THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

LESSON FOR JUNE 3RD.

JESUS CRUCIFIED.—MATT. XXVII, 33-50.

NOTES.—"Golgotha."—The name probably comes from the singular likeness of some small elevation to a skull, situated somewhere outside the walls of the city. Probably it is a hill northeast of the Damascus gate. This is at present covered with Moslem graves; and yet it has been curiously preserved from consecration from monkish tradition.——"Willie to drink mingled with gall."—Mark xv, 23, has "wine mingled with myrrh." So this gall cannot mean any animal secretion, but is some herb like wormwood, or some narcotic which may soothe the nerves of the sufferer and dull the pain.——"When he had tasted it, he would not drink."—By tasting he recognized the kindly intention, but in order that the full measure might be accomplished he prefered to die in the full possession of his senses.——"They parted his garments, casting lots."—Any garments or property of the victims were the perquisites of the executioners. The talith was torn into four parts, while the cetonett, being one piece of woven texture, would have been useless torn, so they decided its possession by lot, casting dice into a helmet being the usual way.——"This is Jesus the King of the Jews."—All the Evangelists have slight variations as to the wording of this superscription. But this decisive title, an unconscious prophecy of Christ's drawing power, this crowning mockery, has to us the deep significance of truth. It is the mystery of unbelie guided by the hand of God.——"And the robbers also . . . cast upon him the same reproach."—Luke alone speaks of the penitence of one thief.——"Sixth hour."—12 M. This darkness was no eclipse of the sun, nor was it an atmospheric disturbance caused by an earthquake. It was another of the many signs and wonders to prove the sonship of Christ.——"Over the land."—Meaning that immediate region of country.——"Took a sponge."—In response to the fifth cry, "I thirst," John xix, 28.——"Let be."—The last mocking words from the heartless spectators.——"Yielded up his spirit."—Died, probably of a literal broken heart. Blood and water flowed from the spear-wound. This can only be accounted for from the fact that on the rupture of his heart blood flowed into the pericardium, where it quickly separated into what is commonly called blood and water. Then he really died none can doubt. With that final cry he gave back to his Father's keeping the most infinitely precious spirit this world has ever held in man.

Introduction.—The royal sufferer had no not on of easing his condtion by any artificial means. Had his father sent numbness to his nerves he would have accepted his mitigaion of pain gladly; but from man, he would receive no narcotic. He drank the whole cup bravely and loyally to the bitter dregs. This is a necessary lesson on endurance in these luxurious times. There are some Spartan virtues that people scoff at as being too "old fogy" and unnecessary. "If we can be comfortable, why not be so? they say, and loll at their ease while the world is in travail and pain. Had not Christ endured, he had not conquered.

"They crucified Him." No wonder the sun hid its face from very shame, and the earth quaked from fear. The daily crucifixion of Jesus by wicked deeds and careless thoughts is no new issue to the teacher or scholar; yet the personal killing of Jesus in the heart of the sinner by the sinner himself is what must be impressed on each. We raise Christ when we love him and do his will; we mercilessly murder him when we turn our faces from him and disobey his wonderful commandment.

Church and denominational squabbles seem somewhat like parting the garments of Christ. The Church under the guidance of the Holy Spirit is his legacy to us. And here many are actually casting lots for the precious garments. Would that all the denominations in our land might join hands and hearts; cast their moneys into one treasury, and so present a united front against godlessness and ignorance. When that time comes the land shall blossom with all the fruits of righteousness and peace.

God never forsook Christ. He tested him. He never forsakes us: and never is he nearer than when affliction or death stares us in the face.

The Lord was dead—now he lives. But his will be a broader, more far-reaching life if each one takes him as a guest, a sole guide, into his struggling heart.

"EX-MONK" RIDDOWS.

From Canadian Presbyterian.

The Stratford Beacon has this to say about the "ex-monk" whose career closed so suddenly in England the other day:—

The notorious hypocrite and scoundred "Ex-monk" Widdows has got his deserts at last. At the Central Criminal Court, London, England, on the 2nd inst., he and a chum, apparently as great a ruffian as himself, named Burleigh, described as a clerk in holy orders, were convicted of acts of gross indecency with certain pupils in Christ's Hospital. Widdows was sentenced to ten years penal servitude and Burleigh for life. When the "ex-monk" was mouthing his disgusting tirades against priests and others here and hereabouts, under the guise of "religion," The Beacon was besieged with letters and appeals to help him on, and because it refused to publish them or allow the rascal to be puffed in its columns it was roundly abused by certain people claiming to be "Christians," accused of being under the influence of Catholics, etc. Time does bring its revenges!

This impostor who now wears a convict's garb made a triumphal tour through Ontario a few years ago. Methodist churches were thrown open for him and Presbyterians left their own churches in crowds to hear him. To have said a word against the scamp at that time would have cost any minister his ecclesiastical life. It would be interesting to know what the Presbyterian members and office-bearers who flocked after the filthy fellow think of him now. It cannot be very pleasant for them to remember that they left the worship of God in their own churches and ran after this foul impostor. As The Beacon rather caustically observes, it would be too much to hope that this warping will have any effect. The next oily-tongued, brazen-faced blackguard that comes around professing to be an ex-monk or converted priest can have almost any Methodist Church for Sabbath evening, provided he draws a crowd, and, with shame we say it, a certain number of Presbyterians will leave their own church and run to hear him.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of Cutting Teeth? If so send at once and get a bottle of "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" for Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it mothers; there is no mistake about it. It cures Diarrhœa, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, cures Wind Colic, softens the Gums, reduces Inflamation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" for children teething is pleasant to the taste and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price, twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind. 1-1yr

License Not a Crime.

"Do you regard high license as high crime?" This question we are asked for the thousandth time. No, not under present conditions, nor is it in its nature, intent or effect "bribery," as we have repeatedly shown so clearly that no one has ever offered an answer to our arguments. We judge of all restrictive laws by the measure of restriction which they practically effect. If license, "high" or "low," showed itself to be the most effective form of law for restricting or preventing the liquor traffic, all temperance men would favor it. If the reliance for restriction by high license is to be simply upon the license fee, it would have to be very high to amount to much. Most so-called high license laws contain other restrictive features, but it is claimed for their high license provisions that these help greatly to the enforcement of the laws. They must be judged as a whole and by their fruits, and always by a demand due to the local obstacles in the way of more suppressive laws—as a step towards something better. Those who hurl against them tremendous principles should be consistent and hurl the same principles against all forms of restrictive legislation. "Would you license robbers and thieves?" asks one. We may answer by asking: Would you give communities local option for the suppression of theft and robbery? Would you propose that there should not be more than one thief to each 500 of the population? Yet these models are consented to and favored as stages in the temperance reform by those who never tire of crying out against license as a "legalization of crime."

No one would propose a law to prohibit robbery; we make laws only to punish it, because public sentiment or unwritten law regards it as a crime. Wherever license gives a permission that would not otherwise exist it is criminal; but where it prevents what would be otherwise permitted it is right.—Northern Christian Advocate.

Clerical Firebrands.

Stratford Times.

As a specimen of the clerical intimidation used by some "preachers of the gospel" in connection with the recent voting on the Scott Act repeal in the County of Dufferin, we reproduce quotations from the speeches of two "reverend" gentlemen during the last days of the campaign in that county:

"Those who are for the Lord are or the Scott Act side. They who fight against the Scott Act are in league with the devil."—Mr. Madill, at Laurel, on Sunday, April 15th.

"May the hand of him who votes for repeal be paralyzed when he is marking his ballot."—Rev. Mr. Wilmot at Maraville, same date.

If the first gentleman was correct, then the devil has a big league right where he is known, for the poll where he lives and preaches gave one of the largest majorities against the Scott Act, and a large majority of the electors of the county voted the Scott Act clean out of sight. As for the "reverend" Mr. Wilmot's prayer, asking for paralysis to overtake the hand of any person voting against the Act, several thousand electors voted against the Act in Ontario on the 19th of April, and if paralysis had overtaked them all there would have been a very heavy reduction in the population of this Province. A man who would give utterance to such a horrible wish from the pulpit or even from the platform, ought to be tied to a cart wheel and publicly lashed through the street, we don't care what denomination or creed he belongs to. Can it be wondered at that people nowadays refuse to respect preachers as they did in the days of yore, when they give utterance to such horrible prayers? Stonehouse and Longley's disgraceful episodes are decent and honorable compared to the "Rev." Wilmot!

Going West.

The general interest that has been taken in the opening of the Montana Indian Reservations is shown by the large numbers of people who have already gone to Great Falls to investigate the mineral and agricultural resources of that wonderful country. The low excursion rate announced by C. H. Warren, Gen. Pass. Agent of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway, makes the expense of exploring this country merely nominal, and will undoubtedly result in a still larger number following. 49-3t.

A Bishop's Sharp Answer.

A favorite argument with prohibition editors is the "mad dog" simile. It was put to Bishop Foss, of the M. E. church, recently by a young preacher. He said to the bishop: "Why, brother, if there were a mad dog running up and down the streets, would you shoot it or would you hedge it in?" To which the wise bishop made a quick reply: "If that mad dog had been running up and down the streets for thirty years, and I had been blazing away at it all that time without hitting it, I guess I'd try and hedge it in.—Carbondale Leader.

Go West.

No portion of the United States today offers as many opportunities for making money as can be found at Great Falls, Mont., and on the reservation just opened, in business, mining, stock raising or farming. Rates, maps, and particulars will be furnished by C. H. Warren, Gen. Pass. Agent, St. P. M. & M. Ry., St. Paul, Minn. 49-4t.

"DECORATION DAY."

The years that have elapsed since the close of the civil was have served to obliterate all sectional feeling, and a united and prosperous nation joins in keeping green the graves of all its beloved dead. It is in this spirit that the publisher of the NEW YORK FAMILY STORY PAPER has had written a thrilling and pathetic romance, peculiarly appropriate to this national holiday, entitled "Faithful Leonore; or, His Grave Kept Green." In the same paper will also be found a weekly instalment of the "Life and Adventures as a Showman of P. T. Barnum," written by himself, and equally interesting to the young folks as well as heads of families. These are rare literary treats, and those of our readers who are not already enjoying them will do well to obtain No. 766 of the NEW YORK FAMILY STORY PAPER of their newsdealer or send direct to the publisher, Munro's Publishing House, Nos. 24 and 26 Vandewater Street, New York, and receive the paper four months for one dollar, postage free.

The slave population of Brazil, which appears to be on the eve of emancipation, numbers about 1,188,228. The first legislative act of emancipation was was framed in 1871, and provided for a gradual freeing of the slaves, but it was badly administered and proved ineffective. In 1885 another gradual emancipation act was passed, and under this the process of liberation has gone slowly on. Public sentiment has advanced more rapidly than legislation, and was probably ripe several years ago for the act which has just passed.

A new helmet for firemen has been invented in Bremen. It consists principally of a copper mask, which is very light. The wearer's nose, mouth and eyes receive through an Indian rubber tube a constant stream of pure air, which leaves the helmet by an opening opposite the eyes and prevents the entrance of smoke. The helmet has been practically tested, and is to be used by the Berlin firemen, it is said.

It is estimated that among the population of the city of London there are 2,428 wives who have left their husbands; 2,871 husbands who have left their wives; 4,750 divorced persons; 101,028 couples that live together in a state of incessant hostilities; 510,512 couples that are absolutely indifferent one to another; 1,050 couples that are apparently happy; 1,102 couples that are happy to a certain extent; and of couples that are really happy, 6.

Some of the thirsty mortals of Wichita, Kan., have concocted a neat scheme for evading the prohibitory law. An organization known as the Old Choma Band, with power to do business in Wichita, has been chartered. Officers were duly elected, and stock issued at the rate of $1 per share. In one corner of the certificates are twenty stars. The holder has the entree to the club rooms of the band, which are known as reading rooms. Here he presents his certificate, calls for what drinks he requires and has the charges punches out on the stars in the certificate.

In his little tract on "Stimulants" Mr. Emerson has some very excellent things to say. He belongs to the moderate school of writers, and weighs both sides of a question. Stimulants have a definite and important use, and are no more to be sweepingly condemned and thrown out of the count than any other natural food. While deploring intemperance, Mr. Emerson recognizes that no repressive measures are going to correct a great evil, and proceeds to give a cure for drunkenness which will be startling to many, but which for that reason deserves no less careful consideration. "Pure wines," he says, "made from the juice of the grape, with no added alcohol, not only do not lead to a taste for strong drink, but are in most cases the best cure for drunkenness." Mr. Emerson then proceeds to prove his statement and to quote instances in which men known to be hopelessly intemperate have been cured by this means.

Lady Matheson, proprietor of the Island of Lewis, having resolved to give up residence in the island, owing to the crofter and cottar agitation and disturbances, left Stornoway a couple of weeks ago. A considerable crowd collected to witness her departure, but there was no demonstration and not even a cheer was raised as the steamer left the harbor. Lewis Castle, which is the only building of any architectural pretensions in the island, is advertised to be let, and most of the servants who have been in Lady Matheson's employment, many of them for 20 years, have been dismissed. Since the Crofter's agitation began little or no rent has been paid to Lady Matheson. The Poor-Law and School Board machinery is in a disorganized state owing to the non-payment of rates. About £4,000 of rates are at present in arrears. The people in Lochs district are hopeful of making some money out of the new industry of collecting grouse eggs. Many Cottars and Crofters have taken to the moors, and are said to be very successful in obtaining eggs.

Consumption Surely Cured.

To the Editor:

Please inform your readers that I have a positive remedy for the above named disease. By its timely use thousands of hopeless cases have been permanently cured. I shall be glad to send two bottles of my remedy FREE to any of your readers who have consumption if they will send me their express and P. O. address. Respectfully,

DR. T. A. SLOCUM,
50-1y. 37 Yonge St., Toronto.

The initial article in HARPER'S for June is Mr. R. R. Bowker's second paper on 'London as a Literary Centre,' with the novelists as his especial subjects. They are all marshalled in line for the gentle reader's benefit, from Wilkie Collins to F. Anstey. Eighteen excellent portraits are given. The opinions of these novelists as to how deeply an author must feel what he writes are most apposite at this time. A portrait of Mrs. Craik serves as a frontispiece for this Number.

'Sketches of Capri,' by Miss Mary E. Vandyne, gives many charming glimpses of life and scenery in that beautiful island, where one obtains a typical view of Vesuvius and Naples, and where the wonderful Blue Grotto is to be seen. The article is finely illustrated, and its style is agreeable.

In 'The Central State,' Robert Hay, U. S. G. S., gives a full description, including valuable statistics, of Kansas. A more fertile spot could hardly be found in the Union. Moreover, the civilization, which is of a good kind, is well advanced. To the higher class of settlers looking for new homes this paper will be of great value. It is fully illustrated, and the map of the State is particularly good.

There is much fiction offered for summer reading, thirty-three pages being given up to a complete story by Henry James. This is called 'Two Countries,' and has several fine illustrations by Reinhart, which add to the charm of the text. William Black's 'In Far Lochaber' is continued, and its interest still grows. Mr. Howells, in the opening chapters of his new serial, 'Annie Kilburn', delineates the coming home of the heroine to her native town, orphaned and not yet very young, after living years abroad. The author's art was never seen to better advantage than so far in this story. The poetry in the Number is charming. E. A. Abbey illustrates Barbara Allen's Cruelty' with four splendid sketches, and Alfred Parsons furnishes a full-page drawing for Wordworth's sonnet, 'Life with You Lambs.'

The development of the Episcopal Church service in New York, leading to the introduction of boy singers, is sketched by H. E. Krehbiel under the title 'Surpliced Choirs in New York.' Notes are also given concerning the leading choir-masters in New York. The article is finely illustrated.

'Impressions in Burnoose and Saddle' is a sketch of life in the northern Desert of Sahara by Edward P. Sanguinetti, who lived there among the Bedouins for a while. The incidents related are of a most interesting kind, and include an Arab wedding, a visit to the tomb of Sidi Okbar, and a hunting expedition with falcons. The article is beautifully illustrated from drawings made by Sanguinetti himself.

In the Second Paper on Chicago (the fourth of the Great West Series), Mr. Charles Dudley Warner slashes the newspapers as gently as slashing can be done, and then points out the liberality of the Chicago people towards charity and education, together with many other good qualities which they possess. The Gunther collection of historical curiosities is described at length, and the excellence of the Pullman City experiment is insisted on. There is much in the article to please Chicago, and yet much to set it a thinking.

The departments are of marked excellence. In the Easy Chair Mr. G. W. Curtis tempers the praise bestowed upon the newspapers in the May Number of the Magazine. He also exposes the ridiculous pretensions of certain New Yorkers (four hundred), who boast of family and pedigree, and hold themselves as better than other men. W. D. Howells, in the Study, reviews some recent books from the realist's point of view; and in the Drawer Mr. Charles Dudley Warner laughs at the custom of calling when carried to ridiculous extremes. There is much other interesting and bright reading in the Drawer.

HOW ONIONS PAY.—If our farmers would pay attention to growing onions they would find it very remunerative. It is almost impossible to obtain enough for culinary purposes this spring and they are worth at wholesale $5.00 per 100 lbs. Onions are being imported from Egypt and Malta to supply the demand in Ontario. An acre will easily produce 100 bushs., worth at least $600.
