On New Year's afternoon, Mrs. H. W. Richardson entertained at a very bright and delightful tea, at her beautiful home on King street. The rooms were very effectively decorated with evergreens and holly. Mrs. Richardson, in a handsome black satin gown with sequin trimmings, received her guests, assisted by her daughter, Miss Bessie Richardson, in a dainty dress of old rose silk. In the dining-room the polished mahogany tea table, which was presided over by Mrs. Arthur Cunningham and Mrs. Walter Boyd, Ottawa, looked lovely. In the centre, on a handsome lace centrepiece, stood a large plant of red cyclamen, surrounded with bunches of white hyacinth, and over this hung the electric lights shaded with an exquisite red dome. From the dome to each corner of the room wreaths of evergreen were suspended. Here the wants of the guests were looked after by Misses Eva and Mabel Richardson and Miss Mamie Anglin. LOST FOR TWO YEARS

CONTENTS OF A POUCH ACCIDENTALLY DROPPED.

Currency and Epistles Were Intact—Naval Man Receives a Long Delayed Invitation to a Friend's Wedding.

San Francisco, Jan. 3.—In a truckload of railway mail received from the north was a venerable, battle-scarred pouch, which has an interesting history.

It was lost in the wilds of Lassen county for more than two years, and was found a few days ago with its contents intact. These consisted of registered letters containing currency and of ordinary mail. The letters were a little worse for the weather, the rains and snows of two years, but they were at once forwarded to their destination.

The pouch was moldy in places and the leather binding had been gnawed by coyotes, but the meal proved too rough even for coyotes.

In February, 1919, Ira Anthony, carrier of the route between Glade and Hansen, while riding horseback upon the mountain trails was caught in a violent snowstorm, in the midst of which he was pursued by a pack of wolves. After he had emptied his revolver and killed three of the beasts they retreated, howling dismally. Then Anthony discovered that one of the mail pouches tied to his saddle was missing.

Waiting until the storm had ended, he retraced his way for about eight miles in search of the pouch, but the snow had obliterated all tracks of the trail or of his horse's tracks.

Ever since then the mail riders have been on the lookout for the pouch, but all search was unavailing until a few days ago, when one of the riders, taking an unfrequented trail, stumbled upon it.

Chancellor Lloyd-George Makes Characteristic Utterance.

London, Jan. 2.—Chancellor Lloyd-George, on Sunday, spoke with the faith that is in him and in impassioned accents. Incidentally he furnished his adversaries with a new weapon of attack. The chancellor was addressing a church meeting in Wales.

"Poverty," he said, "is not the fault of Providence, which provides in abundance. There are millions of men, women and children in this, the richest country in the worls, who, through no fault of their own, go through life sodden in poverty, wretchedness, and despair.

"You cannot deal with a problem of magnitude by mere spasmodic appeals to the charity of the benevolent. That is hopelessly inadequate. You might as well try to run the army and navy by voluntary subscription. It is the community alone that can command the resources to drain this morass of wretchedness, so as to convert it into a verdant and fertile plain.

"I do not agree with the view that the church is concerned solely with spiritual things. Those who take that view reflect on the career of the Master. They repudiate the precepts and doctrines of the greatest disciples, whose first act, on founding a church was to establish a fund for the care of the poor and the first poor law guardians ever established.

"And, remember the trouble which befell the man who did not fill in his forms properly and who did not give a correct account of his property to the chancellor of the exchequer."

Much laughter followed, for Lloyd George's Welsh audience saw nothing blasphemous in the joke, as many of the chancellor's critics do.

FAVORS MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP

Many Improvements Are Urged by Mayor.

Watertown, N.Y., Jan. 3.—Recommendations made by Mayor Francis M. Hugo, of Watertown, in his annual message, were, in brief:

A municipal lighting plant and the development of the city's water power to its highest efficiency.

A public market in order to stimulate trade. No objections would be offered to a part of Public Square being set apart for the market as a starting place.

A building code, which will at once replace the present one, deemed by the mayor as totally inadequate to meet present day construction.

A system of industrial education in which the council, school board and manufacturers shall co-operate.

An overhead crossing for the railroad at the extreme end of Massey street, a particularly dangerous point.

A trunk sewer on the north side of Black river from a point below the Central house to the Pearl street plant of the New York Air Break plant, and the rebuilding of the Cooper street outlet sewer.

The paving and further improvement of a number of the city's streets and a trial of a concrete pavement being used at Ann Arbor, Mich.
