ONCE our newspapers were divided into three classes---"Grit," Tory," and "Independent." In the case of "Grit" and "Tory" papers, if you knew what the party policy was, you always knew what they were going to say. The "Independent" paper usually died. Then came with its slogan, "A Newspaper, Not An Organ." That slogan used to cause smiles. But, as the years passed, its significance was appreciated.

The Star does not care much about who wins elections. It cares a great deal about winning causes. And it is a noteworthy thing about the causes advocated by The Star, that most of them have been adopted and incorporated into the laws of the community.

Here is a paper that, if it is giving a Government general support, does not wait to see what that Government is going to say or do on any particular issue, before expressing itself. The anxiety is sometimes on the part of the Government, to know what The Star is going to say.

In buying The Star you may be sure you are getting exactly what the phrase says—"A Newspaper, Not An Organ." You are getting a live paper full of news, full of ideas, entertaining, informing, stimulating—in short you are getting

CANADA'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

Where other papers are content with merely recording the news, The Star chronicles that news in brilliant style, so that the reader gets the human-interest side of every story and understands the inner meaning of things that would otherwise be obscure.

The Star is as much a "Woman's" paper as a man's. Women like it, not merely for the Departments which are devoted exclusively to women's interests, but also for its bright and entertaining way of presenting all the news.

The Star is always in the forefront of progressive movements—supreme in sports—a believer in the saving grace of humor—a live newspaper full of news and full of interesting illustrations. Three months' trial subscription will put you on friendly terms with this greatest of daily papers—and will cost you only $1.25; $2.00 for 6 months' subscription—$3.00 for a year.

APPLES FOR ONTARIO

Some Varieties Recommended for Home Orchards.

Early Bearers and Annual Producers Desirable — Also Varieties Not Easily Liable to Disease—Hardiness Also a Good Quality—Keep Potato Rot From Spreading.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

THE home orchard should provide high-class dessert and cooking apples throughout the entire apple season, or from the middle of July until the following spring. It is quite easy to select varieties for any part of old Ontario which will do this satisfactorily. The varieties selected should come into bearing early, should produce annually, and should be as free as possible from diseases of all kinds, so that they may be handled with a minmum of expense and care. Throughout this article the varieties mentioned are listed in the order of their season of use, so that intending planters may be guided in making a selection to cover the season.

In order to simplify the selection of varieties for any given district a classification of the most desirable varieties is given herewith based on their relative hardiness, which is their ability to withstand cold winters successfully.

Hardiest:—Transparent, Duchess, Dudley, McIntosh, Hibernal, Crabs. These are hardy as far north as Parry Sound, and can be grown successfully even further north.

Second Hardiest:—Astrachan, Alexander, St. Lawrence, Wealthy, Colvert, Snow, Scarlet Pippin, Wolf River, Golden Russet.

Third Hardiest:—Blenheim, Tolman, Spy.

Fourth Hardiest:—Gravenstein, Wagner, Stark, Greening, Ben Davis.

Fifth Hardiest:—These varieties are more or less tender and thrive best south of a line drawn from Hamilton to Brantford and Goderich—Cayuga, Ribston, Hubbardston, Grimes, Ontario.

Sixth Hardiest—These varieties are tender and thrive best in the Lake Erie counties, although they are not entirely satisfactory even there—Jonathan Winesap, Spitzenberg, Newtown.

King and Baldwin are omitted from the above classification for the reason that their inclusion would probably be misleading. It is true that these varieties were formerly listed in about the fourth grade for hardiness, but intending planters would do well to make careful note of the fact that they have winter killed badly of recent years, even in the most southerly counties of Ontario.

The varieties which come into bearing earliest (about five or six years) are Duchess, Wealthy, Milwaukee, Wagner and Ontario. Most of the other varieties listed should begin bearing at about seven or eight years, but Blenheim and Spy are notorious exceptions to this, and frequently do not produce fruit until they reach fifteen to eighteen years of age.

The varieties which are least subject to apple scab are Duchess, Ribston, Blenheim, Hibernal, Baldwin and Russet.—Prof. J. W. Crow, O. A. College, Guelph.

Keep Potato Rot From Spreading.

When harvesting potatoes, more especially in damp seasons, it is essential to pick them over and discard any specimens that are diseased, particularly those that show any indication of rot. If this is not done, the disease is liable to spread through the whole mass during storage. If wilt or dry rot (Fusarium) or black leg and wet rot (B. solanisaprus) or late blight (Phytophthora infestans) has been noticed in the growing crop, it may be taken for granted that a percentage of the tubers will be infected. These diseases may be found in all stages of development in the tubers produced by an affected plant. These are the diseases most liable to spread to a greater or less extent through a pile or bag of stored tubers if any of them are affected at the time they are stored away. Consequently, the greatest care should be taken when harvesting a crop that has shown diseases when growing in the field.

These diseases show themselves on the tubers, either as a dry moldy rot or a wet slimy rot, or as brown or blackish discolorations. On some tubers the diseased condition may be fairly well advanced and consequently easily noticed. On other tubers the disease may be of recent development and not easily seen.

Where practicable it is desirable to pick out all tubers in which the disease is readily seen and then to wash the remainder either in a tub of water or by turning a hose on to them. This washing not only removes any soil that may be sticking on, but it intensifies the discolorations produced by the disease, and so makes it a comparatively easy matter to pick out those tubers which are only lightly affected. After washing, the undesirable specimens should be removed and the remainder thrown out in a thin layer to dry before being stored away.—Prof. D. H. Jones, Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph.

Fertile Soils for Alfalfa.

Alfalfa will not thrive on poor land, or that which is deficient in lime. Even soils that are moderately fertile and produce good average grain crops will not produce profitable crops of alfalfa unless first limed and then planted in sweet clover, which should be turned under while it is green and juicy in the fall or late summer.
