MOTHERS, READ THIS!
Holloway's Worm Lozenges.
ARE a certain and safe remedy for Children and Adults. The sad and melancholy fact that one-half of the children born die before they attain the age of five years, cannot be too deeply impressed on the minds of parents the necessity of administering to their children. By so doing many of the symptoms and true cause of the thousands of children might be saved from premature graves.
SYMPTOMS OF WORMS.—The following are a few of the very numerous symptoms of worms which are caused by Worms: Loss of appetite, emaciated extremities, restless sleep, frequent picking at the nose, grinding the teeth during sleep, flushed face, pain in the head and stomach, frequent slimy stools, and convulsive fits, pain in the head and stomach, fainting, fainting, trembling, coughing, loss of spirits, frightful dreams, and wasting away of flesh.
They are palatable and safe as candy, and the child—drive out the worms, and then cast out pain, and completely change the system thereby doing away with the cause, by administering Castor Oil or other Purgatives—as in the use of other Worm Confectionaries.
☞ Each Box contains the signature of NORTHROP & LYMAN, Druggists, who are the sole proprietors.
N. B.—Ask for Holloway's Worm Lozenges, and take no other. Sold by all Druggists in Kingston and all Medicine dealers.

VOLUME XVII. KINGSTON, (CANADA). SATURDAY EVENING, MARCH 7, 1868. NUMBER 12

A STRUGGLE FOR LIFE.

In a great Tooley street warehouse, shelves above the ground, and every-where around me wool—bales upon bales of wool, which we had been cramming up all day, and in at the open door. Floors and chases beneath stored with jute and other goods, teas, coffees, spices, tobaccos, the harvest of all, tallow in huge hogs-heads from all parts of the world lying around, and waiting the finish of the commercial enterprise which should con-vey them to traders, and then to the people of this busy country.

"What's the matter with Jack Wood?" was one of the men in the afternoon. But seeing that he looked a little wild in the eyes, I didn't see anything more of him than might often be seen in men who drank heavily at times; and so I went on hauling to get home to spend my evening. I was left upon the floor with Wood, and felt a bit startled to see him go all at once to the open door where the men handed the bales, and cut some strange capers, like a man going to dive or leap into the sea.

Setting down my work, which was only nasty two or three burst bales from the hydraulic press, so that they might be taken up again, I slipped up quietly behind him, and laid my hand upon his shoulder, when with a yell he shrieked out, "Devil! devil! devil!" and the next moment, by the light of the gas on that foggy winter evening, we two were wrestling and fighting together within a few feet of the door, out of which we should have fallen clear hundred feet upon the stones of the wharf below.

I should have shouted, but all my powers of speech seemed taken away, as locked together we wrestled here and there while his hot breath hissed against my cheek. I could look close into his wild, glow-ing eyes, as flashing with rage he bore me over and nearer to the doorway.

Tired as I was at all times to standing close to the edge and receiving packages, I could lean over at all times without a shudder; but now, with this madman slowly forcing me toward this certain death, I could feel the cold sweat stand-ing upon my face, and trembled so that my resistance became feebler and feebler, and as a last resource I managed to get my foot between my opponent's and tripped him, when he fell heavily.

Fortunately for me my enemy was un-armed, and the force with which his head came against the warehouse floor partly stunned him, so that I shook my-self free and turned back and fled toward the stairs. But the next moment I thought of the open doorway, and the state the poor fellow was in, so I turned back to him, and to insure that he did not come to his death by falling out before I could get assistance.

My fear was on the door, but I could not close it, for Wood lay in the way shuddering at how near he lay to the edge, if I stopped to draw him on one side, when he started up and seized me again.

To beat my hands and turn and flee down between the piled-up bales was the work of an instant, while, roaring with rage, I could hear him tearing after me. The stairs were pretty close, but as I ran round the end of the bales I found the door closed, and had to dart past to avoid being caught, when I turned down be-tween another opening of the bales and went panting on.

Fast as the door was, there was passage for a passage between the wool, which was piled up eight or nine feet high, and I tore on in the hope of so far distancing my pur-suer that I could dart through the stairs and be down it after me, and so escape or obtain assistance. On and on I ran, now stopping ahead, and now with the panting breath by my shoulder, so that I expected every moment to feel a savage hand laid on me to drag me down. At last he got so near that his hand brushed me, but with a cry of horror I leaped forward again, dodg-ing round a corner, ran down a short pas-sage, and again on, past pillars and piles, then turning around I found that I was alone; and hurrying to about the centre of a narrow passage between the high walls, I leaned against the side panting and breathless.

"Now, if I could but reach the door while he was at the other end," I thought, "I would be safe," and I kept on, nervous-ly watching the two ends of the passage lest I should be taken by surprise, when, to my horror, I saw, by the gas shining upon it, a savage head peer round from the end nearest the way of escape, watch me for a moment, and then disappear. It was now quite dim and twilight in all the passages, and my first impulse was to dart off in the opposite direction; but a little thought told me that perhaps the wretch did not see me and therefore I had better stay where I was; and so I stood, minute after minute, expecting to see him come round the end or the other and dash down upon me.

I knew that about half-past five the watchman would come round, and then I could give the alarm, and is wanted near-ly an hour of that time, and how I could but out till that time I could not tell, for the very thought of the narrow escape I had completely unnerved me, and, overcome by fear, I could feel my knees tremble beneath me, ready to give way beneath my weight.

Five minutes passed—ten minutes—and still no sound. My spirits rose a little and I began to think that escape was still pos-sible, but abated nothing of my watchful-ness. Another five minutes and I had al-most determined to steal down toward the place where the reflection of the gaslight from the end of the passage quite bright, and where I stood was in a fast deepen-ing shadow. I took two steps forward cautiously, and then stopped with a silence all around, through which I could hear the singing of the gas, and the loud throb, throb of my heart. I had somewhat recov-ered my breath, slinking silently on, every now and then looking back to see that there was no one in pursuit. What I should have liked, which would have been in accordance with my feelings at that mo-ment, would have been to dash forward, but I kept down the desire, and crept slowly on between the two huge walls of bales piled eight or nine feet high.

Only another three yards and here I stopped trembling in dread lest Wood might be watching for me, leaning forward to peer cautiously around the edge of the bales. Slowly and quietly, nearer and nearer till I looked round, and then with a horrible fascination upon me I stopped still; for in precisely the same position, Wood was craning his neck to look round at me, and with eyes looking into eyes three or four inches apart, we stood, what seemed minutes, immovable. Move I could not, for my throat felt dry and hot; while my eyes, fixed and staring, looked ed into those glaring beastlike orbs, which seemed to hold me fixed to the earth as if some horrible nightmare was upon me. I felt that if I closed my eyes but for a mo-ment he would spring at me, and at last clutching the wool firmly with one hand, I drew myself slowly back, fixing his eyes the whole while, and then as my strength teemed to come back, I leaped round and fled down the passage once more, as I heard a yell and saw Wood dash into the en-trance.

A quarter of an hour must have passed without a sound meeting my ears, and I was calculating upon aid soon coming, when a slight rustling noise seemed to have been made close by me, and I started and looked toward the dark and then toward the end of the narrow passage I was in.

Nothing to be seen; and the minutes again passed slowly on; when all at once came the most horrid, unearthly yell I ever heard, from just above my head, and then, overcome with terror as I shrank to the floor, I looked up and knew that Wood had crawled up over the top of the wool; and as the thought flashed through my mind he bounded down upon me and had me by the throat.

I struggled for a few moments, and then lights seemed dancing before my eyes, blood rushed to my head, and then I have some recollections of being dragged along the floor into the gaslight, and thrust about for a few moments, when there came the regular thud, thud of the pump close by, and I could feel myself moving up-wards. But all seemed so calm, and such a desire for sleep was upon me that I awoke to the consciousness that the wretch had forced me on the traveller of the hydraulic press, and was now forcing in the water, so that in a few moments life would be crushed out.

Thud thud, thud thud, went the pump, and the pressure was awful, while at the same time, as I vainly writhed and tried to press down the heavy plate that was crushing me, I was conscious of a great light that shone around me, and which I thought was caused by the flashing sensa-tion of my eyes; but no, for directly there came the noise of shouting, louder every moment, and then I made out, ringing up from the yard, these horrid words, "Fire! Fire!" and then I knew that would must have set fire to the warehouse.

Shouts, cries and the noise of the hurry-ing feet, and Wood stood in the glare of the light, looking first one way, then the other, as if confused, for he had quitted the pump at the noise of the shouting. All at once he darted away, and, half suffocating with the pressure, I could do nothing but groan, after struggling a little to find every effort in vain; and then with sharpened senses gaze at the flames licking the roof of the floor I was on, and creeping up on the sides of the wool bales and the more inflammable goods that were in the ware-house. The smoke soon became blinding, and the heat stifling, but for me there seem-ed no hope, since I was sure no one would be able to penetrate to where I was; when again I gave a struggle and stretched down my hand backwards, and tried to reach the tap which would have let off the water and set me at liberty, or at least place me in a position to try and escape the horrible death that seemed to await me.

But no; the handle was far out of reach, and I groaned and wept weakly at my helpless condition. The press held me by the chest with awful power, but my hands and arms were at liberty, while my head, hanging down backwards, enabled me to see the flames creeping faster and faster, as I saw them reversed, and began calculating how long it would be before they would reach me and end my misery.

All at once, when fainting my hand came in contact with an iron bar used to length-en the handle of the pump to force the wa-ter with more ease when greater power was required, and then my heart gave a leap as I thought I might be able to strike the handle of the tap and let out the water.

To grasp the bar was the work of a mo-ment, and then I began swinging it about slowly to try and strike the tap, but in vain, for I could do nothing with it, only being able to swing it at random, for I could not see. Nearer and nearer came the flames, louder rose the shouts, and as I look-ed along the warehouse I could see that all hope of escape by the stairs was cut off, even if I had been at liberty; and now, completely overcome by the pressure and the horror of my position, I groaned heavi-ly, and the bar fell from my grasp.

The last hope gone, I thought; when at the same moment a familiar sound met my ear, for, in falling, the bar struck the tap, when there came the fierce gush of the compressed water, and the ram began to descend till I could crawl out to fall faint-ing upon the floor.

But I was up again directly, for there was a fierce glow in the place; and now I could see Wood busily at work tearing out wool to feed the flames, and dashing every-thing he could lay his hands on into the fire, which seemed at times to singe him.

I looked round, for he took no notice of me, and as I had before seen there was no chance of escape by the door, so running to the open door by the crane, I caught hold of the rope and began lowering it down as fast as possible with the light shinning full upon me, and the people be-low either groaning with horror or cheer-ing me on as I tore at the stout rope, and sent the crane handle spinning round and round.

Could I get enough rope out before Wood's attention was taken I felt safe, for I knew what I could slide down easily enough; but, as I dreaded, he caught sight of me, and leaving his fiery task he rushed toward me, when with a yell of ter-ror I leaped from the floor, clinging tightly to the rope, which began to run swiftly as I swung to and fro till it was all out, when the jerk nearly dashed me off. But after sliding down some little way, I re-covered myself, and letting the rope glide slowly through my hands, I went lower and lower, with my eyes fixed on the blaz-ing floor above me.

All at once I felt the rope jerked and swung about, and I could see the figure of Wood at it: and then again I was being drawn up, and I knew he must be busy at the crane handle, but the next minute he must have loosened his hold, when the handle flew round and struck him from his feet, and I went sliding down.

There was a yell from the crowd; some-thing dark dashed by me with a rushing noise, and I clung trembling to the rope. I heard a horrible dull thud, and slipping swiftly down the rope for the remainder of the distance, I fell fainting down by the side of Wood's mutilated body.

The fire was got under when our floor was burned out, though much damage was done by water; but with the exception of a strange nervous timidity that I fancy I shall never get the better of, I was not much the worse for the terrible encounter with the poor fellow who came to his end so fearfully.

The coal fields of Alabama are attracting at-tention. They are three in number; the Coosa river district, covering about 20,000 square miles; the Cahawaba river district, covering about 5000 square miles, and the Warrior river district, which is said to embrace no less than 50,000 square miles. The quality of the coal produced from the two first is very fine; the third is rather in-ferior and less accessible. Very little has hith-erto been done in developing these districts.

TESTIMONIAL
From Sig. Carlo Mora. Professor of Music. Kingston:
HAVING had ample opportunity of testing Mr Reyner & Son's Tuning and Repairing of Pianofortes, &c., since I have been in King-ston, I heartily recommend them to all those having Instruments to tune or repair, and would further advise those that have Instruments that are not in good order, to give them a call at once, as delay will only occasion more work and money when it is done.
SIG. CARLO MORA,
Professor of Music,
Kingston.
FROM MR RIDDELL.
MR REYNER has recently re-covered the Hammers of the Pianoforte used in my family with the new improved patent leather, and otherwise repaired it. He has also tuned it, and it is altogether much improved, the quali-ty of the tone being greatly better than before the Instrument was put into his hands. I shall certainly continue to keep the piano under his charge for the future.

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS
AND
HOOFLAND'S GERMAN TONIC.
THE GREATEST REMEDIES FOR ALL DISEASES OF THE Liver, Stomach, or Digestive Organs.
HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS
Is composed of the pure juice (or, as they are medicinally termed Extracts) of Roots, Herbs, and Barks, making a preparation, highly concentrated, and entirely free from alcoholic admixture of any kind.
HOOFLAND'S GERMAN TONIC,
Is a combination of all the ingredients of the Bitters, with the purest quality of Santa Cruz Rum, Orange, &c., making one of the most pleasant and agreeable remedies ever offered to the public.
Those preferring a Medicine free from Alco-holic admixture, will use
Hoofland's German Bitters
Those who have no objection to the combina-tion of the Bitters, as stated, will use
Hoofland's German Tonic.
They are both equally good, and contain the same medicinal virtues, the choice between the two being a mere matter of taste, the Tonic being the most palatable.
The stomach, from a variety of causes, such as Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Nervous Debility, etc., is very apt to become deranged. The Liver, sympathiz-ing as closely as it does with the Stomach, then be-comes affected, the result of which is that the patient suffers from several or more of the following diseases:
Constipation, Flatulence, Inward Piles, Fulness of Blood to the Head, Acidity of the Stomach, Nausea, Heart-burn, Disgust for Food, Fulness or Weight in the Stomach, Sour Eructations, Sink-ing or Fluttering at the Pit of the Stomach, Swimming of the Head, Hurried or Difficult Breathing, Fluttering at the Heart, Choking or Suffocating Sensations when in a Lying Posture, Dimness of Vision, Dots or Webs before the Sight, Dull Pain in the Head, Defi-ciency of Perspiration, Yel-lowness of the Skin and Eyes, Pain in the Side, Back, Chest, Limbs, etc., Sud-den Flushes of Heat, Burning in the Flesh, Constant Imaginings of Evil, and the Great Depression of Spirits.
The sufferer from these diseases should exer-cise the greatest caution in the selection of a remedy for his case, purchasing only that which he is assured from his investigations and inquiries possesses true merit, is skillfully compounded, is free from injurious ingredients, and has established for itself a reputation for the cure of these diseases. In this connec-tion we would submit those well-known remedies—
Hoofland's German Bitters,
AND
Hoofland's German Tonic
PREPARED BY Dr. C. M. JACKSON,
Philadelphia, Pa.
Twenty-two years since they were first in troduced into this country from Germany during which time they have undoubtedly per-formed more cures, and benefited suffering humanity to a greater extent, than any other remedies known to the public.
These remedies will effectually cure Liver Complaint, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Chronic or Nervous Debility, Chronic Diarrhœa, Diseases of the Kidneys and all Diseases arising from a Disordered Liver, Stomach, or In-testines.
DEBILITY,
Resulting from any Cause whatever
PROSTRATION OF THE SYSTEM, induced by Severe Labor, Hard-ships, Exposure, Fevers, &c.
There is no medicine extant equal to these remedies in such cases. A tone of vigor is imparted to the whole system, the appetite is strengthened, food is enjoyed, the stomach digests promptly, the blood is purified, the complexion becomes sound and healthy, the yellow tinge is eradicated from the eyes, a bloom is given to the cheeks and the weak and nervous invalid becomes a strong and healthy being.
PERSONS ADVANCED IN LIFE,
And feeling the hand of time weighing heavi-ly upon them, with all its attendant ills, will find in the use of this BITTERS, or the TONIC an elixir that will instill new life into their veins, restore in a measure the energy and ardor of more youthful days, build up their shrunken forms, and give health and happi-ness to their remaining years.
NOTICE.
It is a well-established fact that fully one-half of the female portion of our popu-lation are seldom in the enjoyment of good health; or, to use their own ex-pression "never feel well." They are languid, devoid of all energy, ex-tremely nervous, and have no appetite.
To this class of persons the BITTERS, or the Tonic, is especially recommended.
WEAK AND DELICATE CHILDREN
Are made strong by the use of either of these remedies. They will cure every case of MARASMUS, without fail.
Thousands of certificates have accumulate in the hands of the proprietor, but space wi allow of the publication of but a few. Those it will be observed, are men of note and of such standing that they must be believed.
Testimonials.
HON. GEO. W. WOODWARD,
Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Pa., writes:
Philadelphia, March 16, 1867.
"I find Hoofland's German Bitters is a good tonic, useful in diseases of the digestive organs, and of great benefit in cases of debility, and want of nervous action in the sys-tem. Yours truly,
GEO. W. WOODWARD."
HON. JAMES THOMPSON,
Judge of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania,
Philadelphia, April 28th, 1866.
"I consider "Hoofland's German Bitters" a valuable medicine in case of attacks of indiges-tion for Dyspepsia. I can certify this from my experience in it. Yours, with respect,
JAMES JOHNSTON."
FROM REV. JOSEPH H. KENNARD, D. D.
Pastor to the Tenth Baptist Church, Philade-lphia.
Dr. Jackson—Dear Sir: I have been frequent-ly requested to connect my name with recom-mendations of different kinds of medicines but regarding the practice as out of my ap-propriate sphere, I have in all cases declined; but with a clear proof in various instances and particularly in my own family, of the usefulness of Dr. Hoofland's German Bitters, I depart for once from my usual course, to ex-press my full conviction that, for general de-bility of the system, and especially for Liver Complaint, it is a safe and valuable prepara-tion. In some cases it may fail; but usually, I doubt not, it will be very beneficial to those who suffer from the above causes.
Yours, very respectfully,
J. H. KENNARD,
Eighth, below Coates St.
FROM REV. E. D. FENDALL,
Assistant Editor Christian Chronicle, Philada.
I have derived decided benefit from the use of Hoofland's German Bitters, and feel it my privilege to recommend them as a most valua-ble tonic, to all who are suffering from general debility or from diseases arising from derange-ment of the liver.
Yours truly,
E. D. FENDALL.
