opposition of the protected interest to the Reciprocity agreement of last year was not based on anything contained in the agreement itself. Opposition was based on knowledge of the fact that the farmers' delegation which had asked for Reciprocity had asked at the same time for a sweeping reduction in the tariff on British goods. Manufacturers feared that with Reciprocity to force the extension of the Preference
