

and a young man comes up to you and says "Hello, you remember me" you admit the face is familiar but you can't put a name to it. He tells you his name and you immediately recognize him. You haven't seen him for two years, so you go and have a coffee and talk about how he is doing, you find out he is the assistant manager of a clothing store in the shopping centre, and for once in all the years you worked you feel grateful that someone has maybe benefited from some small bit of advice you have passed on.

The above essay was submitted by Mr Doug Mitchell, a former guard at Monteith Correctional Centre, while he was enrolled in an Electrical Course at Northern College of Applied arts + Technology in Porcupine