two fire boxes nearly touching each other. They fell over across the road, the fire being scattered about the wreck of the first excursion car, which caught fire and extended to the two other cars. While upon it, the most extraordinary efforts were made to extricate the mutilated bodies, many of whom were still alive when the flames reached them. The groans and cries which rent the air were heart-rending. Two hotels, a blacksmith's shop and a small shed, within 30 yards of the scene of the disaster, were used to shelter the dying and wounded. A number of physicians from this city and Germantown were early in attendance. Two Engineers from Chestnut Hill forced water through hose to the wreck, and after working several hours the human remains were removed. 16 bodies were taken to the shop, 3 supposed to be females. Under another shed were 8 bodies so charred as to defy recognition. The body of father Sheridan was amongst the dead, but it was found and brought to the city. An immense crowd was attracted to the spot from the surrounding country. Many of the friends of the dead and wounded walked to the city, and others went in every description of vehicle, which was taken and made use of in bringing the dead and wounded to the city.

W H Westmore, first engineer, and A Bonnider, second engineer, C E Marsh, clerk, J Goodwin, steward, and 38 others of the crew were saved. 15 or 20 are missing who are known to have been on board, but it is supposed they may have been saved by the propeller Republic and a schooner that assisted in picking up the passengers.

Hay and Hay-Making.

As the season is rapidly approaching when farmers will find active employment amid the labors of haying, a few words relative thereto will, if nothing new be presented, at least have the feature of appropriateness.

In the culture and growth of every farm product, it is a matter of importance that the various operations connected therewith should be performed just at the right period, so that the results of labor expended may be as remunerative as possible, and that the crop, from seed-time to the harvest, shall progress and mature to a complete and full development. This is a necessity, in order that the intents and purposes for which it is raised may be adequately met.

The first great requirement of the hay fields is good tools. Cutting grass with a dull scythe is hard work, not only for him who swings it, but also for the producer. Skill and ability to perform will never make amends for poor implements.

The second requisite, and not the least important, is to have plenty of help, and that of the right kind. Agriculturists are all aware of the close quarters into which they have at times been pressed, and the exorbitant demands to which they have been compelled to submit.—This has not of necessity become a part of American farming. Each farmer, by a careful survey of his fields, can calculate with sufficient accuracy the time when his hay and grain will be in readiness for cutting, the amount of time necessary to complete this labor, and if extra help is needed, provide for it before hand.

The time to cut hay is a question upon which farmers differ. Many contend that, and with some show of reason, grass should be cut just at the time of entering into blossom. [We endorse that]. There will not at this period be as heavy a yield of hay per acre, but much more nutrition, and a less amount will go farther in keeping stock than if the seed be allowed to ripen. One point of their argument—that plants, in maturity have a large quantity of the starch sugar, and gum, their most nutritive elements, changed into woody fibre—is incontestibly true.

Another class occupy just the opposite ground, and state that the head should be well filled before cutting. As arguments to sustain this position, it is claimed that the stock will relish the food better, the grass is more readily cured and not so likely to become heated as when cut earlier. The mean between these two has its advocates. Just in the milky stage of the seed is their doctrine, and it is followed most strenously. Does the true mode lie in this, as in most other disputations, lie between the two extremes? Let each of our readers consult his own experience and answer.—Rural New Yorker.

The Whig and Herald say that His Excellency Sir Edmund Head intends to visit Kingston this week.

Scald Heads in children, and eruptions on the skin.—A certain remedy for these complaints. Mrs Marston residing in Quebec, had two children afflicted with the most inveterate scald heads; they were also much disfigured with eruptions on the skin, the parents had recourse to a variety of remedies for the alleviation of the little sufferers; many things were tried, but all unfortunately made the children worse, and indeed the virulence increased and spread nearly all over their bodies. The parent eventually determined to try Holloway's Ointment and Pills, which she commenced using in accordance with the directions, and by persevering with them for eight weeks, the children were both effectually cured; they have since enjoyed the best of health, and have not had any return of the complaint.

Holloway's Pills the most efficacious remedy for Determination of Blood to the Head.—The immense power possessed by these wonderful Pills in the cure of determination of blood to the head, and all obnoxious disorders, although well known and appreciated by the mass yet among some private individuals, it is perhaps not understood. To such as are afflicted with these and all kindred ailments, and nervous disorders, we strongly recommend them; and we add advise their having recourse to the same as we have good other means have failed, with the certainty of obtaining immediate relief, and by perseverance a lasting cure. Thousands who have derived signal benefit from the use of this inestimable remedy, is at once a proof of the virtues the medicine possesses, and renders it an indispensable requisite in every family, whether at home or abroad. These Pills are equally efficacious in all diseases of the liver and stomach.

AGENCY FOR THE SETTLEMENT OF THE ADDINGTON ROAD.

July, 1856.

THE undersigned, Agent appointed by His Excellency the Governor General for the Settlement of the Addington Road, in the rear of the Counties of Frontenac and Addington, Upper Canada hereby gives notice to all persons willing and having the means of locating thereon, that his office is (for the present) at Flint's Mills, in the Township of Kaladar, and which will be open every day in the week, between the hours of Nine and Four o'clock.

One Hundred Acres will be given to any settler eighteen years old, and a subject of Her Majesty, who will present himself provided with a certificate of probity and sobriety, signed by known and respectable persons and having the means of providing for himself until the produce of his land is sufficient to maintain him. The bearer of that certificate shall mention to the Agent (who shall keep a registry thereof) his name, age, condition, trade or profession; whether he is married, and if so the name and age of his wife; how many children he has, the name and age of each of them; where he is from, and whether he is the owner of land elsewhere.

The conditions of location are—to take possession within a month, and to put in a state of cultivation at least twelve acres of the land in the course of four years—to build a house (at least 20 by 18 feet) and to reside on the lot until the conditions of settlement are duly performed; after which accomplishment only shall the settler have the right of obtaining a title of property. Families comprising several settlers entitled to lands, preferring to reside on a single lot, will be exempted from the obligation of building and of residence (except upon the lot on which they live) provided that the required clearing of the land be made on each lot. The non-accomplishment of these conditions will cause the immediate loss of the assigned lot of land, which will be sold or given to another.

The Road having been opened by the Government, the settlers are required to keep it in repair.

E. PERRY.
Agent, Addington Road.
