THE FLYING MACS.

Guelph, Nov. 17.—Had Canadian Pacific railway passenger train No. 650 been dubbed the Scots flier as it left here this afternoon for Goderich the term would have been no misnomer. All five officials in charge were "Macs." Alexander McDonald was conductor, the engineer was Duncan MacDougall, and the fireman was William MacMillan, while the trainmen were Chester MacDowell and Lloyd McEananey.

Life Assurance a form of Property

LIFE assurance is as much a form of property as a house, a farm, a bond, or a savings account with these advantages:—

(1) Its present and future values are guaranteed.

(2) It constantly appreciates in value.

(3) Its values are always available in liquid form.

(4) It is property purchased on a strictly one-price-to-all basis.

Keep Money Circulating

Did it ever occur to you that keeping money circulating in a community benefits everybody in that community? Well, here is a small illustration, says an exchange:

In a certain office in a little western town the staff consisted of a bookkeeper, a stenographer and an office boy. The bookkeeper owed the stenographer two dollars and the office boy was indebted to the bookkeeper to the amount of two dollars also.

One day the bookkeeper received through the mail a dollar bill from someone he had helped in a small financial way. He decided to give this to the stenographer, thus reducing his debt by half. She in turn handed the dollar to the office boy with the promise to pay him the other dollar shortly. The office boy immediately thought of his debt to the bookkeeper so he went to him with the dollar and asked him to accept it in payment of what he owed him. The bookkeeper then decided to give this dollar to the stenographer and get clear with her. She, being anxious to get square with the office boy, paid the dollar over to him, and the office boy went to the bookkeeper and got completely out of his debt.

The circulation of this dollar bill in this small community of three persons resulted in payment of three debts of two dollars each and the bookkeeper, the original holder of the one dollar bill, still had the dollar.

Purchased Residence

Another real estate deal has just about been completed in town. Mr. W. G. Kennedy has purchased the old Armstrong resident from the executors of the estate of the late W. A. Armstrong. Mr. Fred Stuart is at present occupying the residence, but Mr. Kennedy does not intend to move thereto until the spring.

Had Guns Confiscated

Two young men of Osprey township recently had their guns confiscated. One was an automatic shot gun and the other was a high powered rifle. It was claimed that they were carrying these weapons where deer harbored. The guns would not be used for ordinary game.

Can good potatoes be grown in Ontario? The Central Ontario Potato Growers are showing that this province can produce potatoes which need not take second place to those from any other province. The Association is demanding a premium for their "Tee-Pee" brand over New Brunswick and is securing a ready market that seems extremely pleased with the quality offered. The situation today stands out in decided contrast with the conditions of three years ago when eastern carload shipments invariably sold above locally grown stocks.

SINUS TROUBLE

It is not unusual to hear that someone has sinus trouble. Sinus trouble means that there is infection, and, as we know, infection in any part of the body is serious. The infection is the result of the activity of living germs, and if it is allowed to continue it may result in a chronic poisoning of the body.

The nasal sinuses are cavities that are connected with the nose by narrow openings, and the lining membranes of the nose and the sinuses are continuous.

There is one sinus under the cheek bone, another above the eye, others in the bones behind the nose. Some of these sinuses are close to the brain cavity, and infection close to the vital centres is the result of sinusitis in such parts.

Sinus trouble occurs when infection spreads from the nose along the lining membrane through the narrow opening into the sinus. Swelling results from the infection, and that swelling may be and often is sufficient to block the opening, and so the infection is seated in the sinus., On account of the practical danger of the spread of infection from the nose to a sinus, it is evident that grave trouble may be prevented by taking care of nasal infection—the common cold.

The neglected cold leads to a great deal of trouble and misery. The cold itself is one of the greatest nuisances from which we suffer, and besides it is most mischievous in its effects. To neglect a cold is always to invite trouble. If you want to avoid trouble, avoid a cold, and if you are not successful in avoiding a cold, give it early attention. In the late stages of a cold, if the teeth begin to ache with a feeling of pressure on the back upper tooth, it suggests that the antrus or sinus in the cheek bone is involved. Pain over one eye suggests involvement of the sinus located there. The pain may not be constant; it may occur during part of the day, growing worse and then easing off. Infection of the sinuses may follow colds, influenza, pneumonia, measles, scarlet fever, or, indeed, any infection of the upper respiratory tract. It is a condition which should be brought under treatment at once. Not only is it that the acute stage requires proper care, but it is of the utmost importance to secure such care in order to prevent, if possible, a chronic infection of the sinus.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere thanks to our friends and neighbors for their kindness and sympathy, also for the beautiful flowers, during our recent bereavement.

The figure 8 and its multiples are curiously in evidence in the construction of the new Welland ship canal, which links Lakes Erie and Ontario in the Niagara Peninsula to overcome a difference in level of 326 feet. For building purposes the canal was divided into 8 sections. There are 8 locks to the canal; it takes 8 minutes to fill each lock with water, and 8 hours for a vessel to pass through the entire canal. The 8 locks have each a usable length of 820 feet with a depth of 80 feet, and 82 feet is the height of the lower mitre gates. The greatest height of lock wall is 130.-8 feet, and the weight of metal in the valves of locks is 3,800 tons. A pond 80½ feet deep, covering 84 acres feeds the eight locks. The span of the lift bridge at Peter St., Thorold, is 80 feet, and lock 8 with a length of 1,380 feet is the longest in the world. The greatest width of the entrance to Port Wellar, at the Ontario end, is 800 feet. Over 8,-000,000 cubic yards of rock have been excavated, and more than 28,000,000 pounds of re-inforcing steel used. It is interesting to note that the first Welland canal was 8 feet deep, and was practically completed in 1828, over 100 years ago, and the first vessels having been locked through early in the following year. The new Welland ship canal, built by the Canadian government at a cost of $120,-000,000, is practically completed. It will, it is expected, be officially opened next spring.

Last week the Tara Creamery had a loss of several hundred dollars, caused by oil getting into their hard water well and tainting around 2,000 pounds of butter. When the water was suspected as being the cause of the trouble the company worked several days pumping out the well. When about twenty feet down one of the workers noticed an oily matter trickling through the rock, and the mystery was solved. It may be a blessing in disguise as the Creamery Co. have sent a sample of the fluid to Toronto to be analyzed.—Leader.

Music is now being taught in the Beaverton public school.
