A PROPOSED PARTNERSHIP TO BE DEPLORED

When Premier Ferguson issued his manifesto at the time of dissolution he told the people of Ontario that he had a well considered policy for the abolition of the Ontario Temperance Act, and he entered into details of the proposed legislation which it had taken him three and a half years to devise. Chief among his substitutes for the present law, which Conservative, Progressive and Liberal leaders have until now pledged themselves to maintain till the people revoked the measure, was a promise that we should have the traffic in intoxicants revived under government management, by the agency of a commission. Then Mr. Ferguson gave details. His scheme would provide for the establishment of beer parlors, places where drinkers would have chairs to sit upon and tables to place their heads on when overcome. This proposal was endorsed by Mr. Ferguson's wet friends. They professed to see much merit in it. We did not, and as consistant supporters of the Ontario Temperance Act, we gave reasons for our opposition. There was widespread denunciation of the proposition and on the very day that The Advance printed its opposition to beer parlors as a provincial institution, Mr. Ferguson withdrew his proposal. He ought not to have made it in the first instance, and that he did shows the necessity for watchfulness on the part of the public and for candid critics of kindred propositions.

We are no more enamored of Mr. Ferguson's proposed issue to every person in the Province, who has attained the age of 21 years of licenses to obtain, from government stores, at cost price, such intoxicating liquors as he or she may desire. This is not "advanced temperance" but lamentable retrogression.

Our opinion is the government of the Province has no business to depart from the provisions of the Ontario Temperance Act, but to keep their solemnly made promise to maintain that measure in its entiretv and to pass such amendments to it as will make these provisions more effective. They have no mandate from the electors to become partners of the brewers and distillers in a wider sale of intoxicating liquors, and they certainly are not warranted in taking this action because thev have failed to carry out the provisions of the law as endorsed by the people.

THE BELL STILL RINGS.

He was trying to sell the small town merchant some advertising. The latter said he had been in business there 25 years, and everybody knew him and his stock of goods—so it wasn't necessary for him to advertise—a quite common answer on the part of many a small town merchant, and some big town merchants as well.

Then the salesman pointed across the square and said: "How long has that church been there?" The merchant answered: "About fifty years, I should say." The salesman asked one more question, "They still ring the bell every Sunday, don't they?"

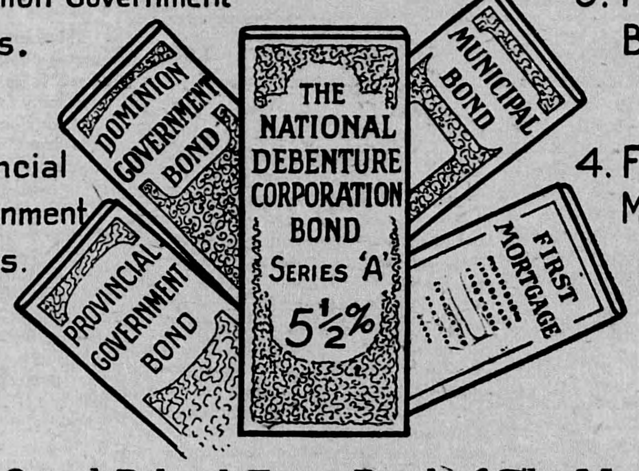
Four Bedrocks of Safety

1. Dominion Government Bonds.
2. Provincial Government Bonds.
3. Municipal Bonds.
4. First Mortgages.



They Stand Behind Every Bond of The National Debenture Corporation, Limited

FOR every $100.00 invested in Series "A" NATIONAL DEBENTURE Bonds, $105.00 par value in the four securities named must be placed with Trustees. Of this amount, no less than $55.00 always must be in Dominion Government, Provincial Government and Municipal securities. No more than $50.00 can be in First Mortgages. No one Mortgage can be more than five per cent. of the total First Mortgages held.

All securities behind NATIONAL DEBENTURE Bonds are subject to the scrutiny of the Trustee, The Trusts and Guarantee Company, Limited, in addition to their examination by the officials of THE NATIONAL DEBENTURE CORPORATION, LIMITED.

THE NATIONAL DEBENTURE CORPORATION, LIMITED, is an Investment Trust, patterned after similar organizations in Britain. It is among the first of such institutions organized in Canada.

An Investment Trust, such as THE NATIONAL DEBENTURE CORPORATION, LIMITED, is an agency by which the combined funds of many investors, both in large and small amounts, are utilized to purchase such a wide variety of securities that safety of principal and interest is attained in diversification.

NATIONAL DEBENTURE Series "A" Twenty-Year Bonds are sold at 100 and bear interest at 5½ per cent.

NATIONAL DEBENTURE Bonds present a high yield, consistent with the maximum of safety.

Write to-day for our new booklet, "The Investment Trust". It will explain this safe, conservative investment.

For forty-three years, no bond recommended and sold by our organization has failed to pay principal and interest. 14
