Damages For Being Sacked

Judgment for $300 damages and costs was awarded to William Turner by his lordship Judge Mahaffey in his case against Hiram Wallwin for unlawful dismissal, heard in county court at Barrie. Accordingly to the plaintiff, he had been hired by Wallwin last November to work on his farm near Alliston on a yearly basis of $500 cash, a house to live in, garden plot, use of three cows and 30 chickens and free fuel. On January 24 Turner claimed he had been summarily dismissed by Wallwin in a fit of temper. This left him unemployed at the hardest time of the year to get work.

In defendng his acton on the witness stand, Wallwin said Turner had proved unsatisfactory in his work. He cited instances where he had not carried out his (Wallwin's) orders and complained that he was sometimes late in getting the team harnessed for the day's work. In establishing the amount of work Turner was expected to do in a day, which might prevent his accomplishing such extra jobs as threshing beans, which defendant claimed he had spoken about several times, counsel for the plaintiff had his client enumerate his tasks.

Turner stated there were 25 to 26 horses to be fed and watered three times a day. Twenty head of cattle all the time and sometimes more for which her had to carry all the chaff and pump all the water. There was no modern equipment to lighten his task. There were also 30 hogs and some sheep to be looked after besides the fall plowing to be done and grain and wood to be hauled.

In pronouncing judgment the court said that the defendant was not justified in dismissing, that dismissal was an extreme remedy to be applied when everything else failed. The onus was distinctly upon the defendant too justify his action, which he had failed to do.

ORGANIZING FOR LACROSSE

Donald Graham, athletic instructor in Runneymede Collegiate, Toronto, was in town on Tuesday, with a view to stimulating interest in lacrosse among youths from 10 to 18 years. He interviewed a number of men likely to be interested, and purposes calling a meeting to organize a team here in the near future. Orangeville, Shelburne, Flesherton and perhaps Markdale are taking up the game and Dundalk youths would do well to get into competition with the teams from other towns.—Dundalk Herald.

Because baseball cannot be played quietly the playing of this game is illegal on Sundays. There seems to be sound reason for this law for noise upon Sunday is most unseemly. Upon the other hand those who play baseball cannot see why their game should be prohibited while tennis and golf are allowed, and there is also sound reason in this view. Just at present baseball is being disallowed at Windsor and there is very strong resentment in the matter.

A uniformed officer hailed a local motorist recently and asked for an explanation as to why he sported a set of markers on his sedan with an X preceding the four figures stamped thereon. In former years markers with an X hanging onto one end of them indicated that the outfit was used for commercial purposes and as a consequence the owner had to contribute a little more revenue to the provincial exchequer. The limb of the law suspecting that it was perhaps a case of switching markers and using them for general purposes, was in the act of feeling around in his pocket for material to take notes of the happening for specific purposes, when the obliging motorist between spasms of laughter let him in on the secret that the markers were bought in Toronto, where the crosses on license plates were as common on the streets as they were on ballots in the polling booth opposite the names of Tory candidates. That the explanation proved highly satisfactory was apparent as the courteous officer smiled his thanks and giving the driver a dignified salute each went on his way smiling all over as a result of the incident.
