How Many Millionaires Can You Name?

There are 252 millionaires in Canada today, but not one of them is a telephone millionaire.

In forty-eight years of growth the Bell Telephone Company has never exploited the public nor has it itself been exploited.

Its shareholders have never received over eight per cent in dividends and its subscribers today have the lowest rates in the world for comparable service.

The Bell Telephone Company is owned by 15,300 shareholders and no individual has as much as one quarter of one per cent of the total shares.

Parliamentary Society Senate Overworked

Ottawa, Feb. 23, 1929.

Dear Editor:—

The unexpected has happened and the Senate is overworked; not all of it, but a part of it, the Divorce Committee, and that any part of that august and leisurely body should be straining every nerve and crowding every hour to keep up with its work is surprising enough. It happened thus:—In the fifty years from 1867 to 1916, inclusive, Parliament granted 310 divorces; in the five years from 1916 to 1921 inclusive, 294 divorces were granted, just 16 less than in the preceding fifty years and in the following five years from 1922 to 1926, inclusive, 608 divorces, and in the one session 1926-27, 196 divorces and the last session 238, and this sessio almost 250. Yet we have no divorce court in Ontario to deal with them. The Divorce Committee of the Senate has been increased from nine to fifteen and for the uncontested cases, it breaks into two parts and conducts a two-ring circus, although for contested cases the Committee must meet as a whole. Still we righteous Ontario folk won't have a Divorce Court; a court that could make provisions for the children, which the Senate committee canno because they fear that by having a Court we would increase the number of divorces. In adition to the cases tried before the Senate Committee, it was stated in the Senate debate that in 1928 there were 548 Canadian divorces received in the city of Detroit. It is clearly seen that without a court, divorces are rapidly increasing.

The remainder of the 96 Senators have gone to rest—no, not eternal—just until March 20th, after having worked seven days, during which time they passed a Bill asking that a Divorce Court in Ontario be established. In theory the Government has now a majority in the Senate, but in actual practice it has not, since four or five of the Liberal Senators cannot attend, owing to great age or physical deformities. Yet it is altogether likely that enough of our judicial Upper House brethren of both parties will gather in the spring to defeat any promising bit of legislation that comes up from the Commons.

The Senators have had the utmost difficulty in getting anyone to introduce the Divorce Bill in the Commons. For various reasons the Liberal members from Ontario did not want to introduce the Bill, and the Conservatives who were quite free to do it, were not particularly anxious to do a piece of hard work for the Government. The Bill is going through the Commons in the name of Mr. Woodsworth, and from the temper of the debate on Friday night, it would appear that it would be defeated.

"There was a sound of reveley by night,
And Canada's capital had gathered there,
Her beauty and her chivilry and bright
the lamps shone o'er fair women and brave men."

That night was Wednesday, February 20th.

Other nights we work until 11 p. m., but when the Cabinet Ministers' wives give a reception on our only free night, we quit work at 6 o'clock, get a bite to eat and from then to 9 o'clock we do our best to overcome Nature's deficiences and fit ourselves into the poetic description given above. We call a taxi,—even if it is our last cent—it isn't good form to walk or take a street car, and grandly draw up to the members' entrance of the House of Commons.

Although the reception begins at nine, it is frightfully embarrassing to be first there and as everyone tries not to be, the whole affair is delayed a bit but by 9:30 the crowd is passing in front of the Cabinet Ministers' wives, who stand in a semi circle in the stately Hall of Fame, saying a kindly work of welcome to everyone. The wives of the cabinet ministers are a remarkably fine group of women. Two ministers haven't any wives—poor things.

For some time the crowd wince about, speaking to friends and greeting new people, but soon the orchestra strikes up, and those who enjoy dancing go to the railway committee room or dance in the corridors to the music supplied by the amplifiers. Such a gathering gives one a chance to meet people as muman beings, not as members of a certain party, or representatives of a certain country, but just folks. The new Legations have brought an international aspect to parliamentry meetings; they have lent distinction and added interest. It is a privilege to meet and talk with the Ambassador or Consul of the United States or Great Britain, the representative of China or Japan. One feels that the world is growing smaller, and that Canada is growing up and must take her place in the neighborhood of nations —which is the world.
