WRONG IMPRESSIONS

At the close of the recent tour of the editors and publishers from Britain, one of the members of the party stated that he had learned next to nothing about how Canadians lived and worked. His actual contact with the industrial and agricultural life of the country had been confined to visits to an elevator, the Prince of Wales ranch, a packing plant and a winery. His one most lasting impression of Canada was the notion that Canadians lived on a steady diet of roast chicken. The organizer of the tour of visitors from other countries should change the method of entertainment and include on the program visits of several days duration to various farming or mining districts to learn how the citizens live while laboring.

The menu of the average home would not include roast chicken at every meal, but would consist of the plainer foods that assist very materially in building a physique to enable him to withstand the rigorous duties of farming, mining or general laboring.

No doubt there are scores of homes throughout the Dominion that would be delighted to entertain these guests while in our midst, and show genuine hospitality, not obtainable in the cities where after-dinner speeches are inflicted, but are soon forgotten by the visitors—the actual intermingling with their hosts giving a more lasting impression.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Italian government has resolved to tax bachelors all right; but why not include flappers?

• • •

According to Punch, British flappers have been put on their mettle by a fastidious designer who asserts that "The skirt as now worn has reached the utmost limit of abbreviation possible. Wait patiently until some of them come through a deluge of fall rain!

• • •

In July last N. Howard, of Nassagaweya Township, was fined $10 and costs totalling $21.25 for shooting on Sunday. When it was learned that Mr. Howard was protecting his chickens from crows the case was reported to Queen's Park, and Mr. Howard received back the amount of the fine in full.

• • •

After 28 years as editor and proprietor of the Tara Leader, Mr. H. A. VanDusen has disposed of the job office and subscription list to his son, Mr. C. N. VanDusen. The Leader is one of the brightest journals coming into this office and it is wth regret that we learn of Mr. VanDusen's departure from the journalistic field but we also welcome his son as an editor in the Fourth Estate.

Motorists now know that whiskey and gasoline do not mix, many magistrates having declared their intention to send every man driving a car to jail for an exemplary period. The magistrates will also have to deal with other offenders. One is the man who persists in using glaring headlights, placing in jeopardy the careful autoist past whom he generally drives at breakneck speed; another is the road hog, who crowds a fellow traveller either into the ditch or so near to it that the lives of his passengers are imperilled. And another is the speed fiend, who, whether on the level highway or going up or down hill, whether meeting cars or endeavoring to pass other vehicles along at top speed, often being beyond the legal limit. With such men possessing permits, is it any wonder that fatalities are of daily and sometimes hourly occurrences?

The village of Elmvale after considerable controversy is installing a system of waterworks. The cost will be about $30,000. Laying mains is now under way.

The announcement is made that the Warren Paving Co., who have been doing the paving on the Provincial Highway from Primrose to Shelburne and the street paving in Shelburne, have been given the contract of paving the provincial highway from Shelburne to Melancthon, the work to proceed forthwith.

Praise, when it is sincere, is good for the human race. Wise people know that a carrot dangling before the nose of a donkey is a much better incentive to the speed than a whip on its back, and in that characteristic we all resemble the donkey. Judicious praise breeds self respect and is therefore, one of the greatest aids in training children. Though the praise of their elders they learn to take pride in their work, in their appearance and in themselves. Nations being just aggregates of individuals, also enjoy a taste of taffy and are stimulated by fairly generous doses of this agreeable confection.
