NOT A "BOB" CAT.

Wildcats are not often seen in this section of Ontario. However, one bobbed up the other day on the 18th Con., Proton, which gave a bunch of sports a real interesting "encounter." It appears that G. McCannel, while walking along the 18th early Wednesday morning of last week noticed lying on the road ahead of him what he thought at first was a fox or coon. As he approached within some rods of it the animal leisurely got up and walked into the swamp at the side of the road. He hurried to Jack Haw's house where there is always plenty of guns and ammunition ready for any sporting game. There was no time lost in phoning over to Wilfred Black and he soon came with gun and hound. Together with Jack and Ed. Haw, the party got ontop the track and hadn't to follow in the swamp long till they came up with their game sitting quietly on the branch of a tree about ten feet up. They weren't long in finding out that the animal was a wildcat, for when it got a move on farther up the tree its action was said to be quick as "greased lightning." To add to the excitement, Ed. Haw drew a bead on the game and brought it to the ground with a charge of shot. Then there was a dog and cat fight in which the dog was outclassed by the wounded cat. The cat got the charge of shot in the eyes and was blinded, otherwise it was very much alive and put up a great fight for its life. Every fellow had a crack at it with butt of gun or club, at the same time keeping out of range of the sharp claws. The cat had to finally give up the unequal struggle, under handicap of blindness.

It was a long-tailed wildcat and measured three and a half feet, fat and in good condition. It is supposed to have been young, probably last season's kitten.—Dundalk Herald.

RAN PENCIL INTO CHEEK

While Miss Ethel Daley was returning home on Tuesday of last week from her lessons in stenography at Miss Sinclair's residence, she slipped on the icy pavement and a sharp-pointed pencil carried in her hand entered her upper lip and penetrated the interior of the cheek in such a manner that it almost protruded near the right eye. As the lead on the pencil broke and was left embedded in the flesh, the wound later began to swell in such a manner as to necessitate a trip to the doctor's the following day, when much probing was required to successfully remove the substance. Although now fully recovered from the mishap, she had for a time a rather painful and serious time. -- Walkerton Hearld-Times.
