Teas.

THE MONTREAL TEA COMPANY.

The whole business of the Montreal Tea Company

THE MONTREAL TEA COMPANY

Our Teas, which are now sold by the best merchants throughout Canada, have been pronounced to be superior and free from and artificial colouring or any other substances often used to improve the appearance of Tea. There are no qualities for sale at Grocery Stores. Many have been therefore led to the conclusion that Tea generally is coloured, but this is not the case with the Montreal Tea Company's teas. Strong in the belief that a fair trial only needed to convince the public of the superiority of our teas in point of strength, flavour, and economy, we have been induced to offer a package of our Tea to any family in Canada, on receipt of the price, with the carriage added, if they do not find our Tea to be the best they have ever tried, and the cheapest they can procure, they can return the package at our expense. We make no allowance to parties who may not wish to use our Tea after trying it, but we do not hesitate to say that we will be better to send money with the order. Where a family club would be too much for family use, by joining together they could send for four or five boxes, or ten or twelve pounds, when one address, carriage paid, and each box plainly marked with each party's own Tea. We warrant all our Tea we sell to give entire satisfaction. If any are not satisfied they can be returned at our expense.

BLACK TEA.

English Breakfast, Rich and Strong Tea, 45c, 50c; Fine Flavoured New Season do, 50c, 60c and 65c. Very Fine Full Flavoured do, 70c; Souchong, Low Rich Flavoured do, 50c. Very Fine do, do, 70c; Japan, Good do, 50c; Fine do, 60c, Very Fine, 80c, Finest, 75c.

GREEN TEA.

Young Hyson, 50c, 55c; Young Hyson, 50c, 60c, 65c, 70c; Fine do, 75c; Very Fine, 80c; Superfine and Very Choice do; Fine Gunpowder, 70c; Extra Superfine do $1.

Montreal, April, 1868.—To the Montreal Tea Company, 6 Hospital-street, Montreal: We believe with pleasure the large amount of Tea that we have forwarded for you to different parts of the Dominion, and we are glad to find your business so rapidly increasing. We presume your teas are giving general satisfaction, as out of the large amount forwarded, we have only had occasion to return one box which, we understand, was sent out through a mistake.

G. CONEY,
Manager Canadian Express Company.

Your teas are much superior to a similar equally cheap Tea sold by other Company.

An excellent Mixed Tea could be sent for 60c and 70c; very good for common purposes, 50c.

Beware of pedlars and runners using our name, or offering our Teas in small packages. Nothing less than a cattle sold.

Note the Address—The Montreal Tea Company Hospital-st., Montreal.

A. O. A. MARK.
TRADE & Co.

Our Teas and Coffees, after one year's trial have been pronounced by the most reliable men to be the finest quality, cheap and free from all poisonous substances, so often used in the tea trade. Being importers of the above named articles, and making them a specialty, we are in a position to give every one perfect satisfaction. The advantages afforded to every one are such as can only be obtained from our Continental merchants, as we sell our goods at a very small advance on cost. In order to give every one a chance to taste our Teas and Coffees, we have imported Tin Hermetic Canisters and Boxes, which will preserve the strength and flavour of the above named articles, and will contain 5, 10, 20, 25 lbs and upwards. We will pay the carriage on two 10 lb or four 5 lb Canisters, to the nearest Express or Steamboat Landing, on receipt of money, or money can be collected by Express or Steamboat Agent. When here in no Express or Steamboat Landing, we will send goods per Stage. Parties forming Clubs, and sending in an order for Tea or more Canisters, will receive one of their own choice in return at our expense.

CAUTION TO THE PUBL.

The remarkable success which has attended the introduction of the celebrated Concentrated Lye into Canadian market, by the subscriber, has excited the cupidity of an unprincipled firm in town (which has already been convicted of borrowing other people's brains) by a spurious imitation called Saponifier. To avoid disappointment, purchasers should be careful to ask for Harte's Concentrated Lye, which is sold by all respectable Druggists and Grocers in town and country. 783y

Dr. A. Trask's Magnetic Ointment Cures Croup or Hatties.—Dr. BINGHAM, of Utica, New York, says: "I have used Dr. A. Trask's Magnetic Ointment in my practice a number of years, and can say with pleasure I deem it one of the greatest discoveries of the age; for the cure of Inflammation of the Lungs, Inflammation of the Bowels, Inflammatory Rheumatism, and in Child-bed Fever, it operates with perfect success. In cases of Burns, Bruises, Frozen Limbs, it acts like a charm.

Dr. J. P. KENNEDY, of Chittenango, New York, says: "I have used them in several cases, and has not been found wanting. Its astonishing cures of Inflammation of the Lungs and Croup and the wonderful success in subduing the torturing pains of Rheumatism, and relieving Nervous Affections, entitle it to a high rank in the list of remedies for these complaints."

Dr. A. W. BELDING, of Knowlesville, New York, says: "I have used it in several cases of Special Irritation and for the worst cases of Piles, and sundry other complaints, and find it a superiore article, and well worthy the notice of all."

Purchasers should be sure and ask for Dr. R. Trask's Magnetic Ointment, and see that the words "A. TRASK'S MAGNETIC OINTMENT" are on the wrapper.

In the Spring time most persons are more or less the subjects of disease emanating from a low state of the blood. The causes are various, but it is only necessary to know that in order for the prompt purification of that fluid the patient should use FELLOWS' COMPOUND SYRUP of HYPOPHOSPHITES with full assurance of obtaining the desired results. This Syrup will also strengthen the organs of digestion, promote healthy assimilation, nourish the muscles, and renovate the nervous system.

We are enabled to speak with as much confidence in the cure of cases of this character uncomplicated with organic disease, as of the Spring rains prompting vegetation, or of the sun's rays being followed by light and heat. Persons then who wilfully avoid the use of this remedy, and perish from debility, may be chargeable with suicide.

It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Price 25 cents a bottle everywhere. Be sure to call for "MRS WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP." Having the fac-simile of "Curtis & Perkins" on the outside wrapper. All others are base imitations

BEECHER ON EARLY MARRIAGE.

From Plymouth Church Sermons.

At no after period, perhaps, in their life, do young men need the inspiration of virtuous love, and the sympathy of a companion in their self-denying toil, as when they first enter the battle for their own support. Early marriages are permanent moralities, and deferred marriages are temptations to wickedness. And yet every year it becomes more and more difficult, concurrent with the reigning ideas of society, for young men to enter upon that matrimonial state which is the proper guard of their virtue, as well as the source of their courage and enterprise. The battle of life is almost always at the beginning. There it is that a man needs wedlock. But a wicked and ridiculous public sentiment puts a man who is in society, or out of society, for that matter, largely on the ground of condition, and not of disposition and character. The man that has means wherewith he can visibly live amply, is in good society, as a general rule. The man that has virtue and sterling manliness, but has nothing withal external to show, is not usually considered in good society. Ambitious young men will not, therefore, marry until they can meet their expenses; but that is deferring for years and years the indispensable virtue. Society is bad where two cannot live cheaper than one; and young men are under bad influences who, when in the very morning of life, and better fitted than at any later period to grow together with one who is their equal and mate, are debarred from marrying through scores of years, from mere prudential considerations; and the heart and life are sacrificed to the pocket. They are tempted to substitute ambition for love, when at last, over the ashes and expiring embers of their early romance, they select their wife. It is said that men who wait till they are forty or forty-five years of age, select prudently. Alas for the wife who was not first a sweetheart! Prudence is good, but is prudence servant or queen?

Prudence is good; but what is prudence? It is the dry calculation of the head leagued with the pocket! Is there no prudence in taste, no prudence in the inspiration of a generous love? Is there no prudence in the faith by which, banded, two young persons go down into the struggle of life, saying, "Come weal, come woe, come storm, come calm; love is a match for circumstances, and we will be all to each other:" Woe be to that society in which the customs and manners of the times extend beyond the period of romance and affection the wedding. You have adjourned it out of Eden into the wilderness! The girl, next infected (and even women fall) with the public spirit, too often waits to be wooed by those who can place her again, in the very beginning of her wedded life, where she was when she was broken off as a branch from the parental tree. But a graft should always be willing to be a graft, and wait till it can make its own top by legitimate growing. And woe is the day when every girl says, "I will not marry until my husband in the beginning has as much as my father had at the end of his life." For she—what is she? Who was it that Jupiter won in a shower of gold? Whoever it was, that is the type. She who is brought into matrimony by house and land; she who marries for genteel wealth—she it is that Jupiter seduced by gold. For all wedlock is adulterous in which it is not the heart that inspires marriage. Noble is that young spirit which, seeing, and loving, and choosing, and silently biding her choice, is won and chosen, and giving herself freely, romantically, if you will, (God be praised for the romance) goes down to the level of her husband's nothingness and poverty, that she and he may, with willing hands, from the bottom build up their estate. Blessed is the woman who sees that in going down she is going up, and that it is the losing of life that saves it. Blessed is the woman who carries with her into married life all that she learned in the refinement of her father's family; who proves that she is a woman in this: that gentleness and praise and abundance, and luxury even, ministered to the better parts of her nature, and prepared her to go forth and minister earnestly and permanently in the midst of difficulties. Thousands there are who, when once they are called, and know their master—love—go cheerfully out with the young man and take part and lot with him. Oh, that young men would trust them more, and prove them better, and see if this is not so. How noble a thing it is to see the cultured, the polished, and the refined, go down to the very beginning of things, led by love, fed by love, and at last rewarded by love.

Live together alone, if you have to go into the desert for it, and feed on herbs! Abhor Sodom and Gomorrah— or boarding-houses! Men sometimes speak of the meagre and pinched fare. These are unworthy of notice. It is not these. It is that men learn self-indulgence there. Men learn there not to be householders. And all that various discipline, all that ministration of care, and all that drill of contrivance, all that social independence, all that subtle atmosphere, indescribable and unanalyzable, which belongs to the solitary household, they miss. No man and woman can make husband and wife, father and mother, and householders on the pattern of their fathers, who begin and continue their married life in this hot-bed style of existence. And yet they are unwilling to take a house that they can afford; and they cannot afford to take the house they fain would live in, because furniture is so dear, and virtue is cheap; because society requires a certain amount of appearance, you know; because it would not do to go to the outskirts of the town! A log cabin is better for young married people than the Fifth Avenue Hotel would be, if they had the whole of it for nothing! What you get for nothing is least valuable to you of anything. What you earn is all value. Under these influences, the whole of life is written in the wrong key. Men having started on the false principle, they do not get over it. They are perpetually tempted to overlive by their very affections. If there is anything that an honourable and sensible man's nature feels and cannot stand, it is the silent comparison, on the part of the wife, by a look even, of the way in which she did live, and the way in which she does live. How does this drive men into dishonesties? How does it drive them out of simplicity and out of bold willingness to live according to their circumstances? How does it teach them to live for other people's eyes and not for their own actual needs? How does it teach them to be more subject to vanity than love? Such life is hollow. Ostentation takes the place of sincerity, and so, ere long, a man is educated to be a rogue, and steals. And woman takes on unvirtue, because that pays the bill of extravagance quicker than anything else.

BREATH.

By Charles Kinsley.

What becomes of this breath which passes from your lips? Is it merely harmful, merely waste? God forbid! God has forbidden that anything should be merely harmful or merely waste in this so wise and well-made world. The carbonic acid which passes from your lips at every breath—ay, even that which oozes from the volcano crater when the eruption is past—is a precious boon to thousands of things of which you have daily need. Indeed, there is a sort of hint at physical truth in the old fairy tale of the girl, from whose lips as she spoke, fell pearls and diamonds; for the carbonic acid of your breath may help hereafter to make the pure carbonate of lime of a pearl, or the still purer carbon of a diamond. Nay, it may go (in such a world of transformations do we live) to make atoms of coal strata, which shall lie buried for ages beneath deep seas, shall be upheaved in continents which are yet unborn, and there burnt for the use of a future race of men, and resolved into their original elements.

Coal, wise men tell us, is, on the whole, breath and sunlight,—the breath of living creatures who have lived in the vast swamps and forests of some primeval world, and the sunlight which transmuted that breath into the leaves and stems of trees, magically locked up for ages, in that black stone, to become, when it is burnt at last, light and carbonic acid, as it was at first. For though you must not breathe your breath again, you may at least eat your breath, if you allow the sun to transmute it for you into vegetables; or you may enjoy its fragrance and its colour in the shape of a lily or a rose. When you walk in a sunlight garden, every word you speak, every breath you breathe, is feeding the plants and flowers around. The delicate surface of the green leaves absorbs the carbonic acid, and parts it into its elements, retaining the carbon to make woody fibre, and courteously returning you the oxygen to mingle with the fresh air, and be inhaled by your lungs once more. Thus do you feed the plants, just as the plants feed you, while the great life-giving sun feeds both; and the geranium standing in the sick child's window does not merely rejoice his eye and mind by its beauty and freshness, but repays honestly the trouble spent on it, absorbing the breath which the child needs not, and giving him the breath which he needs.

So are the services of all things constituted according to a divine and wonderful order, and knit together in mutual helpfulness. A fact to be remembered with hope and comfort, but also with awe and fear. For as in that which is above nature, so in nature itself; he that breaks one physical law is guilty of all. The whole universe, as it were, takes up arms against him; and all nature with her numberless and unseen powers is ready to avenge herself on him, and on his children after him, he knows not when or where. He, on the other hand, who obeys the laws of nature with his whole heart and mind will find all things working together to him for good. He is at peace with the physical universe. He is helped and befriended alike by the sun above his head and the dust beneath his feet; because he is obeying the will and mind of Him who made sun, and dust and all things, and who has given them a law which cannot be broken.

AN ACCIDENT FORETOLD IN A DREAM.

A few days ago a serious accident occurred in Bulmer village to a pic-nic party going to Castle Howard. The party made the journey in an omnibus, and it seems that the wife of one of the men hesitated to join the party, and tried to persuade her husband not to go, because she had dreamt a week before that they were in an omnibus and were upset on going through a village and greatly injured, fright awakening her. The man and his wife, however, did go, but on reaching Bulmer the woman became greatly excited. Not only, she remarked, was the omnibus that which she had seen in her dream, but the village was that in which the accident she dreamt of happened. The words were scarcely uttered when the omnibus upset, and a scene of great confusion resulted. Those on the outside were thrown to the ground with great violence: one man was rendered insensible by the omnibus falling upon him, and several sustained rather serious injuries. The woman to whom the accident was revealed beforehand was herself badly hurt, but her husband's was the worst case: he sustained a dislocation of an ankle. Medical aid was quickly procured, the sufferers were relieved, and afterwards conveyed to their homes. Every incident of the accident seems to have been pict
