When the hockey season opens the Proton Station boys become so possessed with the desire to get onto the ice with hockey sticks that they just have to hunt up a team to play against, regardless of the fact that they have had no practice and no ice to practice on, so Friday night last they went to Flesherton for a tryout with some Flesherton boys. Of course they got the small end of the 8-10 score, but they enjoyed the game. The line-up was:Goal, Gordon Park; Centre, Clark Wyvill; Wings, Gordon and Russell Acheson; Defence, Stanley and Lloyd Lyons; Subs Elzer Park, and Russell White.

IN MEMORIAM

PAUL—In loving memory of John Paul, who passed away January 15, 1930.

No one knows the heartache,
Only those who have lost can tell
Of the grief that is borne in silence
For the one we loved so well.
Every moment do we miss him,
Sorely do we feel our loss.
Dreary is our home without him,
Help us, Lord, to bear our cross.

Ever remembered by wife and family.—Mrs. M A. Paul.

On Friday evening the Sabbath School held a social evening, when parents and all friends in the community were invited to encourage and help and all had a good time, The children gave the entire program. Mr. J. McWilliams, Superintendent, acted as chairman, giving a brief address. The school then gave an opening chorus, which was followed by Master Allan Haw with the violin accompanied by his sister, Miss Mable at the organ, responding to an encore. A song by the larger girls was well rendered. A dialogue by Master Sherman Piper and Harvey Archibald "Misunderstood" was good, and "Jesus Loves Me" was sung by the primary class, the little tots doing well. Miss Mable Haw recited "A secret in our house, don't tell" and Master Murray Marshall gave "Mother's Boy". Master Melville Hunt gave "O Boy, That Medicine" and as a response to an encore gave "Filling the Wood Box", which caused much mirth, and Miss Mable Adams also gave a splendid recitation. These young artists deserve much credit in the way which they rendered their pieces. Masters Robbie Plester and LaVerne Piper gave a violin duet, accompanied by Mrs. Piper at the organ and were encored. A couple of songs were given by boys and girls. Little Miss Marion Collinson and Master Joe McWilliams each gave a little piece, and Master Golden Kennedy was accompanist for the evening doing his part well. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. G. Littlejohns for assisting the children in preparing the program. Rev. Mr. Scott gave a most interesting address to the boys and girls, which was enjoyed by all present. The ladies then served lunch, after which Mr. McWilliams gave each scholar a bag containing nuts and candies. The National Anthem brought an enjoyable evening to a close. A silver collection was taken, which amounted to $6.00.

Oh, call it not death, it is life beyond,
For the waters are crossed, the home is won;

Where they weep, and suffer, and sin no more.

In the place prepared by her Saviour's love.

VICTORIA CORNERS

Ivan Lockhart has gone back to Detroit.

Born—To Mr. and Mrs. John Batchelor, neeVera Moore, Jan. 4th, a daughter.

There was a mistake in last week's items. It was Mrs. A. Stinson who was attending her nephew's funeral in Toronto, not Mrs Stevens.

Ina Acheson, daughter of William Acheson, owns a Persian kitten which is a great pet. She holds it in her arms on its back and holds a bottle of milk for it. Kitty proceeds to put its front paws around the neck of the bottle and tip it up with its hind feet. Last Saturday it was noticed that he was in great pain and was thought to have a bone in his throat. Chloroform was administered and it was found that a sewing needle was sticking through its tongue. On pulling it out a piece of thread about eighteen inches long followed. The kitten had a sore tongue for some time, but got along fine. It must have found the threaded needle and commenced chewing and swallowing it. When the needle got to the throat it must have tried to spit it out with he result that he pushed it through his tongue. Warning to people with playful kittens: Do not let needles with thread drop on the floor.

Emma Moore is visiting her sister, Mrs. John Batcheler.

HOME GROWN VEGETABLES IN WINTER

The slogan of every household should be, "use more vegetables." The young child, as well as the grown-up, should consume plenty of wholesome vegetables of all kinds and use the minimum of meats necessary to maintain strength required from meat diets. It can safely be said that if more vitamin rich vegetables were used throughout the country in connection with the children's diet that fewer of the ailments of the digestive organs, now prevalent, would have to be contended with. Every child should be taught to eat some vegetables and apart from a small number it may safely be said that all children could be taught to cultivate a desire to use any vegetable prepared for table use.

Some of the difficulties experienced in making the meatless diet popular by the good housewife can be surmounted if the same consideration be given to the preparation of vegetables that is given to that of pastry, including pies, cookies, fried cakes and other fancy sweet foods, or even the preparation of the various meat fricassee. The vegetable diet, besides being lower in price, will have a much greater influence on the general good health of the family than any other diet known.

Vegetables can be used in salads in the raw state, with suitable dressing. They may be boiled, fried, scalloped and what not, the major part of which can be produced in a small garden and stored in frost proof cellars below ground or in cool rooms above ground as the particular case requires.

There has been a great deal of popular advertising given to the various imported vegetables,all of which in a sense, is quite reasonable but why should we buy, for instance, lettuce from outside our country when the loose-leaf lettuce grown in Canadian greenhouses by Canadian people is superior in freshness, quality and possibly in vitamin content. The sooner that these popular and fantastic ideas are overlooked by the masses of people, and the home production of an equally good, if not superior, product is encouraged, the sooner will the trend of prosperity return to growers of such crops in this country.

Ford Windshield Resists Blow of Iron Horseshoe

A HORSESHOE may be lucky for some people, but for Mrs. E. Holtman, of St. Louis, Mo., it might have been very unlucky had it not been for the shatterless glass in the windshield of her Ford sedan. Mrs. Holtman was driving along a concrete suburban highway when suddenly the horseshoe struck the windshield and lodged snugly in the shatterless glass. It was a lucky break for Mrs. Holtman and the two adults and three children who accompanied her, for not one of them was hurt. The car continued for 165 miles with the proverbial lucky shoe still embedded in the windshield.
