The real winter weather with a real fall of snow has given the farmers a jolt to remember. Though the moisture will make the land fit for plowing it will make slush and mud for gathering the roots of which very few are yet in.

Peters of Meaford did likewise in the evening. Both services were very helpful and enjoyed by all. Special music was given by the choir and a thankoffering of $104 was received. Mr. and Mrs. Adam Smith Celebrate Golden Wedding

A very happy time was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Smith, Eugenia, on Thursday, October 23, it being their Golden Wedding day. The bride and groom of 50 years ago were in good health and the best of spirits. Mr. Smith, tho' getting close to 90 years, is still smart, with as strong a mind as ever. He is the last survivor of a family of twelve. Mrs. Smith is still the same bright, cheerful friend as she was fifty years ago. Though her mother heart has sustained many crushing blows, they have not crushed her. She has never lost that well-known winning smile. Besides themselves there were three others who attended the wedding fifty years ago, being Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Madden, the former performing the ceremony; and Mr. R. Smith, now of Toronto, who was groomsman.

The friends who came from different parts to tender their congratulations and wish Mr. and Mrs. Smith many happy years together, were Rev. and Mrs. G. Sidney Smith and son, Raymond, of Meaford; Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Madden, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. R. Smith, Miss Ina Smith and Mr. A. Bates, all of Toronto; Mr. Malard of Coldwater, who came to represent Rev. F. W. Madden, who was prevented by afflictions in his family; all the children living and grandchildren were present, these being Mrs. Ernest Morgan, her daughter, Patricia and son, Douglas, Mrs. G. W. Graham and her daughter, Phylis; Miss Georgena Smith of Toronto. These sat down to one of the most dainty and appetizing repasts to be desired. After all had partaken of the good things provided, Rev. W. H. Madden was constituted toast-master, and after he had delivered a very stirring address to the bride and groom proposed a toast to them. Then he called on the following people to respond to the toast: Rev. and Mrs. Smith of Meaford, Mr. and Mrs. R. Smith, Miss Ina Smith, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Williams, Mr. A. Bates, and Mrs. (Rev.) W. H. Madden. These all spoke briefly in a few well chosen words expressing their delight at being present on such a happy occasion.

The gifts to the hapvy couple were varied, suitable and very much appreciated.

The following address was then read to Mr. and Mrs. Smith, after which a very happy company broke up and departed.

To Mr. and Mrs. Adam Smith:

Dear Friends,—Having learned that you were drawing near to the close of a half century of your married life, we, your very intimate friends and well-wishers, desire to embrace this opportunity of expressing to you our congratulations at having arrived at your Golden Wedding anniversary. Our Heavenly Father has graciously sustained you during all these years, granting you health and strength according to your need, together in peace and good-will. No doubt, like many others, you have had differences in thought, plans and purposes, but with due consideration each for the other, you came to a harmonious blending of the whole. Your life has not been all sunshine. It is not well that it should be so: but there has been no more night than day. The first 25 years of your married life brought to you much of sunshine: joys were multiplied, and hopes brightened. The coming into your home of the young lives the Heavenly Father so lovingly committed to your care, not only brought upon you increased responsibility, but they brought fresh joy and deeper love. As those young lives unfolded you came to realize more fully what family life really meant. Not only did you feel that additional burdens were laid upon you, but with the incoming of each new life there came increased love and joy. Life has its changes, the shadows fall, and your life has been no exception. Just when hopes were the brightest and love the most intense, the dark clouds gathered and sorrow deep and multiplied shadowed your home. These were permitted to come upon you because your boys, as the sons of Canada, responded to the call to arms in defence of our nation's liberty and rights. They were permitted to fall, which brought sorrow to all of our hearts; and we love to think what they were saved from of pain and suffering, which so many others have had to endure as the result of war. May we not say, "It is well?" We recognize the fact that you have come to eventide of life's day. You will soon be called upon to pass over the line that divides time from eternity. We wish you both that "at eventide it may be light." Wishing to show our esteem for you both and our appreciation, if the fellowship enjoyed by us all, we present to you these tokens of our love. May many happy hours crown the remaining years of your life. Signed—G. Sidney Smith, E. L. Williams, F. Walter Madden, Wm. Henry Madden.

About 4 o'clock p.m. a number of ladies asd gentlemen of the village entered their home and gave them a little surprise. They beheld in the corner of the parlor the Golden Anniversary bride and groom seated beneath a beautiful arch of evergreen which was bedecked with flowers of golden hue. The room was beautifully decorated for the occasion. From the centre of the ceiling the number "50" in golden letters was suspended over a little table on which were placed the many gifts. Congratulations were bestowed upon the happy couple, who were afterwards showered with confetti. Rev. Madden Sr. gave a humorous and pleasing address which was listened to attentively by all present. On behalf of the old friends of Eugenia a presentation was made by Mrs. W. Sloan of a silver sugar bowl and cream pitcher with gold colored lining, while Mrs. Len Latimer read the address. Owing to Mr. Smith being handicapped by deafness, and was unable to hear the address, Mrs. Smith, on behalf of her husband, heartily thanked, in a few well chosen words, the donors for their gift.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Smith are enjoying good health and on their golden wedding day they were the recipients of many expressions of the esteem and good wishes of their many friends far and near. Among the many gifts which they received were silver vases, silver trays, gold pieces, towels with gold colored lace, bouquet of daffodils and jonquils and many other pretty things. The mother was presented with a lovely ring from the daughters, who also gave their father a pair of soft warm blankets of golden tinge.

Before departing the guests of the afternoon, some of which were from Flesherton, received a cup of tea and a lunch, which included a piece of the rich wedding cake. A social half hour of chat was then enjoyed by all.

Your correspondent, Mrs. Charles Martin, wrote the following best wishes to the "Golden Wedding" couple and attached it to her gift of flowers:

On this, your Golden Wedding day
May joy and peace abide alway.
And often come on golden wings
To bring you life's most precious things.
May angels their soft wings display
To guide you safe o'er danger's way;
May happiness be e'er your lot,
And if away forget us not.
Long may you live and heaven's smile
Your every care and grief beguile.
And when your wedded days are o'er
And earthly ties can bind no more,
May heaven's bright gates be opened wide
To hail the bridegroom and the bride.
