Presentation To Dr. Turnbull

Dr. and Mrs. Turnbull and baby left Flesherton Thursday last, after bidding farewell to their many friends. Prior to his departure the Doctor was waited upon by a delegation of leading townspeople, headed by Mr. F. H. W. Hickling, and presented with valuable souvenirs — a beautiful Masonic signet ring and a diamond tie pin, and in making the presentation, Mr. Hickling referred in laudatory terms to the standing of Dr. Turnbull, not only as a professional man, but as a citizen who invariably lent his assistance to every movement in the community for its welfare. He assured the doctor that the best wishes of the people of Flesherton and district went with him and his family to his new sphere of labor for the government of Canada. The doctor, he added, would have a warm welcome here at any time when he returned to Canada. Dr. Turnbull feelingly acknowledged the gifts, the kind words of Mr. Hickling, and the many kindnesses that had been extended to him since he came to Flesherton. He closed with a warm commendation of his successor. Dr. Lively, he was sure, would commend himself to the community whom he had already begun to serve. Dr. and Mrs. Turnbull are now visiting at the doctor's parental home in Haldimand County. They expect to leave for Great Brit-

Priceville Fair Hard Hit

One of the hardest hit fairs this year was that of the Priceville Agricultural Society held on Thursday and Friday of last week. Rain came in floods Thursday night and kept on Friday morning at intervals. Rain was not falling in the afternoon, but the weather was theatening and the crowds did not brave the weather to attend. The show in the hall was excellent and of fine quality. The cattle exhibit was the best we have seen at a fair for some time, more especially in the grade classes. Some excellent Herefords were in attendance. The horse classes were not very largely filled.

The concert at night was one of the bestt hat has ever been given at Priceville. The entertainers were Alice Dunbar, comediene; Jean Anderson, soloist and Agnes Munro, entertainer. The Campbell orchestra of Hanover supplied music both afternoon and evening.

We understand that the gate receipts in the afternoon amounte to about $55, while the receipts at the concert went to the hig mark of $115.

CHICAGO TRIP

We reached Chicago on a Saturday afternoon and remained there until the following Wednesday evening. During that time we saw the best that the Windy City had to offer us such as the Field museum, probably the finest museum on this continent; the beautiful parks and the wonderful sky-scraper buildings; Michigan avenue, with its sidewalk 35 feet wide; the lift locks over the river which should run into Lake Michigan, but which owing to the pilfering instincts of Chicagoans, is running the other way to join the waters of the Mississippi, and helping to lower our upper lake levels.

It is dificult to believe that Chicago has a population equal to one-third of that of Canada, or three million but when one realizes that some of the huge sky-scraping apartment houses shelter 100 to 200 families, and that the city proper is 25 miles across, there is not so much difficulty in granting the contention.

Lincoln Park is one of the largest show places in Chicago. We believe we are justified in stating that in this park housed in proper shelter, are thousands of the wild denizens of the forest, including birds and animals, specimens running from the humming bird to hippopotamus, all alive. There was a bedlam of noise. We did not understand the language of these birds and beasts but thought we heard one little bird called the Laughing Jackass, from South America, humming a popular song which has had a wonderful vogue, entitled "How we won the war." We even found some of our ex-Canadians expressing the sentiments of this song.

Jackson Park still contains some of the buildings erected during the Chicago world's fair, but these are falling into ruin. Washington Park is another fine breathing space, where tired mothers can come as near to the wide country spaces as the city will allow them to.

The traffic system is a marvel of completeness, and is very rarely that a serious congestion occurs.

Double-decked motor buses, the Oriole line of motor cars, street-cars and the overhead railway carry the millions of people with expedition and safety. It is a fine sight to take a double-decked tram car about 11 p.m., say from "The Loop" to the south side, and note the rush of traffic of all kinds as you pass along.

While in Chicago we visited with a brother and sister whom we had not seen for a number of years. We also called on our old friend, Mr. George LeGard, who runs a profitable printing business in the heart of the city; also upon Mr. Kendall Mitchell, who is busy looking after the legal interests of a large clientelle. Incidentally he has his offices in the Burnham building, from the windows of which a grand view of Central Chicago is obtained including three lift bridges over the river.
