Pain Across the Kidneys For Three Years.

Suffered Great Agony. Could Not Stoop or Bend.

No disease is so quiet and stealthy in its approach as kidney disease. That is why it is so dangerous. It may become deep-seated before you realize the danger.

It is therefore of great importance to recognize the early warning symptoms, because in its early stage kidney disease is easily curable. Pain or dull ache in the back is one of the first signs. So are bladder pains, bearing-down pains, smarting sensation when urinating, frequent or suppressed urination, and gravel or sediment in the urine, etc. You cannot be well if your kidneys are not performing their functions properly. In all ordinary cases of any derangement of the kidneys, a few doses of will put the patient right; in old or chronic cases, the treatment should be persisted in.

Mr. Michael A. McInnis, Woodbine, Marion Bridge, N.S., tells of his experience: "For the last three years I suffered great agony with pain across my kidneys, and was so bad that I could not stoop or bend. I consulted and had several doctors treat me, but I got none the better. On the advice of a friend I procured a box of that valuable life-giving remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills, and to my surprise and benefit I immediately became better. In my opinion Doan's Kidney Pills have no equal as a cure for any form of Kidney disease.

Price 50 cents per box, or 3 for $1.25. All dealers, or direct by mail.

LOCUSTS STOP A TRAIN.

Cover Railway and Are Shoveled Off by Gang.

London, April 4.—A remarkable sight was witnessed recently by passengers in one of the down trains on the Uganda railway, writes a correspondent.

When passing Nairoli, the headquarters of the railway, a dense swarm of locusts, closely followed by an enormous flock of hawks, circling gracefully round in pursuit of their prey, was seen high up in the heavens.

An even stranger sight, and one which told only too plainly of the havoc being wrought in their aerial ranks, was presented by the discarded wings of the locusts, which fluttered to the ground like falling leaves.

Not long ago, while proceeding from Lake Victoria to Mombasa, a train ran into a perfect bank of these destructive pests, which continued, with more or less density, for a distance of nearly forty miles.

In some places they were between four and five inches in depth; but, curiously enough, the entire invasion was confined to a strip of not more than fifty yards on either side of the four-foot way.

As soon as the engine struck the swarm the train was brought to a standstill, and for the next two hours a breakdown gang had to be employed in shovelling the locusts from the metals and covering them with sand, the stench being described as almost overpowering.

Steamships in Some Ways Like Individuals—Some Have Humdrum Existence, Some Have Stirring Adventures — The Steamer Hermine.

Boston Transcript.

Steamships in some respects are like individuals. Some run a humdrum existence from the time they are launched until they finally find their way into the hands of junk dealers, who strip them of all that remains of their past usefulness, then consign them to the flames. Others are precipitated into stirring events and scenes from the moment they enter active service. One of the latter kind is the steamship Hermine, which arrived lately from the Mediterranean with a cargo of lemons, a variety of other fruits, sumac, etc. She was built in 1901 at Stockton-on-Tyne for the Hermine Steamship company, of Austria-Hungary, and hardly had time to show what she was worth to her owners as a freight carrier between the Mediterranean and America, before she was chartered by the Russian government to help stock up Vladivostok. Her christening name was Nina, but under the Russian flag this was changed to Frieda.

She loaded a cargo of provision in the Black Sea, and steamed out to the far east, in charge of Captain Zar, an Austrian. Arrived there, the Russian authorities, taking little thought to the benefits which they derived from her fresh supplies, undertook to place the captain under arrest, because he, an Austrian presumed to command a ship under the Russian flag. The Austrian consul immediately bestirred himself to telegraph on to the Austrian embassy at St. Petersburg, through whose influence the arrest was prevented, and Capt. Zar saved from what might have been exile in Siberia.

But if, they did not wholly succeed in their purpose, the Russian authorities at Vladivostok accomplished their purpose in part, for Capt. Zar was relieved of the command of his vessel, which was turned over to the first officer on board a Russian. In his charge, therefore, she returned to the Mediterranean. On her return she was transferred back to her owners, once more flew the Austrian flag and rode the seas under an American captain. Her name now changed again, to Hemine, the appellation under which she has since been plying in the Austro-American trade. She is now in command of Capt. Bussanich. Hence, within four years of service she has served under two flags, under three names, under four or five different commanders, and has traversed the greater part of the world's commercial waters.

A Pretty Wedding.

McLean, March 30.—A pretty event occurred at 10 a.m. on March 29th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Sills, when their daughter, Emily Gertrude, and Frank Thomson, Enterprise, were united in matrimony by Rev. W. H. Clark. The bride was assisted by Miss Ida Sills, and John Keech, Trafford, acted as groomsman. The couple stood under an arch of evergreen and roses. Miss Elizabeth Sills played the wedding march. The bride was attired in a suit of grey voile with white satin blouse; the bridesmaid wore a dress of pale blue nun's veiling. Dinner was served at twelve, after which the bride and groom departed for Napanee where they will spend a few days with friends. After they return they will reside at Enterprise. Many useful presents were received. They have the best wishes of a large circle of friends.

"SQUARE CROOKS."

They Have Their Agents in Canada.

"I have no doubt that people have wondered when some crook caught in the act and without friends in the place in which he came to grief could give bond," said Frank G. Miller, an ex-convict, to a Journal reporter with whom he had previously become acquainted.

"There is nothing strange about it," continued Miller, "for we have an organization for mutual protection, and this has representatives in every large city and in some of the smaller ones in the United States and Canada. Usually in the smaller places, there are lawyers, and if the crook is 'pinched' in a place where he has no friends he knows whom to send for.

"Should the case be an aggravated one and the crook in good standing with the organization the amount of bond required is learned and the society is notified to send enough to square a couple of bondsmen. The crook disappears, the bondsmen settle and tell how they would like to bring the fellow to justice, while all the time they are wishing for another job of the same sort, for they are well paid, and the lawyers get better fees for looking after our business than any ordinary practice pays."

Miller went on to say that the organization had its regular officers, who are better paid than those of legitimate societies, and that almost all of them are well respected in the communities in which they live. Miller stated that the amount paid for membership and yearly dues was large, and that only "square" crooks were allowed to become members.

When asked if they were not afraid that their officers would emulate their employers and rob the treasury, he replied that such a thing had never occurred but once. That man was afterwards found on the streets of Constantinople with a knife sticking under his fifth rib, and no one had seen fit to follow his example.

"Why," said Miller, "they know that if they should try to do us they would have a thousand men keener than any detectives on their trail, and that when caught no earthly power could save them."

The crooks, according to Miller, have their clubrooms in Chicago, New York, New Orleans, San Francisco and several other cities, and he declared declared that these clubrooms, or houses, are fitted up regardless of expense. To be able to use them, however, one must belong to the crook aristocracy and must also pay extra dues that would make the clubman of the cities blink.

FOODS AND FOOD PRODUCTS.

Prof. Gray's Lecture Before the National History Society.

Prof. M. A. Gray, chemist, recently lectured in Montreal on "Foods and Food Products," in the National History society rooms. The lecture was most exhaustive and instructive, dealing with the growth of wheat, its constituents and the electrical treatment of flour. Mr. Gray remarked that but little could be said concerning the percentage of nourishment contained in the different grades of our North-Western hard wheat, as it varies from year to year.

Speaking of chemical experiment, Mr. Gray pointed out what had been done in this line in regard to wheat, in the experimental stations of the United States. It was but recently, however, that laboratories had been established in connection with flour mills, but they have already demonstrated their utility.

As to the purification of flour by electricity, the speaker remarked that it is about two years since this method was adopted, and the development has been wonderful. A beautiful silvery whiteness is produced by subjecting flour to air which has been passed through a flaming electrical discharge. The flour has also, as a consequence, better keeping qualities, and commands a better price. The Ogilvie Flour Mills company, he said, was the only firm in Canada, and one of the first in America, to make use of this purifying and sterlizing process.

Ice Boat In Service.

Wolfe Island, April 3.—The warm weather of the past week has brought the ice boat in to active service on the American channel; the snow has nearly all disappeared. This coming week the ice boats will be used between here and the city, and it is hoped that the new Wolfe Islander will be making her regular trip the following week. John Ryan has been very sick; his life is despaired of. Herbert Leakey has got the contract from Mrs. Robert Payne to put up a fine residence in the village. Dr. Spankie has purchased a new racing ice yacht from New York, which is intended to go on land ice spring and fall. It is quite a novelty to people in these parts. James Rodgers has got the material on the ground for the erection of a new barn. R. J. Spoon and D. Cosgrove are opening up a new wood, coal and lumber yard in the village. Mrs. Marlow has bought Filo Cummings' house in the village and moved in. Filo Cummings moved to the Abbott house at Cold Springs. Edward Walker has moved from the Sluman house to one at the foot of the village. Miss Amy Spankie, daughter of Dr. Spankie, who holds a first-class certificate, and who was awarded the scholarship from Queen's college, as well as a couple of others, was chosen as one of the fourteen from the rural school of the county, who will take a course in nature study in Guelph college for the next three months.

The Meaning Of A Phrase.

We may hear it said of one who is in low spirits, "he is in the dumps," or, "he is in the doldrums," but many who use the latter of these phrases have caught it up without any knowledge of its real significance. The Region of Calms is a belt which stretches across the Atlantic and Pacific oceans almost on a line with the Equator. Here meet the north and south trade winds, and squalls and heavy rains are frequent, but the characteristic of this region which is known also as the Doldrums, is an oppressive calm. The name nowadays loses much of the significance attached to it by sailors in the past.

Evening gown of double chiffon. Here a wealth of dainty workmanship takes the place of foreign trimming in the ornamentation. The skirt is panelled with graduated puffs that cross clusters of tiny tucks. A deep flounce is set below the knee, and the puffs terminate half way down on this in soft bows of chiffon. The color scheme of this costume is in palest yellow. The decolletage is trimmed with folds of the chiffon, the only foreign touch being bows and butterfly ends of black velvet baby ribbon.

Historic Building Burns.

New York, April 4.—Fire partly destroyed the old observatory of the well-known Dr. Henry Draper, at Hastons-on-the-Hudson, on Friday. There was great danger of the fire spreading to the old red cottage near the observatory, which was used as a blacksmith's shop during the revolution. Some of Washington's officers had their horses shod there.

Dr. Draper had this observatory built in 1860. Here he made the first photographs ever taken of the moon, the nebula and the spectra. Dr. Draper made here the lenses used in his large telescopes. Dr. John William Draper, father of Dr. Henry Draper, was on intimate terms with the inventor of the daguerreotype, and in the building which burned was developed the first picture in America of a human being.

They Had Rheumatism.

They are now cured. What they say about the remedy is of far more importance than what we say. We refer to those in this locality who have been cured of rheumatism by Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure. If interested call and let us refer you to well-known people who can tell you just what the remedy will do. Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure is a harmless, inexpensive remedy that cures all sorts of rheumatic troubles when other remedies fail. It has been so thoroughly tested that doubt as to its remarkable merits can no longer exist. This is the preparation that cured Jeremiah Redden, 115 Lower Bagot St., and hundreds of others. Bufferin, March 31.—Owing to the bad condition of the roads there has been no service in either of the churches for the past two weeks. Rev. T. Flynn has finished cutting the wood at the schoolhouse. Mrs. Terthewey intends having a new house erected.
