Sensible young people start to save as soon as they begin to earn. Financial success is impossible for those who spend every dollar as soon as it is earned, or even before. They give mute evidence that they have never learned that there is only one hundred cents in a dollar. The middle-aged man who, in his youth began to save something out of every pay envelope, can look hopefully forward to the future. But money is not the only item we shall need a supply of in the years to come. We need interests over which we can be enthusiastic when the gaieties of youth are no longer possible. It is not enough for sensible young people to enjoy to-day. It is quite as important to lay the foundation for happiness to-morrow. —Acton Free Press.

MILLIONAIRE WAS LOOSE AT ORANGEVILLE

The merchants of this town believed a millionaire was "running wild," when a man, who gave his name as Jack Johnston, went shopping, yesterday, and bought many things from a $2,300 automobile to a wardrobe of silken garments. The purchases, he said, were for his bride-to-be, and he would pay for them on delivery Monday, but later, when Johnston ran foul of the law, it was discovered that a five cent piece composed his total wealth. The man was taken into custody after the clerk in one of the many stores he visited noticed the loss of an umbrella. — Orangeville Sun.
