The Most Liquid Investment

A SAVINGS Bank Account is primarily an investment. But it is the only investment yielding a fair rate of interest, that is available for your use at a moment's notice. Emergencies can be immediately met by the bank account that has been consistently developed. Your investment, as such, yields regular returns in interest. Your investment as a bank account yields constant satisfaction and peace of mind in the fact that it is always ready for other uses without the trouble of converting into cash.

It wouldn't be exactly fair to refer to the family butcher as a regular cut-up.

A Flesherton Pioneer

More than 45 years ago Baptist Home Mission work was attempted in the large district surrounding what is now known as the Flesherton and Rock Mills field. Large sections of the townships were included in this district. The workers were very few in number, but they were excellent in quality—they were not Baptist for contention, but from conviction, and were men and women of devout spirit, clear vision and unwavering faith in God. A central place in that devoted place was filled by J. E. Moore and his spiritually minded wife,(who now with their family live at Mountain View, Calif.) They accepted in a whole sense the charge to "Seek first the Kingdom of God." In preaching, holding prayer meetings, evangelistic services, temperance meetings and Sunday Schools and were constant in season and out of season. Nearly all visitors to the field for years in the early stages of the work were entertained in their home.

Mr. Moore is in his 82nd year. He and Mrs. Moore are in good health and they and ther children and grandchildren are enjoying the blessings of the Christian life and the privileges of Christian service.

In a letter written to a friend on January 12th, Mr. Moore in telling of his coming from his home in England to begin life in Canada, says: "Landing in Toronto Sunday morning (in 1871 or 1872) early, perhaps 2 a. m., I was awakened by the chimes of the English church at 7 a.m. After breakfast at the hotel somewhere on Front Street, I walked out and found old Bond Street Baptist church. Dr. Stewart was then pastor and editor of "The Canadian Baptist". On the Monday following I met the reception committee at the church and presented my church letter, subscribed, which was their custom then to expect from every member, a weekly stated amount for church expenses and at the same time subscribed for the denominational paper, which was a welcome weekly visitor to our home for a very long time and which we were privileged to enjoy even after coming to California. It is not easy to say how much "The Canadian Baptist" contributed toward making such workers what they, for so long, have been and how large a share the Baptist had in bringing about all the fruitage that has appeared in the Flesherton Field.

REV. T. WATSON

(Ed. Note:—Rev. Watson is at present living in Toronto and left Flesherton on December 9th, 1890. His many friends here would be pleased to see him again after his long absence.)

On The High Seas

had spoken, when a shout was heard. "Ship a starboard." It was almost unbelievable to the crew, though sure enough, not far away a ship was seen ploughing towards them and bearing down with all speed. The seas were yet too rough to launch a life boat, and as the big ship came wthin hailing distance it was seen to be a large French liner with a cargo of automobiles for the French army. No time was lost in getting communcations from her. The Captain of the liner calling at once, said he would wait along side until the seas went down. Captain Lawson answered: "If you cannot rescue us within the hour you might just as well be on your way."

This was enough; the French Captain knew the schooner must be in a precarious condition and made all haste to lower boats. The first two attempts were futile, smashing their boats against the sides of the liner like so much matchwood. The third was more successful in getting away, but not until after repeated efforts, were they successful in getting a line to the now doomed schooner, which was fast sinking. The line was soon fastened and the first sailor swung himself clear of the schooner, hand over hand. This was real hardship, their hands almost cut to the bone. Even Jasper, who had a broken leg, made the desperate bid for his life and succeeded in landing on the deck of the liner. Captain Lawson was the last to leave, and on landing on the deck of the liner, turned for one last look at his derelict schooner. Nothing met his eyes but the angry seas. She had sunk beneath, while the captain was struggling with might and main in the waters. Everything was made as comfortable as possible for the schooner's crew. Jasper was put into the hospital which was situated on the highest point of the deck. The storm had not yet lost its strength. Mountains of sea were threatening to engulf the liner. Two hundred of the automobiles which were on deck had to be slipped overboard for the safety of the vessel.

No lives were lost and the seas began to recede. One hour more and the liner was safe, running into perfectly smooth waters, and five days broubht her safely into home port.

No name was given to the French liner as she was camouflaged as most large oceans liners were at that time. The schooner's crew were well taken care of and returned to American shores by a returning vessel two weeks later, except for the sailor Jasper, who was sent to an English hospital and did not return home until the spring of 1919.

This is only one of the hundreds of experiences and adventures of the Newfoundland sailors and fishermen, and many of the stories and yarns of this kind are to be heard at the firesides of their homes throughout the winter. Many are the disasters that happen along the rugged coast and many a heroic deed has been done that will never be brought to light. Such is the life of the Newfoundland sailor and fisherman, proud of his native Island, but no boaster.
