Doubling the Arguments for Saving

ALL that can be said in favor of opening a savings account in the Standard Bank may be repeated with greater emphasis as regards a joint savings account. Joint accounts are primarily for convenience of depositors, but where two persons are bound together by common interests, the moral as well as the practical value of working together, planning their financial betterment with the aid of a joint bank account is clearly evident. The Standard Bank solicits your joint savings account.

Mr. Johnston Cullen Died Died on Thursday Last

Mr. Johnston Cullen, an old resident of Artemesia, died on Thursday last, Feb. 17, at his late residence on the east back line, at the age of 88 years.: He was born in the County of Fermanagh, Ireland, in 1843, and came to Canada at the age of three years with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Cullen. They settled in the older settlements and later on a farm on the west back line, a short distance from the village of Flesherton. About 59 years ago he married Jane Marshall, who lived half a mile east of Flesherton, and took up farming on what is known as the Adams farm, a short distance west of Flesherton.

Some fifty years ago he bought the late John Osborne farm on the east back line, two miles from Flesherton, on which he resided at the time of his death. His wife died Aug. 14, 1919.

The brothers and sisters of his first family were: Rev. Thomas Cullen, who died in Toronto; William in Calgary; Mrs. Thomas Wallace, in Orangeville; one sister, Mrs. Lewis, residing at Mono Mills. His mother died when he was about three years old, and his father married again. In this family there were James, Andrew, Christopher, and Mary, who died some years ago. John and Arthur are still living.

Mr. Cullen was a member of Flesherton Methodist church. Rev. Dudgeon, of Port Credit, a former pastor, conducted the funeral service on Monday, assisted by the Rev. Joseph Harrower. He was survived by six sons and four daughters, namely, James, Robert, William, Albert, Charles and Minnie, at home; Thomas of Toronto, Mrs. John Beaton of Markdale, Mrs. John J. Little of Proton, and Mrs. Andrew Walker of Chesley. There are nine grandchildren. The family were all present at the funeral. The pallbearers were Messrs. Wm. J. Talbot, Samuel McMullen, Thomas Henry, Robert Waller, Mark Stewart and Henry Down. The flower bearers were Messrs. John Stewart, Richard Bentham, Wm. Meads and Robert Fisher. Friends from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Brett, Orangeville; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cullen, Mr. Calvin Lewis and Miss Allie Little of Toronto. The floral tributes were: A pillow from the family, spray from Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cullen, Brett and Lewis families, sheaf from Dr. T. Cullen, and sisters.

FRAUD WAS COMMITTED

A fraud was committed at the skating rink recently that would likely get the parties implicated in trouble. An American small cent had been coated over with silver nitrate and to some extent without close attention taken to it resembled a ten cent piece. It was presented at the wicket and in the rush was not noticed to be a fraud. It would be a serious business for the perpetrator if caught.

Bert Jamieson Receives Large Sum for Claims Staked Before War

Interwoven with the discovery of a new mining field up in the Kamiskotia country in Northern Ontario, which is expected to be worth millions of dollars, is an absorbing story of a Canadian soldier's fight for health, combined with the tenacious faith of his prospector brother in that part of the country, states the Toronto Star in an article on Bert. Jamieson, son of Mrs. Mary Jamieson of Flesherton. As a substantial background there is the financial confidence of Noah Timmins, who has bought an option and is conducting testing operations.

The finding of copper, gold, zinc and silver lead ore within 17 miles of Timmins will be called the "Jamieson discovery."

Born on a farm just outside of Flesehrton, Ontario, George Jamieson, the elder of the two brothers, made his way up into the northern portions of Ontario back in 1906 and was in the gold rush of 1907. A few years later he was joined by his brother, Bert. The pair prospected together, and the lure of Kamiskotia country seized upon them. A faith that there were exceptional mineral values in this district could hot be shaken even when the district was combed over in 1920 and passed up by seasoned gold prospectors.

Went to the War

With the outbreak of the war in 1914 the younger brother, Bert, "joined up" with the Algonquin Rifles, which was merged with the 15th Battallion under Col. John A. Currie, He was a poison gas casualty at St. Julien. Sent home to die, he landed in Canada in September of 1915 more helpless than a little child. The former husky lad, over six feet tall, who had ranged the wilderness of the northern country, had to be carried. His lungs were nearly gone, but inherited Irish spirit aided him and as soon as he was able to leave the military hospital he made his way to his brother at their camp in the Kamiskotia country to resume the rugged outdoor life of the Ontario prospector in a brave fight for renewed health and strength.

Fought a Grim Battle

Following the course of treatment laid down by the hospital authorities, he set his objective and each day, weather permitting, made his journey as exercise. Week by week the distance was increased, some days it was easy, other days it was an agony and a grim battle that at times hardly seemed worth the effort. Behind the camp was a hill, from which the beauty of the surrounding country could be viewed. Off to one side was Lake Kamiskotia. Across and beyond the lake was outcropping of rock that lifted its head above the surrounding scenery. This was what the brothers called the 'rotten sulphide dyke.' It was long before he had strength to make the journey there, but he made it eventually, something seeming to draw him towards the place, and he staked claims there.

It was necessary for him to make frequen visits to Toronto for hospital treatments. He secured a clerical situation in the city, so as to be able to take full advantage of the treatments and the doctors' advice. A disability patient drawing pension from the government, he was allowed extra holidays. These were usually spent in the north country.

In 1926 his brother, George, went to the Red Lake district, but did not stake any claims, returning into the Kamiskotia district in time to meet Bert. The "dyke" was visited once more, a pot shot was fired and mineral turned up on the claims that had been staked out by the invalid, who had marked them out years before and had spent his holidays and spare money in getting the government regulation work done.

Samples were brought in and the assays showed 41 per cent. zinc, 14.44 per cent. lead, 38 ounces of silver, and $14.40 worth of gold to the ton of rock. George Jamieson had barely time to stake out seven claims before the rush led by Alex. Cadman and Pete Hackett from the Hollinger arrived and staked out 27 claims.

BERT JAMIESON

An option has been sold to Noah Timmins for the reported sum of $250,000 for the copper-gold mine, plus a royalty of 10 per cent. on all ore taken out. The Jamieson brothers are holding two other mining properties in the district, one of which contains ore, also a silver-lead mine, as well as a gold mine, all within this area," declared Bert. Jamieson.

"I am given to understand from the showing made with the diamond drils that exrerts believe there is over nine millions of ore in sght," he sad, "This should give the town of Timmins a new lease of life."

Plenty of Power.

"You pass a power station on the way to the property," he said when asked as to what electrical current was available. "From the top of the hill behind one of our mines you can see the Northern Canada power line. Then the Sturgeon Falls power line, which runs for ninety miles through the bush, is just a few miles away. They are drilling at the present time, and until we get the assay of the lower levels there is no use getting excited."

In recent years life has handed out to Bert Jamieson a good many bumps and he said that he was not going to get all worked up over this luck proposition. By the end of next June he hopes to see the ore being handled at the mill. If it peters out, he says, he has a situation and his pension, and he has learned that he must not worry. Besides, his health has been regained to a large extent and he considers that as equivalent to great wealth.

John R. Montgomery, well-known and respected live stock shipper and dealer of Dundalk, passed away early Monday morning following a short illness. He was in business in Dundalk for nearly 38 years. He is survived by two daughters and two sons. The funeral will be held on February 23 to Ventry cemetery.
