Jack is Twenty-One To-day

JACK is twenty-one to-day. But he has more than a man's years to his credit. He has one thousand dollars in the bank.

It has grown with a practical mother's love, from the initial deposit of one dollar on the first Birthday twenty years ago.

Isabel McMullen Won Public Speaking Contest

DECIDED ON GOLD WATCH IN PLACE OF TRIP TO OTTAWA—16 SPEAKERS CONTESTED FOR MISS MACPHAIL'S PRIZE.

The popularity of Miss MacPhail's public speaking contests was again evidenced by the large number of contestants and their friends, who braved inclement weather and muddy roads, and filled the high school auditorium on Saturday afternoon last. There were sixteen contestants from sixteen townships in the county, and it required about three hours to get through the program. The judges were Dr. O. J. Stevenson, M.A., Paed., Mrs. O. J. Stevenson, both of Guelph O.A.C., the former Professor of English; and Campbell Lamont, B. S.A., agricutural representative for Dufferin County. The competition was very keen and the judges certainly had a difficult time deciding who the three prizewinners should be. The final decision gave first place to Miss Isabel McMullen of S.S. No. 7, Holland, (whose teacher, by the way, is Miss Mabel Parslow of Artemesia); Jean McKenzie of S.S. No. 10, Keppel, took second place; May Collinson, S.S. No. 9, Glenelg, secured third place and Esther Riddell, S.S. No. 13, Bentinck, got honorable mention. The winner of first place chose the gold watch in preference to the trip to Ottawa; the second and third prizes carried with them gold and silver medals. The subject chosen by all three prize winners was, "Pioneer life in your community."

Three contestants failed to appear these being: Annie Culliton of S. S. No. 10, Normanby; Marion Taylor, S. S. No. 5, Osprey, and Dorothy Theakston, S. S. No. 2, St. Vincent.

The following is the speech as given by the winner, Miss McMullen.:

The topic I have chosen to speak on this afternoon is "Pioneer Life in our Community."

Many, many years ago when our forefathers came to this part, the country differed very much from what it is to-day, the ground was covered with dense forests in which were found wild animals, such as bears and wild cats.

To this uncivilized region then came our ancestors and to their lot fell the duty of cutting down the trees, clearing the land and building on the little clearances their log shacks in which they and their families lived. With oxen they tilled the soil, each year striving to increase the yield. This was done by clearing more land every season and in this occupation many indeed were the hardships endured by these noble pioneers of whom we are justly proud.

An added asset to our community is the fact that we are the possessors of a part, at least, of the Saugeen river. This was perceived to be a source of industry and its power was in later years harnessed and put to an especially useful purpose, namely that of running our saw and grist mills.

From mere paths and trails through the forest they developed what was and is commonly known, as "corduroy roads." These they made by laying logs side by side and covering them with layers of earth.

As time went on they began to think of the educational side of the community and little log schools were erected, which have since given place to our modern brick building of to-day. These were filled to over flowing in the winter months when the youth of the community returned to renew their scanty knowledge of various lines, and when, also, some of the older ones came back to take up the work they had been forced to leave in order to help wrest a scanty living from the soil. These older ones were often far older than the teacher himself.

Where stands our comfortable brick church today once stood a less handsome building of wood, which had in its turn taken the place of the school house as a place of worship. Rarely were services held regularly, but just at such times as the pioneer missionary could find it possible to made his rounds.

Conveyances were rare and times without number the settlers walked to Owen Sound and carried their produce on their backs, returning laden, instead, with the articles they had bought. Matches were a thing almost unknown, but fire was produced by rubbing two sticks together. I think that I have now summed up the chief points of interest in my short speech.

Dr. W. A. Blake Died Suddenly at Priceville

The sudden death on Thursday evening of Dr. W. A. Blake of Priceville aroused considerable interest among the citizens of that community. According to information given out Dr. Blake was alone in his house at the time of his death, or at least just prior to his passing, but there was some doubt existing in the minds of many people as to the cause of death. It was generally known that Dr. Blake was in some financial difficulties and that domestic troubles had weighed on his mind to some extent, his wife and two children having left some three weeks ago for Hamilton, where they have since resided.

The deceased had not been feeling well all that day and friends had been in to see him at different times. and a few moments before his death he was found lying on the floor with life fast ebbing away, and he died a few moments later.

Dr. Jamieson, Jr., of Durham, Coroner, was summoned and after investigating the circumstances very thoroughly, decided that an inquest was unnecessary.

Deceased was about 40 years of age, and came to Priceville about a year ago from Hamilton, and took over the practice of Dr. O. E. Carr, who removed to Owen Sound. He was considered a good physician, genial and pleasant to meet, and was well thought of in the village. The remains were taken to Hamilton for interment.

RECEPTION

On Saturday, October 16th Mrs. Wesley Armstrong received for the first time since her marriage. The bride, was gowned in a peach taffeta with touches of black, and was assisted by Mrs. Sandiland and Mrs. Armstrong, and received in the living room, which was beautifully decorated with yellow chrysanthemums. Little Miss Helen deCudmore opened the door and the guests were shown by Mrs. Miller to the dining room where a dainty luncheon was served. The table was decorated with a silver basket of pom poms and trailing smilax. Those assisting in the dining room were Mrs. Hickling, who poured tea, Mrs. Moore, Miss Sandiland and Mrs. Turnbull. The guests, numbering seventy-five, were entertained by Miss Nellie Gardiner of Dundalk and Miss Wilhemine Poelhman of Collingwood, accompanied by Miss Beryl Brown of Collingwood.

There are prospects of a flour mill being established in Markdale, a Toronto man having been in town a couple of days looking things over.
