WHIG'S FASHION LETTER

LATEST STYLES PREVAILING IN NEW YORK.

This Summer a Record Breaker in the Matter of Producing Novelties—Some Suits That Are Admired by the Devotees of Fashion.

New York, July 18.—The summer of 1902 will go down in the history of fashions as a record-breaker in the matter of producing novelties. In fact with all the beauty of summer modes, it may be said that modistes have depended chiefly upon the little elegancies for the smartness of the ensemble.

There have not been many types of the summer girl, but she has been versatile, accepting only the original features of fashions and clinging not long to any pronounced style. The mode which retains its hold upon the popular fancy, longest is the short waist suit. This implies not necessarily, a plain skirt and shirt waist, for the bodice, like every other feature of fashion has been elaborated upon until it has developed into a wonderful creation, displaying the intricate hand-work and trimming of the most delicate textiles.

Shirt waist gowns in the finer materials have the blouses trimmed with bands of embroidery, or sometimes, the entire affair is a series of alternating bands of insertion and silk null. The skirts, in keeping with the blouses, are embroidered and finished with deep flounces of embroidery. Some very dainty costumes in white organdie built over taffeta have yokes composed of strips of the organdie joined by a fancy stitch, and from the yokes the flounce of the skirt depends, gathered quite full all around to hang in bewitching confusion about the feet.

Constantly the modistes are evidencing by the outlines of fashion, the influence of physical culture upon the feminine mind. The very exercises that are practised to lend grace and dignity to the figure are studied, and the result is an effort of the part of dressmakers to bring into effect such styles as will emphasize the beauty of this training. Probably to this fact as to no other may the long, flowing, clinging lines of the past few seasons be attributed.

The greatest novelty of fashions just now is in belts, neck trimmings and such tiny accessories. There are so many ways of arranging ribbons and laces about the throat, that it is possible to wear a single ribbon several times, and were it not for the color, the trimming would be unrecognizable. For instance with a shirt waist costume of pongee silk, the blouse is embellished at the neck with a "wind" of turquoise blue ribbon. One day the ribbon is brought simple around the throat, tied in a simple bow and the ends allowed to hang unconfined, to the belt. The next day, the order of things is reversed and the ribbon is fastened at the back, all the ends being gathered up in a huge, but dainty choux. Again the trimming is shifted to the front, the ends being simply drawn through a ring at the throat, then tied at the bust line, and the ends doubled into small tight knots which are pierced with stick-pins and secured to the bodice at almost any desired spot. With the addition of a tulle or chiffon bow, it is therefore possible to accomplish wonderful results with very scanty material.

Quietly, but to the evident satisfaction of all, the ribbon belt is taking the place of the leather one, except in outing or athletic costumes. There is such a soft beauty about the ribbon affair, so much feminity and grace, that it makes a special appeal to the woman of fashion who this year is eliminating as much of the masculine in dress as she endeavored to take on a few seasons past. On the simplest lawn or the most elegant silk the ribbon belt is en regle. It is brought around the waist and tied either in a bow and drawn through a gold circle and allowed to fall in studied carelessness to the hem of the gown.

Girdles that are composed both of ribbon and lace are lovely and found in the wardrobe of every well-groomed woman. The lace is appliqued over the ribbon entirely, as it extends around the waist, but on the streamers, there is simply an edge on either side, with medallions at the end. Hand-painted belts are delicate and pretty. They are worn with more expensive gowns, but embody the elegance which characterizes the season's modes.

Although there is only a little over a month of summer yet before us, many white gowns are being made. These are of heavier materials, however, and will be seen until very late in the fall. In fact it is predicted that light colors will be in greater vogue during the coming winter than they were last season.

Indeed the woman of fashion is going to make a specialty of color, they tell us. It is certainly a most fascinating and interesting study in its complex influences and modistes claim that by encouraging this contemplated fad, they will experience less trouble, and fair women will be better able to understand her physical and emotional idiosyncracies, and be helped to the ways and means of developing those on the highest lines, therefore rendering more subtle the art of perfect dressing.

Very few of the summer fashions will be carried over for fall and winter use. The trend of the times is toward originality and absolute newness, with the display of exquisite taste and absence of eccentricity.

Lace gowns and coats though will be among the few novelties of summer that will rage in winter. This is due to the fact that it is ever possible to find something unique in this line and thus the monotony of already shown designs is avoided. Gowns that are not made entirely of lace are elaborately ornamented with it, and the effect is stunning.

One very dainty model in twine colored voile de soie, which, by the way, is one of the latest and most popular summer fabrics, is laid in many tucks and plentifully appliqued. There is a yoke of lace on the bodice, and below this the fabric is laid in a series of narrow tucks confined under two bands of lace. On the skirt the lace appears again with tucks which end in a flounce. A sash of flowered ribbon bordered with black is a distinct addition to such a gown.

Lace gowns made upon a foundation of chiffon, which, in turn, is built over a lining of taffeta, are very smart. One very smart design had the skirt composed of a tunic effect, the bottom being finished with a deep flounce of plaited chiffon edged with a narrow ruching and falling over a ruffle of silk. There was also a lace flounce overlaid upon the one of chiffon.

The bodice was made quite plain, the three materials of the skirt being used. There was a slight bloused effect at the sides, with a very decided pouch at the front and the girdle was composed simply of canary colored panne velvet, finished with a buckle of brilliants. The stock was formed of the velvet and lace, then at the very edge of the collar there showed a piping of pale blue satin, sandwiched between two folds of chiffon. Such an effect is always pleasing and ultra-smart, and the model may be copied in less expensive materials with splendid results.

The cold, repellant, blue-greys are going out of style and will probably be replaced with some very soft shades of green. Many new tints in blue are also promised for early fall and winter, and a few more weeks will see them among the advanced modes of these approaching seasons.

Jaurez's Name Is Honored.

Mexico City, July 18.—In the cemetery of San Ferdinando, to-day, anniversary memorial exercises were held in honor of the liberal party president, Benito Jaurez. A long procession marched to the cemetery, wherein lie the remains of the illustrious soldier, who led the successful struggle against the Maximilian empire. The procession included workingmen's societies, members of the federal district and city government, scientific societies, officers of the garrison, surviving signers of the present constitution, and members of the liberal patriotic committees. Orations were delivered by public men of proposited magnificent wreaths and other minence and on the tomb were deflorat emblems sent by masonic lodges and liberal societies throughout the republic.

Brain Food Nonsense.

Another ridiculous food fad has been branded by the most competent authorities. A correct diet will not only nourish a particular part of the body, but it will sustain every other part. Yet, however good your food may be, its nutriment is destroyed by indigestion or dyspepsia. You must prepare for their appearance or prevent their coming by taking regular doses of Green's August Flower, the favorite medicine of the healthy millions. A few doses aids digestion, stimulates the liver to healthy action, purifies the blood, and makes you feel buoyant and vigorous. You can get this reliable remedy at Wade's drug store.

St. Andrews Honors Carnegie.

London, July 18.—In recognition of liberal donations to Scotch universities, the municipality of St. Andrews, Scotland, to-day, bestowed the freedom of the city on Andrew Carnegie. Joint recipients of the honor with Mr. Carnegie were the earl of Elgin, lord lieutenant of Fifeshire, and lord Balfour, of Burleigh, secretary for Scotland, who are trustees of the Carnegie university fund.

Miss McNeil was in a buggy, but Mr. Ivy was on foot, when the fracas occurred.

The 12th At Centreville.

Centreville, July 15.—Haying has commenced with an extra large crop. A great deal of clover hay has been seriously damaged by heavy rains. The merry-go-round started up business here on Friday evening and expects to remain for one week. The 12th of July was celebrated here in grand style. Early in the morning people began to arrive and by noon they could only be numbered by the thousands. Enterprize brass band and a number of fife and drum bands supplied music for the occasion. O'Neil and Mrs. Bentley, Picton, spent last week at H. S. McKibbon's. Harry Gibson, Picton, is spending a portion of his holidays at W. Johnson's. Mrs. William Johnson, this neighborhood, is the guest of her sister-in-law, Mrs. M. Kinney, Manitoulin Islands.

Killed By The Storm.

Verona, July 16.—Some malicious person attempted to poison a cow belonging to Edward Curl, Main street, the other night, a quantity of paris green and salt being mixed and placed in the milking yard. Fortunately not enough of the poison was partaken of to accomplish the foul purpose. Mr. Curl, one of our most respected residents, is at a loss to know who bears him such an antipathy. Mrs. E. M. York, ill for some time, is slowing convalescing. The Epworth league, of which she was president, has not held a meeting since her indisposition. Last Sabbath the local L.O.L., No. 995, assembled at the Methodist church and were addressed by Rev. Bro. T. F. Richards. Nearly all the home lodge members attended and were supplemented by brethren from Petworth and Piccadilly. The speaker emphasized the necessity of strict adherence to the constitution. His words were directed, not only to Orangemen, but to prospective members, and were much appreciated. R. McCullough, son of John McCullough, W.M., marshalled the body efficiently. During Monday afternoon's storm John E. Watson, a farmer residing near here, had two fine cows killed. A barn in the immediate neighborhood was also struck, but no damage of mention sustained. Frank Clark, of the Snyder settlement, called on friends here to-day. Mrs. Herbert Belding (formerly Tillie Tryon) formerly of this place, now of St. John, N.B., is the guest of Mrs. W. D. Percy. N. Wartelsky, Montreal, is here attending his brother's store during the latter's absence at Montreal. George Stedman, a former station agent here, visited his home here recently; he is now conducting a large store at Smith's Falls.

VICTIM OF EXPERIMENT.

Girl Inoculated With Consumption Germs is Dead.

Dover, N.J., July 18.—Miss Emma H. King, the young woman who submitted to inoculation with the germs of consumption less than a year ago in order that Dr. George D. Barney, Brooklyn, might prove the theories he held in regard to tuberculosis, died in circumstances which the county authorities think need investigation, at the farm house of Alfred Shuman, at Shuppenport, on Lake Hopatcong, five miles from this place, on Sunday night.

Miss King died of poison self-administered, but it is not believed that she meant to kill herself. On the contrary, the arsenic powder which killed her was a medicine she received, according to Mrs. Shuman, to restore her to health and vigor which were hers before she consented to become a martyr to science, but which she had never enjoyed from the time Dr. Barney operated on her.

Famous Colored Man Dies.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 18.—William Still, widely known as the father of the "underground railroad," and one of the best educated members of the negro race, died at his home here. Mr. Still was about eighty years old and leaves a fortune estimated between $750,000 and $1,000,000. He was born in Chemung, N.Y. Both his father and mother had been slaves, but the former bought his freedom and the latter escaped from her southern masters.
