HOBBIES.

Hobbies are, in the intellectual and moral world, what hobbies are supposed to be in the material: you may judge of a man's (intellectual or moral) wealth by the number he affords to keep. I myself keep a stable full of fifty; and this definition is the apple of the eye of one. It does not by any means express a commonly received position. Why is that, when everybody, commonly, is so much in the right? It happens in this way; one man's hobby bores all those among his neighbors who are not so lucky as to have its match. When people are bored they are unable to keep their judgments well in hand; they so m opinions without presience, and at random; in fact, they muddle. This it is that, in this matter, except when a man pronounces an opinion upon himself, there is no getting at truth and justice.

It so happens that Mrs. Stickleback—Mrs. Honor Stickleback, lady of Jeremiah Stickleback, keep myself, indeed at your service—Mrs. S. happens to have cherished, for the last two years, the noblest pair of piebald ponies—call them hobbies if you will. There is nobody upon earth by whom those ponies are understood and appreciated so completely as by Mrs. Stickleback; and they are maintained, let me add, wholly at her own expense, out of her private pouture. Let any feeling person judge how out of patience my dear lady was, when, some months ago, the house opposite ours, in Crotchet Place, was taken by a foreign person, Mrs. Indere la, who drives four cream colored—I was going to say mice. Since the turn-out first stood before our window, I have had, every day, mice for breakfast, mice for dinner, mice for tea. Were Mrs. Stickleback the owner of the creams, and Mrs. Inderella mistress of the piebalds, I know who would drive four-in-hand in passing state, and dish by the piebalds if she overtook them on the road with the pride of a woman who is mistress of their betters. Now, when the ladies meet, each with her team in front of her, so it has been well said by the bard—

O generous Muse
What kindling motives in their breasts do stir!

And yet the ponies are good ponies, the whole six of them.

Even so are the hobbies of our neighbors good hobbies; a great many are blind, and some are lame; none are short-winded. But, after allowing an extreme percentage for disease (and the diseases of hobbies are worth studying), there remains enough to stock the country with a sound and wholesome breed.

Now, let me drop the material side of the argument, which is mere figure of speech, to become intellectual and moral. I maintain that a man's hobbies are his spiritual vertebræ, that they compose the back bone and the marrow of his character. A man with a hobby or two, sleek and well kept, is well to do in his mind; is to that extent, although it may be in no other respect, mentally respectable. A man's hobby is the point upon which he is strong, and we respect strength. But it is more than that. Mrs. Stickleback, who derives her information from the lady's maid, knows the private affairs of most people living in our street. Let me then, profiting by her knowledge, put my case in the form of three or four examples.

As the attic windows and part of the roof at number seven Crotchet Place, were blown out into the road, only last Wednesday, that house is at present open to the dropping of a good deal of remark. Its master, Mr. Priestly Bumb, is a stock jobber; and, as we opine, from the number of anxious men, most of them young, who communicate their agitation to his knocker, he lends money at interest, and is much less warm in his heart than in his pocket. His whole manner of life is mean and he looks mean; he is fat and bald-headed, the bald expanse being all roof, none of it wall; his skull above his eyes slopes to a high point in the bump of veneration (which is large in him) so that I should be disposed, if I might, to call him gable headed. He has pillows of fat under his sly little eyes, very large ears, a massive jaw, and dewlaps. This man is very warlike in his conversation: Russian acquisitiveness scandalizes him. The Russian seizure of material guarantees he regards as infamous. As X. Y. Z., he has sent to the Chancellor of the Exchequer, calling it censcience money, a large balance of income tax, for property that had not been accounted for in former years. He pays up now to the uttermost mite, and his hobby is to bring the powers of chemistry to bear, in some terrific way, against the public enemy. I have heard him, at a dinner party, argue very well to prove that if we can send messengers by lightning from one part of the world to another, there is no reason why we should not be able, in a few years, by a new arrangement of electric wires, to send a complete thunderstorm to any part of Europe. Already he is sure that if he had enough wire provided him by Government, to reach from Crotchet Place to St. Petersburgh, that if the Czar would only stand on a glass stool at the other end, and put his head near to a jar provided for the purpose, he could sit in his own parlor and destroy the tyrant. He believes that a Powder Plot could easily be organized by the secret addition of a few branches to the existing wires of the electric telegraph, which he would have carried by some conspirators residing in the Russian capital, by secret passages, into a barrel of gunpowder, placed under the imperial throne. The Czar might then at any time be blown up in the presence of his court and people. Our neighbor grants us, however, that these are crotchets upon which—as there are difficulties in the way of their satisfaction—he is not so unpractical as to dwell. What he thinks can be done, and what he is endeavoring to find out the right way of doing, is one of those simple things about which everybody when he hears of it, wonders that it had not long since occurred to himself. It is the scuttling of Constradt and destruction of St. Petersburgh, by means of an artificial earthquake. He is always trying to make earthquakes, and that is his hobby. Before poor Cocking fell a victim to his hobby that parachutes ought to be built bottom upwards, he satisfied his mind by witnessing the descent of a model of his model—something smaller than a lady's bonnet—from the top of the monument. P. B. produces model earthquakes on a larger scale. He has removed his servants' beds into the back drawing room and parlor, and has filled the whole range of his attics with a bed of earth. Earthquakes on the ground floor, still more at the basement, would be liable to bring the house about his ears. Up stairs, he can make them in comparative security. His design is, when the recipe is found, to send out the ingredients for a large earthquake by the Baltic fleet. He means to present his secret to the country, and charge only cost price for his chemicals. But, it will be asked, what do I make of this man Bomb for the advantage of my theory? A despicable fellow, who preys on the ruin of his neighbors, and whose hobby is to discover how he may achieve a ruin on the largest scale. So far as he goes, I say, my case is proved by him. He has no sign of a moral nature, and his intellectual employments, apart from the chemical researches, are all of the very basest. His hobby alone, though utterly absurd in itself, saves him from contempt. In obedience to that, he has labored to cultivate his stupid brain; has read volumes of physical geography and experimental science; has dipped for earthquakes into books of travel. If he knows anything worth knowing, it is to his hobby that he owes his information. This is the real source of what little respect he earns for himself fairly in society.

which was gotten up by the Ladies of the city, for the purpose of uniting their efforts with those of the gentlemen of the Building Committee of St. Patrick's church, so devoted in their task, in order to swell the funds in the exchequer necessary to further the progress of the works of this fine edifice, and we feel quite confident of its success, knowing that the Irish Ladies, (and we must not omit the Scotch, as well as ladies of other nationalities), have so zealously taken it in hand, and that we feel also confident that there is no lady in whose veins there is one drop of pure celtic blood, but will pride herself in being, so far as her means will allow, instrumental in in helping to forward the works of a building now in course of erection to the glory of the Most High, under the invocation of St. Patrick; and may rest assured that thereby will draw down upon herself and family the blessing of the Supreme Being, and also transmit to posterity, a lasting monument to the zeal and piety of the Catholic Ladies of Ottawa.

SPECIAL NOTICES

TWO QUESTIONS EASILY ANSWERED.—Why should men wear beards? Because they are a great protection to the throat and lungs, and add much to their personal appearance. Why should we use "Byron's Pulmonic Wafers?" Because when used for coughs, colds, tickling in the throat, hoarseness, &c., they act like a charm. Ministers and Lawyers use them, physicians recommend them, and singers and public speakers say they are the very best medicine in existence for the cure of such complaints. Sold by all medicine dealers at 25 cents per box.

RIGHT AND WRONG.—It is wrong to jest with your wife upon a subject in which there is danger of wounding her feelings, and it is wrong to speak of great virtues in another man's wife, to remind your own of fault; but it is not wrong after trying the "Canadian Pain Destroyer" and feeling its wonderful effects, to recommend it to your neighbors for the cure of rheumatism, neuralgia, cramps, cholic, &c., it has no equal. Cure of Bronchitis

Smithfield.

J. C. Chamberlain, Esq.—This is to certify that about three years ago I became afflicted with Bronchitis, which lasted about eighteen months. I was so afflicted for the want of breath that it was very difficult for me to speak, and in the night time frequently throwing the clothes off and raising in the bed to keep from strangling. I tried three of the most eminent physicians in the County of Northumberland for about a year, without receiving any benefit, in fact I continued getting worse all the time. At last I was advised to try the Great Snoshoneer Remedy. I bought a bottle and took it and when it was about finished I began to feel a little better. I continued to use it until I had taken three bottles, when, to my satisfaction, I found that I was as well as ever I had been previous to my illness and have been so ever since.

WONDERFUL CURE OF LUNG DISEASE

BROCKLYN, April 5th, 1870.

J C Chamberlain, Esq. This is to certi that my wife was very low with Lung Disease. The Doctor had given her up. He said her lungs were tubercled, and medicine could not help her. As a last resort I purchased a bottle of the Great Shoshonees Remedy. At the expiration of two days her symptoms were decidedly better. She continued to improve so rapidly that by the time she had taken one bottle she was able to sit up. By the continuance of it she was perfectly restored to health.

You may publish the facts for the benefit of those similarly afflicted.

Episcopal Methodist Minister.

Proclaim the Glad Tidings

That the GREAT SHOSHONEE REMEDY AND PILLS, of the eminent Indian Medicine Man, Doctor LEWIS JOSEPHUS, of the Great Tribe of Shoshonees, British Columbia, is working the most marvellous and astonishing Cures the World has ever heard of. Never in the annals of Canadian Medical History has such success attended the introduction of any medicine heretofore.

WHY?

Simply because the numerous valuable active medicinal vegetable ingredients, (some of which we will mention, such as the Extracts of Wild Cherry Bark, Podophyllum, Juniper, Quassia, Smartweed, Dandelion, Hyoscyamus, Compound Extract of Colocynth, Jalap, Soco, trine Aloes, Capsicum, &c., &c.) which enter into the composition of the combined medicine, are such and so harmoniously classified and compounded, that it is made the most searching curative in the known world, and cannot help but act on the system in a very satisfactory and desirable manner. No matter what your ailment may be, or of how long standing, it will find the spot and astonish you by the rapid manner in which you are restored to perfect health and full vigor.

This Medicine is pleasant and safe to take, and is warranted, and may positively be relied upon to make a permanent cure of all diseases of the Throat, Lungs, Liver, Kidneys Digestive Organs, &c. &c., as well as Scrofula the various Skin Diseases, Humors, and all diseases arising from Impurity of the Blood, excepting the Third Stage of Consumption. Further information, with full directions for using the Great Shoshonees Remedy & Pills, and containing Testimonials and Certificates of Cures, can be obtained by securing the Trestise, the Hand Book, or the Almanac and Circulars from any respectable druggist in the Dominion—free.
