GODEY'S LADY'S BOOK.
FOR 1849.
DEDICATED TO THE LADIES OF THE UNITED STATES.
Edited by SARAH J. HALE,
GRACE GREENWOOD,
and L. A. GODEY.
A Novelette by MISS E. LESLIE, who contributes to every No.
N. P. WILLIS' Original Scriptural Poetry.
T. S. ARTHUR, who contributes to every No. illustrative of Groome's Sketches of American Character.
We intend merely to give a notice of our intentions for next year, leaving to others long advertisements—"full of sound and fury, signifying nothing."
Agreeably to the practice of last year, the publisher will issue as good a number each month he does in January. This is a novel feature in Magazine publishing. During the whole of last year he gave more engravings and more reading matter than any of his contemporaries, and will continue to do so next year. Those who subscribe to GODEY'S LADY'S BOOK, may do so under the assurance that they will receive more for their money in the Magazine alone, than by subscribing to any other work. To this is added and included in the same $3, the LADY'S DOLLAR NEWSPAPER, which contains in one month nearly, if not quite as much reading matter as the other monthlies, making for $3, the amount of reading of two magazines a month. THERE ARE PECULIARITIES about Godey's Lady's Book for the Ladies that no other Magazine possesses. There is a Mezzotint and Line Engraving in each number—both by the best artists. In addition to these, there are given monthly what no other magazine gives—a Colored Fashion Plate, with a full description. This fee ure is peculiar to Godey, as no other work has them every month and colored. Then there are Caps, Bonnets, Chemisettes, Equestrianism for Ladies, with Engravings. The Ladies' Work Table, with designs for knitting, netting, crotchet, and all other kinds of work. Patterns for Smoking Caps, Chair Covers, Window Curtains, D'Oyley's, Purses, Bags, &c &c. Health and Beauty, with Engravings. Model Cottages, with ground plans, and other engravings, always illustrative of something useful. Music beautifully printed on tinted paper, which may be taken out and bound. Colored Modern Cottages, and Colored Flower Pieces occasionally. These are all extra in Godey, and to be found in no other Magazine. These were all given last year, and will be continued.—In addition we shall have in every No., one of "CROOME'S-SKETCHES OF AMERICAN CHARACTERISTICS,"
A most amusing series, now first given to the American public. These will be illustrated in every No. by a Story from the powerful pen of T. S. Arthur Esq.
"THE CHANGES OF FASHION,"
Illustrated by Fay Robinson, Esq. This series will be very interesting to the ladies.
"THE APPLICABILITY OF THE FINE ARTS TO DOMESTIC USES,"
Is another series of Engravings now in preparation and will be published during the year.
COTTAGE FURNITURE.
Having given so many Model Cottages, we intend now to commence the publication of Cottage Furniture—a very necessary appendage to a Cottage.
RELIGION AND HISTORY.
Our superior Artists, Walters, Tucker, Pease and Welch, are now engaged upon a set of plates illustrative of these two subjects.
OUR MUSIC.
Prepared expressedly for us—mostly original, and beautifully printed, has long commanded a decided preference over that of any other Magazine. It is a feature in The Book.
THE LITERARY CHARACTER OF GODEY'S LADY BOOK
With such writers as Miss Leslie, Grace Greenwood, W. G. Simms, Mrs Ellet, T. S. Arthur, Mrs E. Oakes Smith, Mrs. J. C. Neal, H. T. Tuckerman, H. W. Herbert, &c., the author of the Yellow Bedoll, Professor Frost, Bryant, Longfellow, Holmes—and a host of others—must always take the lead in literary merit.
TERMS:
For Three Dollars we will send the Lady's Book containing more reading matter than any other monthly, and the Lady's Dollar Newspaper published twice a month, which contains as much reading as any of the $3 periodicals of the day—making three publications in one month, or if the subscriber prefers the following splendid engravings to the Lady's Dollar Newspaper, (although we would not advise it, as engravings cannot be sent through the mail without being crushed or creased) we will send the beautiful plate containing the portraits of Harriet Newell, Fanny Forrester, Mrs. Stewart, Mrs. Ann H. Judson and Mrs. E. B. Dwight, and the plates of Christ Weeping over Jerusalem, The Opening of the Sepulchre, Deliverance of St. Peter, and The Rebuke. If preferred to the Newspaper or plates, we will send Miss Leslie's Novel of Amelia, and any three of Mrs. Grey's or Miss Pickering's popular novels
For Five Dollars we will send two copies of the Lady's Book, and a set of the plates to each subscriber.
For Ten Dollars we will send five copies of the Lady's Book, and a copy to the person sending the Club, and a set of plates to each.
For Twenty Dollars, eleven copies of the Book and a set of plates to each subscriber, and a copy of the Book to the person sending the Club.
For One Dollar we will send the Lady's Book 4 months, and for 25 cents any one No. Postage to be paid on all orders.
Address, L. A. GODEY,
113 Chesnut Street, Philadelphia.

The Whale Fisheries.

From the London Times.

We have received the subjoined letter regarding the project of Mr. Enderby for re-establishing our Southern Whale Fisheries:—

"Sir,—The public, no less than Mr. Enderby, have to thank you for giving weight to his efforts to revive an important branch of our commerce—the South Sea Whale Fishery; and they have further to thank you, in publishing his plan, for not absolutely pronouncing in favor of the whole of it.

"Proof of the Auckland Isles, it is natural that Mr. Enderby should choose therefore the favored region upon which to pour forth a part of the capital of the wealthy company he desires to form and to benefit. But with yourself and the public, the question will be, 'Are the Auckland Isles the most promising site for the operations of the company?' Mr. Enderby may conscientiously believe they are. They who are interested in New Zealand will unhesitatingly pronounce in favor of the latter. Let the public, turning from either party, attend to the simple facts of the question.

"On the South-east extremity of New Zealand, and directly facing the main fishery ground, lies the harbor of Otago, thirteen miles long, and averaging three wide. Midway in its length, it is nearly crossed by a peninsula on one side, and a promontory on the other, and small islands between them. The first is the site of the nascent sea-port, Port Chalmers, with deep water and abundant anchorage all round, and nearly close to its shore, where in six weeks may be lying the Ajax, of near 800 tons, now on her way with the sixth ship load of superior settlers of various grades. The majority of the proprietors have bought land freely at £2 an acre (a high colonial price,) and acquired grazing rights, under the conviction that on raising produce abundantly for victualling ships the South Sea whale trade would revive, and Otago offer an admirable depôt for the oil to be conveyed by carrying vessels to Europe according to the obvious and judicious views of Mr Enderby. With this view they are now breaking up the rich soil for grain crops, and are importing stock from Australia at a heavy cost for grazing the boundless open downs inland. With fresh water, coal, wood, limestone, and all other natural resources in abundance, a whaling company would find Port Chalmers risen up with quays, warehouses, and well filled granaries, demanding on their part no other aid than custom, their capital remaining wholly available for fishing. Why then try to divert the natural and expected course of trade, and by the force of capital to make the Auckland Islands the depôt? In the wide whaling region, of which Otago is quite as near the centre as they are, it were idle to compare [illegible] two localities sixty degrees apart; while Otago is somewhat nearer to England financially for returning ships, which all come home by way of Cape Horn.

"Of the character of those cold, uninhabited islands that [illegible] so much authority?—' The Auckland Islands, in the lonely ocean south of New Zealand, are covered with dense, and all but impenetrable thickets of stunted trees, or shrubs, guarded by gales from a stormy sea.'—Why, when Otago is ready for the accommodation of the company, spend money anew on such dreary spots? Have we not competition enough at home, that our countrymen must go to the Antipodes to dissipate their powers in wasteful rivalry? Let the company fix on Otago, and they may have all the whaling to themselves, with abundant supplies on the spot, and none of the risk of raising it. As to Mr. Enderby himself, he would be, of all others, the man to occupy the Lieutenant Governorship to be formed at Otago, over New Zealand—a vast and noble country, where his laudable ambition might have far better scope than tangled amidst the 'grassed bushes' of bleak and boist-rous little pole-wind realm. At all events, if his affections are too firmly rivetted to the small islands he has so long owned, let not the company undertake the superfluous expense of supporting them, and of forcing Otago to establish a rival company, whose fleets bring fed by the soil, shall ship their oil on the bosom of her waters.

"I am, Sir, your faithful servant,

"J. J."

These views seem not unreasonable, but it is believed they were all taken into consideration before the Auckland Islands were finally determined upon as the site of the projected company. If we are rightly informed, facilities for carrying out his scheme were equally presented to Mr. Enderby in Australia, Van Diemen's Land, and New Zealand, and it was, therefore, for no reason beyond that of a sense of peculiar fitness that the Auckland's were selected. We have it on the authority of Captain Ross that, "in the whole range of the vast Southern Ocean no spot could be found combining so completely the essential requisites for a fixed whaling station," and amongst the especial points urged in support of this opinion, are—1. The necessity that whaling stations should always, if possible, be isolated so as to preclude the chance of the population being attracted fitfully to other pursuits, while, at the same time the stores would be more safe from plunder. 2. That in the high southern latitudes there is a most extensive fishery as yet undisturbed. 3. That the blubber in its raw state would not admit of being taken for the purpose of being boiled in a climate so warm even as that of Van Diemen's Land or New Zealand; and 4. The freedom from the immediate presence of any competitors. As regards the gales and general dreariness of the islands, these features, even if they prevailed to a considerable extent, would be of little importance to the class for whom the colony is proposed to be established; but the concurrent testimony of most voyagers by whom the region has been visited seems to show that it deserves a better description than such characteristics would convey. D'Urville, speaking of the principal harbor, says, "It is one of the finest I know," while the east coast is stated to have exhibited "here and there a fine sandy beach upon which the sea scarcely broke, and intersected by numerous streams and inlets." Dubouzet, also one of the French officers, alludes to the probability of colonists being attracted by "the fine harbor of the islands and their temperate climate;" and Lieutenant Wilkes speaks of it as a very desirable place at which to refit. The statement of scientific persons, moreover, as to the soil is that it is "generally good and highly productive, and that the climate, although somewhat humid, and subject to heavy squalls, is, nevertheless, very healthy." It is not contended but that whaling may be carried on profitably both from New Zealand and Australia, and these fields will still be open to individual enterprise; but the point maintained is that for all the permanent requisites of a public company, the Aucklands are much more favorably situated, and the correctness of this opinion has long been admitted, not only by the most experienced persons in England, but also in Australia, where great benefits (which would equally reach New Zealand) are expected to arise, both directly and indirectly, from the success of the contemplated scheme.

The "Priest of the Archdiocese of Tuam" has again appeared in print, and in the course of a second epistle, advocating the principle of a State provision for the clergy, he thus further deals with the arguments against the measure as laid down in the late manifesto of the "Lion of the fold of Judah:"—

"Is it not a matter of notoriety that bishops and priests are at this moment the recipients of a State provision in the British colonies, and is it not equally notorious that religion is fast progressing in those very places? But why leave home to look for examples when salaries are received from the poor-houses, gaols, and barracks of our own country by Catholic clergy, men, without any remonstrance being called forth from the lawful superior? Is not the money received, under such circumstances, obtained from the Government, and why is it not refused as a 'poisonous boon?' With such facts staring us in the face, I tell you, Sir, that it is most improper for any man, no matter how high his position in the Church, to designate "as the pensioners of the Crown," 'the slaves of the Minister,' and 'insolent oppressors,' in fact, 'as a hireling and stipendiary priesthood," honest, laborious, hard-working clergymen, who, on account of their straitened circumstances and in times like these, would consent to accept the pension. It must be borne in mind that I do not advocate the pension in every possible shape in which it might be offered. I would indignantly reject it, if the offer were accompanied by any conditions der
