WORMS

"I had for years suffered from what medical men called Dyspepsia and Catarrh of the Stomach. In August I purchased a box of Cascarets and was surprised to find that I "had 'em"—yes—a wiggling, squirming pass left me. Judge our doctor's surprise when I showed him thirty feet, and in another day the remainder (about the same length) of a tapeworm that had been sapping my vitality for years. I have enjoyed the best of health ever since. I trust this testimonial will appeal to other sufferers."

HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS.

Any even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba or the North-West Provinces, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person the sole head of a family, or male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section, of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for homestead entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at an Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

An application for entry or cancellation made personally at any sub-agent's office may be wired to the Agent by the Sub-agent, at the expense of the applicant, and if the land applied for is vacant on receipt of the telegram such application is to have priority and the land will be held until the necessary papers to complete the transaction are received by mail.

In case of "personation" or fraud the applicant will forfeit all priority of claim or if entry has been granted it will be summarily cancelled.

An application for cancellation must be made in person. The applicant must be eligible for homestead entry, and only one application for cancellation will be received from an individual until that application has been disposed of.

Where an entry is cancelled subsequent to institution of cancellation proceedings, the applicant for cancellation will be entitled to prior right of entry.

Applicant for cancellation must state in what particulars the homesteader is in default.

A homesteader whose entry is not the subject of cancellation proceedings may subject to the approval of Department, relinquish it in favor of father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister if eligible, but to no one else, on filing declaration of abandonment.

DUTIES—A settler is required to perform the duties under one of the following plans :—

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year during the term of three years.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of the homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father (or mother.)

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line, exclusive of the width of road allowance crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the Agent for the district of such intention.

Before making application for patent the settler must give six months' notice in writing to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of his intention to do so.

Mark Twain On Advertising.

Success.

"It pays to advertise," said Mark Twain at a recent banquet. "When I was editing the Virginia City Enterprise, writing copy one day and mining the next, I tried to force this truth home in many ways. One day I received a letter from a subscriber saying he had found a spider pressed between the pages of his paper, and he wanted to know was this good or bad luck? I replied to him in our Answers to Correspondents column as follows:

"Old Subscriber,—The finding of a spider in your copy of the Enterprise was neither good luck nor bad. The spider was merely looking over our pages to find out what merchant was not advertising, so that it could spin its web across his door and lead a free and undisturbed existence forever after."

Hope Beyond.

A physician at a popular health resort was looking over his books one day, comparing his list of patients. "I had a great many more patients last year than I have this," he remarked to his wife. "I wonder where they have all gone to?"

"Well, never mind, dear," she replied, "you know all we can do is to hope for the best."

REIGN OF VICTORIA

REMARKABLE SERIES OF STATE DOCUMENTS.

War Weighed Upon Her—Wrote of Its "Dreadful and Incalculable Consequences"—Home Life Shown.

Queen Victoria's Letters, edited by A. C. Benson and Lord Esher and published last week, are stated in the preface to form "what is probably the most extraordinary series of state documents in the world."

They are a monument of industry and an enduring testimonial of devotion to the sense of right and a powerful stimulus to patriotism. Never before has the country been taken into the confidence of a monarch with such frankness and lack of restraint.

The letters published in these three bulky volumes cover the period of twenty-four years that elapsed between her accession in 1837 and the death of the Prince Consort in 1861. There are some letters referring to the Queen's early life in which the writer refers to Uncle Leopold I., King of the Belgians, as providing the "brightest epoch of my otherwise melancholy childhood."

On June 19, 1837, the then Princess Victoria wrote to her uncle, informing him of the imminence of the death of William IV. In speaking of her expected accession she said:

"I look forward to the event, which, it seems, is likely to occur soon, with calmness and quietness. I am not alarmed at it, and yet I do not suppose myself quite equal at all. I trust, however, that with good will, honesty, and courage I shall not, at all events, fail." This letter concluded with the hope that "the All Powerful Being, who has so long watched over my destinies, will guide and support me in whatever situation and station it may please him to place me."

There are some native remarks in a long description of the coronation, which the Queen wrote in her private journal:

"Millions of my subjects showed good humor and excessive loyalty, and really I cannot say how proud I feel to be Queen of such a nation. * * * When my good Lord of Melbourne knelt down and kissed my hand he pressed my hand, and I grasped his with my heart. * * * The Archbishop had most awkwardly put the ring on the wrong finger, and I had the greatest difficulty to take it off again which at last I did with great pain. * * * The crown hurt me a good deal."

The day after her marriage, February 11, 1858, the Queen wrote to King Leopold from Windsor Castle.

"Dearest Uncle: I write you from here the happiest, happiest being that ever existed. Really I do not think it possible for any one in the world to be happier or as happy as I am. He is an angel, and his kindness and affection for me is really touching. To look in those dear eyes and dear sunny face is enough to make me adore him. What I can do to make him happy will be my greatest delight and independent of my great personal happiness.

"The reception we both met with yesterday was most gratifying and enthusiastic I ever experienced. There was no end of crowds in London, and all along the road."

A letter written soon after the birth of the present King ran as follows:

"Our little boy is a wonderfully strong and large child, with very large, blue eyes and finely formed, but with a somewhat large nose and pretty little mouth. I hope and pray he may be like his dearest papa. He is to be called Albert, and Edward is to be his second name."

Queen Victoria, although she confessed on occasion to King Leopold that she grew to dislike politics, closely followed every political question. She thus refers to Sir Robert Peel's bill to increase the grant to the Roman Catholic College at Maynooth:

"Buckingham Palace, April 15, 1845.

"My Beloved Uncle;

"Here we are in a great state of agitation about one of the greatest measures ever proposed. I am sure poor Peel ought to be blessed by all Catholics for the manly and noble way in which he stands forth to protect and do good to poor Ireland. But the bigotry, wicked, and blind passions it brings forth is quite dreadful, and I blush for Protestantism.

"A Presbyterian clergyman said very truly that bigotry is more common than shame."

Between 1848 and 1851 there was friction between the Court and Palmerston over the conduct of foreign affairs, and finally the latter resigned. On December 3, 1851, the Queen wrote to King Leopold I.:

"Dearest Uncle,—I have the greatest pleasure in announcing to you a piece of news which will give you as much satisfaction and relief as it does to us, and will do to the whole of the world. Lord Palmerston is no longer foreign secretary, and Lord Granville is already named as his successor. He had become of late really quite reckless, and, in spite of the serious admonition and caution he received, only on the 9th of November, and again at the beginning of December, he tells Walewki that he entirely approves of Louis Napoleon's coup d'etat, when he had written to Lord Normanby by my and my cabinet's desire that he (Lord Normanby) was to continue his diplomatic intercourse with the French government, but was to remain perfectly passive and give no opinion."

In a letter to her uncle after her visit to Spithead in 1840, the Queen made the following reference to the British navy: "I think it is in these immense wooded walls that our real greatness lies."

And in another to the same correspondent ten years later she thus spoke of the Duke of Wellington:

"I am sure you will mourn with us over the loss we and this whole nation have experienced in the death of the dear and great old Duke of Wellington. He was the pride and the bon genie, as it were, of this country. He was the greatest man this country ever produced, and the most devoted and loyal subject, and the stanchest supporter the Crown ever had. He was to us a true, kind friend and a most valuable adviser. To think that all this is gone; that this great and immortal man belongs now to history and no longer to the present is a truth which we cannot realize."

There are many letters referring to the Crimean war. One speaks of the "dreadful and incalculable consequences of war weighing upon my heart." Another quotes Shakespeare's words, "Beware of entrance to a quarrel; but being in, bear't that the opposed may beware of thee," as being deeply engraved on the hearts of all Englishmen.

Three years later, in 1857, there is this reference to the Indian Mutiny: "We are in sad anxiety about India, which engrosses all our attention. Troops cannot be raised fast or largely enough, and the horrors committed on poor ladies, women, and children are unknown in these ages and make one's blood run cold. Altogether, the whole is so much more distressing than the Crimea, where there was glory and honorable warfare, and where poor women and children were safe."

The book ends with the death of the Prince Consort. The Queen pours out her soul to her second father, Leopold I., in her anguish as she had done in her joy:

"Osborne, 20th December, 1861.

"My own dearest, kindest father, for as such have I ever loved you. The poor fatherless baby of eight months is now the utterly broken-hearted and crushed widow of forty-two. My life as a happy one is ended. The world is gone for me. If I must live on—and I will do nothing to make me worse than I am—it is henceforth for our poor fatherless children, for my unhappy country which has lost all in losing him, and in only doing what I know and feel he would wish; for he is near me; his spirit will guide and inspire me. But, oh, to be cut off in the prime of life; to see our pure, happy, quiet, domestic life, which alone enabled me to bear my much-disliked position, cut off at forty-two, when I had hoped with such instinctive certainty that God never would part us, and would let us grow old together!

"Although he always talked of the shortness of life, it is too awful, too cruel, and yet it must be for his good, his happiness. His purity was too great, his aspirations too high for this poor, miserable world. His great soul is now only enjoying that for which it was worthy, and I will not envy him, only pray that mine may be perfected by it, and fit to be with him eternally, for which blessed moment I earnestly long."

The book has been copyrighted by the King in Great Britain and dependencies.

STRATHCONA BUDGET.

Improvements on Farms—Work at the Paper Mill.

Stratheona, Oct. 22.—An abundance of superior paper finds a ready market at quite an advance in price compared with one year ago. The worthy proprietor, W. J. Finlay, deserves all the good luck that is now coming his way. Messrs. Parrott and Balance have annexed a device to facilitate the loading of the paper with ease and dispatch and have also the contract of the carpenter work of the two cement annexes in contemplation of erection soon.

Contrast the appearance of F. A. Macdonald's ranche now and one year ago when fire made it desolate. His bank barn erected last fall by R. Dougan, and his house now in course of construction, both of which are a credit to contractor and owner. Two verandahs of ornate design improve the house on the Madden ranche. Leslie Balance constructed them.

There was a good crop on J. T. Wilson's farm, and it was a varied one, consisting of hay, grain, as well as beans, corn and tomatoes for the canning factory. There is no better farm in the county for a fruit farm than this. When are we going to have this canning factory?

W. Balance is looking for a bumper crop in 1908 and he richly deserves it having put his farm in elegant shape for the frost to complete the preparation of the soil. His industry and affable disposition commend him to his friends.

C. Blue, wife and children, visiting A. N. Blue, of People's Store, returned to Madoc via Belleville, on Tuesday. Miss Maude Blue, Metis, Quebec, assumed the duties of accountant and assistant postmistress on Monday.

Charles Lake, the genial station agent, took a run to Kingston. The school, under Miss Vanluven, Napanee, is making rapid strides. Two parties have been inspecting the lime-kilns with a view of purchase. Hickory nuts, apples and vegetables are garnered in. Mrs. A. McLean, still at her mother's, contemplates returning to Montreal.

County And Village Politics.

Canadian Freeman.

The next "throw-down" will be J. S. Gallagher, the present member for the local legislature. He will please step aside and make way for Dr. Spankie, of Wolfe Island.

It is stated that John Fisher, the present reeve of Portsmouth, will not again seek the position, as his business interests in town and village require all his time and attention.

M. J. Kennedy, the pushing councillor of Portsmouth village, is being urgently requested by a large number of ratepayers to allow his name to be put in nomination for the reeveship at the coming election, and if he does, the probability is that he will be elected by acclamation. He is the life of the little western suburb of Kingston, and has been one of the best all round councillors Portsmouth has ever had.

LETTER FROM J. J. RAE

HE HAS NOT ACCEPTED CHICAGO CHURCH.

No Methodist Church in the Windy City. Pays $5,000—Mr. Rae Remains An Enthusiastic Canadian.

Chicago, Oct. 18.—(To the Editor): Will you permit me to correct a statement which appeared, first, in your columns, to the effect that I have been invited to the pastorate of a Methodist church in Chicago paying $5,000 salary. The aim of Chicago Methodism has been not to have great churches but to add churches as the city extended, giving a definite territory and adequate support to each. Hence there is not a church in Chicago Methodism paying the salary stated. There is one church pays $4,000 and provides a residence for its pastor, and this is the highest salary paid.

A cordial welcome has been given me here, good offers have been made me and Bishop Warren and his cabinet very kindly opened the way and invited me to join this conference but I did not do so and am still an enthusiastic Canadian staying for a time in the United States.

I would not make this correction only that I fear that the statement, which has been widely copied, might be considered as emanating from me or with my authority. I know the kindliness of the motive which induced your correspondent to give publicity to a rumor which he fully believed and which he and you and I no doubt heartily regret avoids verification.—Faithfully yours, J. J. RAE.

NAPANEE HAPPENINGS.

A Boy Knocked Down By a Horse.

Napanee, Oct. 23.—On Saturday night last, about twelve o'clock, a fire occurred in the residence of L. Shannon, Mill street west. The fire was caused by the bursting of a coal oil lamp. The fire brigade extinguished the fire before any serious damage was done.

Charles Clark, the seven-year-old son of Mrs. A. C. Clark, had a narrow escape from serious injury on Saturday evening last. He was in front of Wonderland with some other children when Miss Carrie Williams drove along. The child did not see the horse nor did Miss Williams see the boy on account of the electric lights. In consequence he was knocked down and run over, but when picked up and examined he did not appear to be much hurt.

Mrs. John Milling and Mrs. John Gault enjoyed a very pleasant drive to Deseronto last Friday and spent the day calling on friends.

A. Clark, Richmond, J. C. Gibson, W. Ferguson and J. J. Young left, yesterday, for the west. A. T. Harshaw is adjusting a fire loss at Sault Ste. Marie this week. Mrs. O. A. Knight and daughter, Orra, are spending a few days in Kingston this week.

James Woods, Brockville, died, on Tuesday, from paralysis. He was sixty-four years of age. A widow, four daughters and two sons survive.

REV. C. W. CASSON, OTTAWA.

On Being Discouraged.

Are you discouraged? It is only because you have not realized the fullness of your privilege as the child of God. It is your privilege to know that God is supreme in this universe, and in every smallest part of it. If you are seeking the good, and are true to the best, no circumstance in life should be able to make you feel discouraged. You simply cannot fail, if you are doing God's work. What may seem to you to be failure is but the prelude of victory. If you are not doing God's work, and are not true to the best in you, then, of course, it is a different matter.

A Preventive of Old Age.

It would seem that nature created the Olive in a holiday mood and endowed it with delights and virtues above all other fruits.

It is so remarkable a solvent that it dissolves the Calcareous Matter, which settling in the arteries and joints causes the stiffness of old age and produces rheumatism.

Thus the use of Lyvola Ripe Oliver is the best means to retard the advance of old age.
