SACRED CONCERT—The sacred concert in Victoria Park on Sunday evening was a very pleasing entertainment, all numbers on the programme being exceedingly well rendered. The Choral Society under Mr. Chas. Hately, though not large in numbers certainly made up for it in quality of tone and expression. The orchestra was a decided addition and attraction both in accompaniment to the chorus and in selections. Several musicians from Toronto kindly assisted and their presence was certainly very noticeable and appreciated by all. Mr. Dan Dineen's violin solo "Souvenir" was heartily encored, to which he kindly responded. Mrs. Partridge, who is well known to Milton audiences, as usual, contributed a very well rendered and pleasing solo as also did Miss Davidson of Toronto and Mr. BertAtely in their several selections. The Milton Band contributed several selections and a large and well pleased audience contributed to the financial part of the programme. As a result the Committee has turned over a substantial sum in aid of the Monument Fund.

Ancient Poultry Farms.

Although hot-air and hot-water incubators were not known in Europe until the last decades of the eighteenth century, the Chinese and Egyptians practiced artificial incubation of fowls' eggs thousands of years ago. The ancient Egyptians built enormous ovens of semi-dried bricks, often covering an area of as much as 6,000 square feet. Similar egg-ovens are in use in Egypt to-day, the craft having been handed down through the centuries, from father to son. Through the centre of the egg-oven runs a passage which opens on each side to circular vaults, in which the actual hatching is done. Fires are kept alight in each vault, and all surplus heat and smoke escape from a large hole in the roof. During incubation the porous eggshell admits a slight amount of oxygen and allows the escape of other gases. Every day the shell grows more brittle, so that when the time comes for the live chick to break forth it has no difficulty in doing so.

Trees and Temperature.

In a discusion of the effect of trees on temperature, Mr. W. B. Leach, City Forester of New York, points out that if American streets and parks were well supplied with vigorous trees the summers would be cooler and the winters warmer. He gives as his chief reason for this theory the fact that a temperature of a tree never varies, in summer or in winter, from 54 degrees Fahrenheit. "If we cross one of the avenues on a hot day," states Mr. Leach, "when the temperature is 100 degrees Fahrenheit, and pass under the shade of a tree, we are refreshed by the cool air that meets us. What makes the change? Not the shade alone, but chiefly the fact that we are in the presence of a body that has a fixed temperature of 50 degrees Fahrenheit, or 46 degrees cooler than the street temperature."

Japan's Giant Pine.

On the shores of Lake Biwa, near Kioto, in Western Japan, is the little hamlet of Karasaki, famous for its gigantic pine tree. This tree is more than 90 feet high, its trunk is 37 feet in circumference and the spread of its branches is 240 feet. This tree has more than 380 large branches, held in position by a wooden framework. To shield it from wind and weather a little roof has been erected over the top. In front of the tree stands a Shinto shrine.
