Acting Postmaster

Following the lamented death of Postmaster D. L. Darroch of Collingwood, the district superintendent, A. M. Gibson, arranged with the deputy postmaster, F. H. Bellamy, to take charge and carry on, under the title of acting postmaster. Mr. Bellamy has been on the staff of the Collingwood office for a number of years and as assistant postmaster is well known as an efficient and obliging official. In the meantime the Civil Service Commission, under which this office is included, will be officially notified of the vacancy. We hope that Fred will then be advanced to the position of postmaster.

Machinery Coming

Paving operations have not commenced in Flesherton as yet, but the King Construction Co. is busy bringing the necessary machinery onto the ground. They have already opened up the gravel pit at Markdale and have considerable machinery there. They have connected up the pipes for the water system for the making of the cement and are installing their pump at the Boyne bridge. It is expected that work will be going in full blast on Monday next.

An extension of the paving with curb has been made from the Park Hotel westward to the east side of Reeve McCauley's property. The main drain was dug and twelve inch tile were laid on the west side of town, the work being finished Saturday. Another change of tile has to be made by lifting the nine inch tile at the present draining from F. Pinder's property northward and placing 12 inch tile there. This will handle the surface water quite easily.

A. McLean Passes

Death came to Mr. Archibald Mc Lean of Priceville on Monday, after a lengthy illness of some months. He was in his 61st year. The funeral is taking place this Wednesday afternoon. Service at the house at 2 p.m., interment in McNeil Cemetery, Priceville.

Large Turtle Caught While In Hay Field

A large snapping turtle measuring 16 inches from the front of its shell to the rear, was found on Mr. Edgar Patterson's farm, near Priceville, last week. Mr. Patterson was mowing in the field when the mower ran over the turtle. One of these mud desizens is rare in this section, but one of such a side is certainly a novelty. It was given to Mr. Geo. Campbell, a neighbor, and was let loose in the barn yard in which was a mud hole, caused by the recent rains. It has not been seen since, but they think that it will be burrowed into the mud and will come to light shortly. In the meantime it would be just as well if the children did not play in the mud hole, as the turtle might easily locate them rather too quickly.

WHAT NEXT?

It has been said that hens were once wild fowl, and lived like all their other wild feathered relatives; but now that they are no longer wild, we do not expect them to go back to the wild habits or customs. But hens do queer things when not watched. For instance, the other day a hen, the property of Miss Mary Little, climbed or flew into a tree, and proceded to manfacture an egg in a small cavity in the tree. We hope all hens don't get the up-in-the-air notion, or our trees will either have to be cut down or decorated with ladders.—The Teeswater News.

PEEL CONTY TEACHERS MUST ATTEND CHURCH

School trustes in different sections of the county are requiring teachers signing on for the ensuing year, to spend most of their time in th section in which they will teach.

With the number of teachers owning their own cars it has been found that they are present in the section only during school hours, and slip away as soon as school is closed on Friday nights. While occasional week ends away are thought quite proper, it is believed to be in the best interests of the section to have the influence of the teacher at hand constantly. The teacher should also participate in the life of the community and take part in the work of the church, say these trustees.—Orangeville Sun.

Duck's Got His Wheat

Kamsack, Sask. — "The ducks got it all," replied the farmer to the census taker working south of here.

"How could they get your 2,000 bu. of wheat when you have only four ducks on the farm?" queried the man of many questions. "You state that you threshed 2,000 bushels of wheat and you tell me that you have only four ducks. That story can't be true."

"It is true," said the wearied farmer, and this is how it's true: I took the grain to the elevator and there was 'duckage,' and for storage 'deducked', and for the freight they 'ducked' and for insurance they 'deducked.' By the time they got through the 'ducks' got it all."

Continuous Rainfall

During the past week rain has fallen practically every day and the weather put a stop to all haying operations. Considerable hay had been cut, some lying in the fields, and much of it will be unfit to store.

A severe electric storm hit us on Friday, and while there was no severe damage locally, a barn owned by Jas. Semple of Euphrasia was struck by lightning and burned. The high wind flattened some of the crops and trees were blown down by its force.. It is expected that the weather will clear now and allow raying and wheat harvesting operations to continue.

Passed Normal Exams

The Normal School examination results came early this year and all the former students from the Flesherton high school who were attending were successful, as follows: Helen Heard, Beth Hi[illegible] Donalda Sloan and Margaret Sinclair. They were in their first year at Normal and Clifford Hincks finished his second year course. Miss Nellie Short and Garnet McKenzie from the Feversham school were also successful in their exams.

DEAD NOT ALL IN CEMETERY

In reference to dead flowers scattered on the inside of the gate at the Walkerton cemetery, the Herald and Times says in part:

Doubtless the man who first invented the phrase, "Please Omit Flowers," had stumbled over a withered wreath at some time or other, and as first impressions are lasting ones he carried the grouch around with him until the end.

While some people hold their heads so high they wouldn't ordinarily notice what's at their feet, yet the feeling of humility which overcomes one when he enters a cemetery, causes even these high-hatters to look down, and ah "there's the rub," when one finds his pathway strewn with the discarded blooms of yesterday.

Just why they keep the old board fence up in front of the cemetery has long puzzled us, as those who are in can't get out and those who are out don't want to get in, as the doctors, who are called out on the first symptoms, can verify.

Mr. Geo. Banks has taken a position in Mr. F. W. Duncan's hardware store.

During a thunder storm the house of George Davidson, Lavender, was struck by lightning. The chimney was struck by the bolt, stovepipes knocked down, partitions damaged and dishes broken. A few minutes later lightning struck the barn and that building was burned to the ground. When John Davidson was getting the horses out he was kicked by one of the frightened animals, receiving painful injuries.
