In our hearts he will always remain.

In bitter loneliness and need
We still lament that hour.
But what was sown an early seed
Hath grown a heavenly flower.

PROPER RATION NEEDED

A hen may lay a few eggs early in the spring without receiving much feed or attention or she may lay at the end of the season when feed may be picked up in the fields, but the hen has not yet been developed that will lay without the proper ration during the fall and winter months. A good mash is important if the hens are to lay, and it should be before birds all the time. If any one of the necessary elements required for the making of eggs is absent, production is impaired. Pullets require a little different mash than the old hens and it is a mistake to house them together and have them feed from the same hopper. Home-grown feeds with the addition of some purchased concentrates may be mixed, or a commercial mash may be purchased that will suply the necessary ingredients to the bird. Chickens will pay dividends if properly housed and given the right rations.

At the next municipal election the voters in Orillia township will be asked to decide the somewhat unique question of whether or not they shall have a community doctor, who will give free medical treatment to any resident of the township.

GETTING THE NEWS

The automobile plays an increasind role in the dramatic job of getting the news the day and getting it into type. An accident in connection with the recent movement of unemployed to the northern part of Ontario was "covered" by one Toronto reporter in a fashion which illustrates the point. Accompanied by a photographer, the reporter, Ken McTaggart, of the Toronto Mail & Empire, started from Toronto the moment the workers' train left the Union Station. They drove to the work camps on the Trans-Canada Highway, beating the train, took pictures, and drove back without resting, in order that photographs of the arrival in the north country might be reproduced in Toronto about 26 hours after the departure of the party of workers. They covered 700 miles over all sorts of roads, got their pictures, and returned in time for the early morning press run. It is probably the first time that an assignment involving such distance was ever covered by motor car in such short time.

REFORESTATION WORK

Farmers generally are taking increased interest in reforestation work and it is interesting to note that over 6,000,000 forest trees were distributed from the Government Station at St. Williams alone in 1931 to reclaim waste land. More than 2,600 private land-owners procured forest trees last spring either for reclamation work or for windbreaks. The nursery stock at St. Williams Station is in excellent shape and more than 8,000,000 trees will be available in 1932.

We hope there will be a good attendance. Mr. P. Still has kindly offered space in the baggage room at the station for any donations of clothing, bedding, or any useful article and those wishing to contribute to this needy cause will please leave them there.

Mrs. T. McCauley of this village is in Markdale hospital, having some growths removed. We understand the operation is a success and we hope the plucky old lady will soon be well enough to return home.

Mr. Geo. Williams of Toronto spent the week end with Mrs. Park and her daughter, Miss Leva. He brought them the gift of a radio which will certainly help to while away the lonely hours of the invalid.

Mr. Joseph Park and son, Gordon, and Mr. Geo. Williams visited at the home of Mr. R. G. Acheson.

TO PRINT OR NOT TO PRINT

One of our exchanges has been severely criticized for not printing the names of all who appear in the police court of his town. The editor takes the position that when the offenders appear in the police court and pay their fines or accept their jail sentence, they are paying in full the demands of society. By publishing their names, the editor insists that he is taking additional toll, and is bringing shame and suffering to members of families who merit better treatment They are already shamed, in their relationship.

The Cranbrook Courier, however takes another view, saying that the best way to keep from being called a thief in print is to refrain from stealing. The Courier continues:

"Someone is always crabbing about having their name appear in the police court docket. Generally speaking a newspaper contracts to give its readers the news. Filling contract is not a pleasant business when the news is bad. It must be remembered that the newspaper does not make the news and is not responsible for it. To blame the newspaper for printing bad news is no more sensible than blaming the mirror for reflecting the morning after the night before, or blaming a physician for the illness of the patient. If the Courier reports a crime committed by some member of your family, it does not by doing so take sides against him—any more than a mirror becomes a partizan when it reflects unpleasant truths. It had much rather report some great accomplishment of his or some conspicious proof of virtue. But it cannot manufacture facts. If a man who robs a bank falls out with us for reporting the incident, he does not thereby lessen his guilt. He might rave and rant as proof of his resentment, but he would be a rogue still. The paper is not the one to blame. Hating the paper will not change the facts. The way to keep from being called a thief to is refrain from stealing."
