EDITORIAL NOTES

It is to be borne in mind that a person who throws mud at another, first soils his own hands.

* * *

The best way to maintain one's youthfulness is to cultivate a forward look.

* * *

It is whispered that dancing has been added to the Flesherton High School curriculum, with the lady teachers as instructors.

* * *

In speaking about the price of pork a farmer was heard to exclaim that there was good money in pigs. All the money went in but very little came out.

* * *

A British contemporary, gushing over the acquirement of the right to vote by all women twenty-one years old or over, exclaims, "the girls have pulled up their skirts and are prepared to wade into the political pool wherever man is to be found." A nice sentiment truly, but in this country the female voter has to make no such preparation. Fashion demands that the skirt shall be high enough in all conscience and is obeyed.

The Battlefields Commission of Canada are now engaged in undoing the wrong done when, for a comparative pittance, the advantageous positions on the Plains of Abraham were sold to land speculators and built over. These objectionable structures are being removed and a road is to be built this year to Wolfe's Cove, enabling visitors to walk or drive to the spot on the heights where the British troops first obtained a footing on the territory where the battle was fought, which won Canada for Britain. The historical field is well worth preserving.

COMMUNICABLE DISEASES.

There is a fairly large group of diseases which are called communicable —diphtheria, scarlet fever, measles, whooping cough, pneumonia, tuberculosis, typhoid fever, smallpox and chicken pox, to name some of the more common ones in this country. They are given this name because of one outstanding and important characteristic. They are all spread from one person to another, and from the sick to the well, and usually the spread is fairly direct.

The reason why these diseases are communicable is that they are all caused by disease germs. Disease germs are so small that we cannot see them without the aid of the stethoscope, and for that reason they are called microscopic. They live, grow and multiply just as truly as if they were many times bigger. It is the transference of these living disease germs from the sick to the well which accounts for the spread of the communicable diseases. Each of the communicable diseases is caused by its own special germ. The disease germ which causes diphtheria never caused any other disease, and no other disease germ ever causes diphtheria.

Disease germs do not grow in nature outside the human or animal body. They may exist for a time, but they do not grow and multiply. Some of them are hardier than others, but sunlight kills them all in a short time. Bad smells are offensive and we do not want them, but bad smells do not cause communicable diseases. Such diseases are always caused by disease germs, and because of the fact that these disease germs die comparatively quickly outside of the human body, the spread is practically direct from the sick person to the well. The spread of most of them is by the transference of the germ-laden secretions of the sick person to the well by coughs, sneezes, kissing, fingers soiled with saliva, or common eating or drinking utensils.
