Dominion Parliament,

First Session Third Parliament.

THE SENATE.

Continued.

MONDAY, MAY, 25th.

Hon. Mr. VIDAL argued there was no analogy between the members of the Legislative Council, years ago, legislating in a way to exclude themselves from Parliament, and an outside body ruling them out, and also, that not one single reason had been given for the change proposed by the bill, except that the Government desired to have control of the Board. He held that the qualifications required for heads of corporations were often very different from those required in representatives of those bodies elsewhere. He presumed, neither the Corn Exchange nor the Board of Trade had been consulted, nor notified in regard to this measure. He took a very decided objection then to the principle of the bill, whose preamble was not proved. He thought it should be thrown out.

Hon. Mr. PENNY said he was very much surprised at some of the objections to this bill, as to legislating out of office, the same was done as regards Trinity House, by the bill of last year, which legislated out of existence the Harbor of Montreal, the lights on the river, and such other matters, concerning the navigation, were looked after. He went on to argue in reply to other objections that this was a public bill to all intents and purposes since Montreal harbor derived its revenue from the whole country. Every bale of goods sent to Upper Canada was taxed for the improvement of that harbor. At first, the Board consisted of men nominated by the Government, and it never gave more satisfaction. (Hear, hear.) They converted Lake St. Peter from a three hundred ton to a one thousand-ton channel, but were all dismissed in one day by a notice in the Gazette. This was the way the hon. gentlemen on the Opposition benches dealt with vested rights. When the change took place, moreover, this very principle of ex-officio representation on the Board was the one adopted. Up to last August the members of the Board were ex-officio members. It was the Mayor of the city and the Presidents of other corporations who represented them; so this elective principle was quite a new thing. For his own part he was rather in favour of it, and if he had drawn the bill, would have introduced the principle. His hon. friend (Mr. Vidal) had stated there was no complaint of the present Board, but the fact in connection with the giving out of the contracts for the dredges, should convince him of his error. Tenderers had come down materially in their second offers, while the Board had given out contracts at prices considerably higher than they could have got the work done for by other parties. All this proved the interest the country generally had in the proper administration of the affairs of the Harbor.

Hon. Mr. VIDAL said he did not affirm there had been no complaints, but that in the proceedings taken here, none were stated.

Hon. Mr. PENNY said he referred to this matter, not to find fault with what the Commissioners did, but to show what the Dominion had to gain or lose by a improper or proper constitution of the Board. Though himself in favor of the elective system, he would be willing to leave the matter in the hands of the Government, who, he contended should possess the control, as they were responsible for the public expenditure. He argued that some of the members had no inherent rights to affect, and that the Board was to some extent a consultative body which the bill designed should give the Government advice. The measure took away nobody's rights.

Hon. Mr. SCOTT—We are just going back to the system previously and long in force. The hon. gentleman in opposition made the change.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL—Of course we made the change in the interest of the advancement of the elective principle; we introduced it last year.

Hon. Mr. SCOTT—Under the old act, also, Government had the control.

Hon. Mr CAMPBELL—Not under the elective principle.

Hon. Mr. RYAN expressed regret at the reference to the changes against the Commissioners, which had been much discussed and very well cleared up by the Montreal papers. He denied some of the changes brought against them, including that of imposing duties to the amount of 60 per cent on the inhabitants of Ontario, and asserted, as regards the action they had taken, that in the end they had reached a better result than could have been come to in any other way. Without going back to the accusations against the Commissioners, whether elective or nominative, he held that the business of the past had been most admirably conducted. (Hear, hear.) Its management had reflected credit not only on Montreal, but on the trade of the country in general; and he knew that the Harbour bonds were at a considerable premium, showing that the administration of the affairs of the harbour must have been very good and satisfactory indeed. He did not believe the trade of the country, that passed through Montreal, would be benefited by the change proposed by the Government, which was a retrograde change. The merchants who had most interest in the conservation of this harbour, having obtained the privilege of electing their representatives—a step in advance—were now to be put back, the Government proposing, because some of the Commissioners were not acceptable to them, to change the elective system, and replace these gentlemen by ex officio members the residents of the Corporations. The practical effect upon the Board of Trade and Corn Exchange would be to make them a little political arena, bodies which should devote themselves exclusively to the interests of trade, apart from politics. If the Government particularly wished for a favourite on the Harbour Commission, they would, of course, set about canvassing to secure his election as President of either Corporation. He did not think the Government would gain much in the opinion of the intelligent and independent people of Montreal, by this measure, for he had received many remonstrances from merchants, on the subject. He did not care what Government was in power, local works were best managed by the people on the spot, if upright and sensible. While determined to vote against the first three clauses of the bill, and the seventh, which was connected with them, he was quite willing to let the fourth stand, which enabled the Commissioners to pay their Chairman, although the first merchants in Montreal had worked on that Board as long as it had been a Board, which was nearly 40 years, without any pay whatever. This was a new feature undoubtedly. He did not mean to say it was not proper, but it opened another way of dispensing a little patronage. (Hear, hear, and oh, oh!) The other clauses of the bill were very good. But instead of restricting the elective principle, there were other classes, entitled to votes for the Commissioners, to whom it should be extended. He was sorry to say no provision had been made for them in the bill—he meant the rate payers, who belonged neither to the Corn Exchange nor Board of Trade, and their numbers were very considerable.

Hon. Mr. SCOTT—They are represented by the Mayor.

Hon. Mr. RYAN concluded by suggesting, with the other amendments the addition of a clause, giving Montreal importers and exporters, and all who contributed directly to any considerable extent to the revenue of the Commission, the right of electing representatives at the Board.

Hon. Mr. SCOTT, after a few words of reply, moved the adoption of the first clause.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL repeated that he was opposed to it, and would ask for the question.

A division then took place: contents 15; non-contents, 14.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL said Mr. Lacoste had not voted, when Mr. SCOTT argued the matter should be considered decided.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL insisted upon the hon. gentleman's vote being taken.

Hon. Mr. SCOTT protested against a second division.

At length, the Clerk obtained from Mr. Lacoste the reply that he would vote against the first clause. There was then a tie, but the Chairman, Mr. Kaulbach, also cast his vote with the non-contents, defeating it.

The Committee then rose and reported progress, Ministers stating they would consult their colleagues with regard to the amendments.

ALBION MINES SAVINGS BANK.

Hon. Mr. HAMILTON reported from the Banking Committee a bill respecting the Albion Mines Savings Bank, and moved that it be not proceeded with.

Hon. Mr. WILMOT moved that the bill be read a third time. He explained the character of the bill, which was to enable the miners, who were mostly Scotch, to deposit their small savings in this bank.

After some remarks from Mr. Campbell, who opposed the bill.

Hon. Mr. PENNY explained the difference between the savings banks here and in the old country, the latter being managed by the Government, and therefore being perfectly secure, while the former were limited liability companies; and the Scotch miners would invest their savings in this bank under the mistaken notion of its security.

The House adjourned for an hour at 2 o'clock.

AFTER RECESS.

The SPEAKER resumed the chair at 3 p.m.

The following, among other bills, from the Commons were also reported from the Banking Committee, read a third time and passed:

To enable the Montreal and Ottawa Colonization Company to build a bridge over the Ottawa River.

The Colonial Building Investment Association bill.

The Lumber Exchange of St. John, New Brunswick bill.

The International Express Company's bill with amendments.

BILLS NOT DISTRIBUTED.

Hon. Mr. WILMOT objected to all these bills that they had passed through Committee without copies of them being distributed to the members. He had nothing to say, however, against the bills themselves.

FREE POSTAL DELIVERY.

Hon. Mr. READ enquired whether the returns as to the localities where letters were delivered free, which he had asked for in the early part of the session, had been brought down.

Hon. Mr. LETELLIER DE ST. JUST said that the Post Office Department had not been able to prepare the returns in time, but he believed Halifax was the only place where this occurred.

Hon. Mr. DEVER considered it very unfair that this boon should be extended to Halifax and not to St. John.

The matter then dropped.

PARLIAMENTARY PRINTING.

On the motion of Hon. Mr. READ the eighth report of the Joint Committee on Printing was adopted.

INSPECTION OF STAPLE ARTICLES.

The House then went into Committee
