THEY GOT HIS GOAT

A newly wedded couple returned to town one evening last week. Being suspicious that his reception would be exceedingly cordial, the groom descended from the "omnibus" at the outskirts of the town and scouted around a few back streets and in at the back door of home, sweet home, where the bride had already arrived. But an eagle-eyed young banker, who is expert at discovering "mistakes," spotted him and reported at head quarters of he bugle brigade. In a short time about 90 per cent. of the jealous boys and girls of the town congregulated and proceeded to play on tin pans, muskets and vocalions, making a most unearthly racket. The groom took it all in good part, (he had been guilty himself of like persuasion in past years) threw up his hand and in the words of that immortal folk song, "Come all ye lads and lasses", entertained everybody to ice cream, and all the boys and girls voted him a mighty good fellow—which he is. An effort had been made to introduce a goat to his bedroom, but the window was too high, the boys too weak, or the goat too strong, and this part of the porgrame fell through. But judging by the treats handed out, the bunch of merrymakers got the bridgroom's goat, all right, and a lot of village boys and girls were overflowing with joy the following day.

If the next war is to be fought in the air it may draw in some of our politicians. They are up there most of the time.

A lot of people who start out with the idea that two can live as cheaply as one get little chance to test the theory—they soon have to figure out how three or four can live.

A BLACKBIRD CAMPAIGN

Having noticed a flock of blackbirds amusing themselves in picking the eyes out of a young robin, a Walkertonian was so horrified at this brutal pastime that he began offering 5c. apiece for every dead blackbird that was brought to him. This started such a campaign amongst the boys here last year that many windows were broken and numerous narrow escapes were recorded amongst householders from the missiles that were flying through the ether in the frantic efforts of the children to increase their bank accounts. As a get-rich-quick scheme it proved a dismal failure, especially to the parents. One lad in seeking to cop off the 5 cents reward shied a rock at a black-bird and shattered a $15 window, which his father was later obliged to settle for. The kiddies were opening the 1927 campaign last week with their slingshots and catapults, when Chief Ferguson hove in sight and temporarily stopped the crusade against the black rascals. We understand that the man giving the reward has been asked to withdraw the offer, but whether he could be compelled to desist is a cat of another color.—Bruce Hearld Times.

You may not get all that is coming to you in this world—but look out for the next.
