A YOUNG HOSTESS.

A wonderful Easter holiday is being enjoyed by 6-year-old Jim Welsh of the Children's Shelter, Owen Sound, at the Eugenia farm of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gorley. The little lad is the guest of their niece, Miss Irene Martin, who conceived the idea of giving one of the kiddies from the city an outing, and upon her aunt and uncle giving their consent, shewrote Mr. Trout, who was willing to make the experiment.

Irene is a little lady to whom the giving of pleasure to a younger child is one of the chief joys of life. Jim is finding the farm life a continual round of wonderment from dawn to dark—and has an interest in the way the hens and other live stock take their nourishment.

The original hospitality of Miss Irene is one that other great hearts might well emulate—and we are sure James Welsh will have a week's ex-experience that will turn the other "fellahs" green with envy when her uncle delivers him again to the kindly care of the Shelter at Owen Sound.

IN MEMORIAM

CARSON—In loving memory of my dear sister, Annie Carson, who passed away one year ago, April 23, 1926.

Not a murmur, not a sigh,
Passed her lips as death drew nigh
As she lived, so she died,
Peaceful, loving, satisfied.

—Sister Maggie.

Widow and Widowers' Special

A short time ago I promised to put on a special for the people of Flesherton alone, and upon giving it considerable thought happened to think of a verse in the Good Book which says that it is not good for man to live alone, and I thought if it was not good for man why it would also apply to the ladies, so I am going to offer a little encouragement to these two classes of people in our village in the matrimony line by offering free to the first widow or widower residing in Flesherton getting married before Aug. 1, 1927, a fine Leather Rocker. ....

This offer is only good until Aug. 1st, which I think will be plenty of time for experienced hands to put a deal of this kind through, and should both parties reside in Flesherton, I will donate one chair to each party.

Fertab Pills for flowers, to promote bloom, 25c pkg. Fertilizer in 1-lb pkg., used by the Dale Estate to rush flowers and garden plants along; gives excellent results, 25c pkg.

Furniture Polish, at this season of the year, is needed to brighten up odd scratched furniture; per bottle, 25c.
