AMERICAN WATCHES.

THE true value of Machinery applied to watch-making is not that by its use Watches are made rapidly, but that they are made correctly. Very few people know why a Waltham Watch should be superior to any other.—In the first place, at Waltham the Watch is regarded as only a machine, to be constructed, like any other machine, or mechanical principles. The factory is, indeed, little else than a vast machine shop, the principal work in which is not more upon watches than upon machinery to make watches with. If the watches are good, it is because the machinery is good. Of course, there must be no defect in the principle or plan of the movement, no mistakes in the sizes or shapes of the peices of which it is composed, nothing wanting in their properties, and no error in their positions.—These points once thoroughly settled in regard to each part of every variety of watch, it rests wholly with the machinery constructed with infinite diversity of form and function, expressly for the purpose, to produce the finished pieces. The method established in every department is the reduplication of parts by mechanical means, and this is carried out on the system of the most thorough subdivision of labour.

By means of multiplying gauges and miscroscopes, tests and inspection for the detection of wear in cutting tools, and for faults and flaws in steel and stone, are made to accompany the work in every stage from beginning to end. As a necessary result, the Watch goes together a perfect machine. Every part is found to fit properly in its place. Every pin may be pushed till it pinches, and every screw turned home. Instead of a sluggish and feeble action, the balance, even under the pressure of the lightest mainspring, vibrates, with a wide and free motion, and the beat has the clear and ringing sound, always characteristic of the Waltham Watch. The machine is a time-keeper from the start.

The system of watch-making is unknown in foreign countries, and is entirely original with the Waltham Company. The Company claim that by it they produce Watches that cannot be equalled for every quality which makes a watch valuable. Simple to plan and correct in principle, the movement is not only beautifully finished, substantial, accurate and cheap, but is uniform to the minutest details, not easily damaged, easily repaired, and when repaired always as good as new.

There are different grades of finish in the different varities of Watches made by the Waltham Company, as they are different sizes and shapes to suit all tastes and means; but every Watch that bears the genuine trade mark of "WALTHAM" is guaranteed to be a good one, and nobody need be afraid to buy it.

For sale by all first-class dealers in the United States and British Provinces.
