THE OLD STONE HOUSE

Hewn stone, it stood, those gilded years
Of youthful fire and dreams so sweet
When laughter flirts with ready ears
And life itself is incomplete;—
The years their steady course have run
So placid days from youth's bright dawn;
And life has reached its setting sun
With still a finger pointing on.

Again the old stone house I saw
Deserted by the life it knew;
No curtain by the panes to draw
No warmth or comfort there be-strew
But boarded windows, creaking floors
And plaster that, long-clinging falls,—
So sad to dream of swinging doors
And silence deep when mem'ry calls.

The windows long have lost their sight,
All boarded up as in despair,
And dark it stands, as dark as night
And only empty dreams are there.
Fireplaces old are cobwebbed black,
The ceilings sag — the folk are gone!
The dreams of yesterday flood back
As fresh as if it still were dawn.

And as the children walked today
Romantic ways their grandma knew
Full fifty years, and more, away,—
Within their tender hearts there grew
Fresh dreams and visions of their own
And age looked on, and fancied there
When fifty years again had flown
A bit of "How, and Whom, and Where."

WODEHOUSE

Come to Flesherton fair on Fri. Sept. 19 and meet old friends.

The dry spell has broken and a refreshing rain is falling Monday, doing a great amount of good to the country in general. A light shower also fell on Saturday evening.

A serious catastrophe was narrowly averted on Thursday when Ernie Boyle's barn caught fire by a spark from the engine while threshing grain. Luckily a neighbor, Mr. Russell Graham, saw the smoke coming from the corner of the barn, while the threshers were in at dinner, and by giving the alarm the fire was extinguished, which, in five minutes more, would have meant the destruction of all. The fire had started in between the silo and barn. The very dry condition of everything has made it dangerous for threshing by steam and many have been waiting to thresh later, on that account.

Misses Arlie Kirkpatrick and Ella Wiley entertained the Sunday school classes, the little boys and girls to a lawn party held on the church grounds. The little folks enjoyed games and races of various kinds and then were treated to a dainty lunch; returning home tired and happy after their fun.

IN MEMORIAM

WRIGHT—In loving memory of our dear uncle, Fred Wright, who passed away one year ago today, Sept. 15, 1929.

The blow was great, the shock severe.
We little thought the end so near
Its only those who have lost can tell
The sorrow of parting without farewell.
Sleep on dear uncle, your cares are ended,
Rest in peace your work is done,
You'rs gone where those who loved you,
Will some day meet you, one by one.

Sadly missed by nieces, nephew,
By Shier and Boyce families.
