DR. GROVES HONORED

The nearby town of Fergus paid a deserved tribute last Friday evening to a noted physician, who for sixty-one years has carried on an hospital in the place and has been of signal service to a wide circle of patients Dr. Abram Groves, who was the guest of honor at a banquet tendered him by over 400 of his friends and neighbors and distinguished members of his profession, was a pioneer in most important advance in his profession. It was pointed out at this gathering for example, that years before Lord Lister brought forward his ideas of sterilization Dr. Groves was boiling every instrument he used. Then this humble town practitioner led the way in the western world when thirteen years after he began practice, being called to diagnose the cause of agonising pains in a patient, he successfully performed the first known operation of appendectomy. No wonder he, for so many years, achieved fame as a successful diagnotician and surgeon. Resisting every inducement to move to a greater centre of population this distinguished healer preferred to remain with his kith and kin in the old town, and he had double reward in the confidence that has been shown him by the wide constituency who never doubted his skill.

Now, having reached an age vouchsafed to but few of his profession, he presents the fine hospital established by him to the people of Fergus, who will doubtless see to it that the institution remains in the front rank. He also has the proud statisfaction to know that his son and grandson are following in his footsteps as talented medical men. All honor to his name He has given a fine example to members of the healing profession.

EDITORIAL ITEMS

The wolf is coming into his own as an advertising medium for Northern Ontario. Sault Ste. Marie are to have a wolf week in July, when it is expected a wonderful time will be enjoyed by all. Editor Curran of the Star is certainly capitalizing on his wolf stories in the past to bring tourists to that hustling northern steel town.

"What should Canada offer Great Britain at the Conference: Markets or hot air?" asks the Winnipeg Free Press. Hot air there will be in plenty; markets problematic, or some of our statesmen will have to change their opinions of the past. What is needed is a cordial recognition of the fact that if we would find markets in other portions of the Empire for our productions we must be prepared to remove such barriers at our borders as will prevent the importation, with payment in their products, for what they buy from us.

The Department of Fisheries at Ottawa is still conducting its fish-eating campaign, and Mrs. Evelene Spencer is still conducting her radio broadcast, all with a view to switching the meat-eating public to fish It would be interestsing to know just what per centage of our farmers are in accord with the government, when it attempts in a round about way to still further oppress the starvation prices now received for farm stock and make better prices for the fishermen. As we remarked before, it is robbing Peter to pay Paul. The government should remember that the Pauls are vastly in the minority

A Barrie medical man was visited by two gypsies who had been run out of Collingwood. One of the women was seeking medical advice and the other one, an unusually comely maiden, offered to tell the doctor's fortune and the palm of the hand was presented to her. In the lines of the hand the woman saw nothing but a happy future. Later the medical man could not locate $50 which was in his pocket before the gypsies called.

The action of the constable at Eugenia in warning a Toronto citizen that it was illegal to fish on Sunday forces the Durham Chronicle to state that his actions should not be tolerated, as the Lord's Day Alliance officers announced that that section of the Act is not enforced. The constable in question received his instructions from the Crown Attorney and, therefore acted on advice. If the Act is not to be enforced it should be taken off the books. It is just another step towards the day when Canada will be wide open on Sunday to all forms of commercialism as at present in vogue in the United States. We hope that day is in the far distance.

The British Marketing Board has imported from Burma a cargo of mangosteens and hope to open up a trade in the fruit, which is a favorite in our sister dominion, but not marketed hitherto in either the mother-land, or this country. The fruit is dark red and hard as a cricket ball outside. The inside of the fruit is pure white and juicy and it is sweet and thirst-quenching. The cargo is being sold at nine-pence each but it may become, in some measure, a rival of grape fruit if it can become so popular as to warrant its being sold for less. What enterprising Canadian importer will add this product to the inter-Empire trade of the country?

A "back-to-the-land" movement is in force up at Sudbury, where 400 jobless men are to be given farms to clear and a month's rations, while they get the new farms under way The despatch goes into considerable detail about this meritorious move, but there are some things in connection with it which do not seem to have been thought of. Those fostering the move should remember that outside of land and lumber for houses a few hundred dollars should be added to pay for a team of horses machinery and farm equipment Farming has not yet begun when the land is cleared—a back-breaking job in itself. Then comes the big outlay for farm machinery, buildings, etc. These 400 jobless are apt to find their task beyond human endeavor unless the authorities go further and "grub stake" them to a complete outfit for working the land.

PUT NOT YOUR TRUST IN IN RICHES

A few weeks ago the daily press told us that R. B. Bennett keeps a body-guard around him day and night.

Last week I had a letter from a friend informing me that Sam McLachlan of Oshawa keeps a body-guard of two men in the day-time and two men at night around him for his protection. Sam is president of the General Motors of Canada and is said to have become very, very wealthy.

R. B. Bennett—Sam McLachlan, both millionaires several times over In both Ottawa and Oshawa there are plenty of people without one cent to rub against another, are out of work and out of food. And these two men are living in fear of their lives

We, you and I, have something to be thankful for. We are at least assured of immunity from the assassin's bullet.—Wiarton Echo.

Geo. Mitchell of Clarksburg was appointed a bailiff 45 years ago and is still filling the position.

A colony of beavers have commenced work on the Nottawasaga river near Ivy, where they have built a dam with cuttings fifty feet distant from the water.

One of the added attractions at Wasaga Beach this year will be a 175 pound sturgeon, which will be on display alive in a glass tank. The huge fish, which was caught on a night line by Eberhardt Brothers measures 6 feet and 2 inches.

ISOLATION HOSPITALS

Our older readers may recall the time when they used to hold their breath when passing a house which was placarded for a communicable disease. They may also remember that isolation hospitals were built away from the residential area, and that the smallpox hospital was regarded as a pest house.

That attitude can be understood, when we realize that, in the past, it was generally believed that the communicable diseases were air-born. It was during the same period that sewer-gas was considered to be a serious menace and was regarded as the cause of many ills.

We know now that disease is not air-borne, and we know, too, that the germs of disease are usually spread in a fairly direct manner from the sick to the well, or by the transference of fresh, germ-laden secretions. The sick are isolated in order to set up a barrier which will prevent contact of the sick with the well, and so stop any chance of the transfer of secretions.

Isolation hospitals are required because, in many homes, it is not possible to isolate the case. To begin with, the home may be overcrowded and so a separate room is not available. The case of communicable disease requires nursing care, and the mother who has children to look after cannot give her whole time to the case. If the case is a serious one, then the treatment facilities of a hospital are required, as they are in any serious illness.

The community, which has an isolation hospital, has something for which to be thankful. Such an institution is a treatment facility which aids in protecting the whole community and which provides hospital care for those who, for one reason or another, require it.

It has only been comparatively recently that the public have looked favorably upon hospitals. They used to be regarded as places which were avoided at all costs. Now they are recognized for their true worth as life-saving institutions. To a certain extent, the old view still persists with regard to isolation hospitals, and many parents hesitate to commit their children to the care of these institutions.

The isolation hospital differs from other hospitals only in that it limits its admissions to cases of communicable diseases. The facilities for treatment and the care given to patients are just as high an order as in other hospitals.

We are now coming to the time when isolation hospitals will not be built away from the community, but will form part of the general hospital It is one of the safest places in the world, because necessary precautions are taken there to prevent the spread of disease germs.

Mrs. J. H. Watts Dies

Mrs. Eilabeth Watts, Wakerton's oldest resident, widow of the Rev. J. H. Watts, who was one of the earliest missionaries in the Queen's Bush, and who preached at Eugenia at one time, passed to her reward between seven and eight o'clock on Wednesday a.m. of last week. She was in her 96th year and had been sleeping since the previous Friday.

In a sketch of her life, the Walkerton Telescope says: "The first settlers of the district were having a hard struggle for existence when she and her late husband, with two small children, went to the Kincardine mission in 1856. There was no 'parsonage' awaiting the new minister, but one of the settlers divided the bedroom of his shanty with a wooden partition and there the parson, his wife and two small children had their home. The small larder was sometimes pretty bare and one one occasion Mr. Watts decided to give up temporarily and go into Kincardine and work at his trade as carpenter to provide food for his little family. On his way to the settlement, he came across a good woman of his flock who offered him some flour and encouraged him to return to his work In those days the preachers received their small salaries largely in provisions such as flour and pork.

"The following year Rev. Mr. Watts was transferred to Hanover for a two years' term. The reverend gentleman, with hammer and saw, erected a parsonage himself at what is known as Campbell's Corners, just east of Hanover. The parsonage had a living room and two bedrooms, being considered quite a commodious affair in those days. From Hanover Rev. and Mrs. Watts were transferred to Garafraxa, then to Orangeville, to Listowel and then to Hanover for a second term. Other appointments held by Rev. Mr. Watts were at Mount Forest Creemore, Meaford, Markham, Sterling, Frankford, Haldimand, Colborne Garafraxa (second term), Eramosa, Salem (living first year at Black Horse) second and third years at Enniskillen), Eugenia Falls, Cedarville, Henfryn.

"This Methodist minister, an earnest evangelistic preacher with a reputation for great devotion to his calling, was superannuated in 1894, and he and Mrs. Watts, who always was deeply sympathetic with her husband's work, came, with their family to Walkerton to reside. In 1910 he died, after being a helpless invalid for seven and a half years.

"Mr. and Mrs. Watts made a fine contribution to their country in raising a familyl of twelve children. Besides these there survive forty-three grandchildren and some forty great grandchildren, and the deceased took a deep interest in them. The deceased had living two brothers and one sister, all over eighty."

CROPS TO BE AMPLE

Heavy rains have assured ample moisture in practically every part of Ontario. Crops are looking splendid with fall wheat, clover and alfalfa making excellent growth. The apple bloom is very heavy in most orchard districts, and a considerable increase is shown over the province in the number of orchards being sprayed. Farmers are coming to realize that they must either spray or cut down their orchards altogether.

"HOME PAPER" IS READ

Occasionally it is remarked that the "home paper" is not read, but when a person making such an assertion is asked if he will permit the editor to print, even in the most inconspicuous corner, an item not too complimentary to him, never is he prepared to take the chance.

The one who, most recently, had reason to vouch that the local papers are read is Harry Truax, one of the proprietors of the business bearing the family name. A few weeks ago it was stated in the Walkerton press that his firm was enlarging its engraving department and employment would be provided for some extra men.

Mr. Truax says, if he considers his convenience, he will hesitate before he confirms another report of this kind regarding their business, for scores and scores of men have been applying to him for work, some as far away as Galt and Kitchener. Even during meal hours he was interrupted.—Walkerton Herald.

Wanted Case Continued

It is reported to TheAdvance that Mr. John Sutton of Toronto, who was warned two weeks ago to cease the Sunday fishing, was again in the district and plead with Constable Robt. Purvis to lay charges against him for Sunday fishing. Constable Purvis is leaving the matter with the Lord's Day Alliance for prosecution. Mr. Sutton also had a party of friends with him on this trip.

PREMIERS' EXPENSES

The Hon. Richard Bennett has a suite of fifteen rooms in the Chateau Laurier in Ottawa. For this suite he paid $11,943.47 in 1930. In 1931 he paid $19,838.38; and in the present year to this date $8,236.05. So it is stated in a management committee's report of the evidence given before it in the House of Commons of Canada. Mr. Bennett's evidence before this committee confirms the accuracy of this statement. These payments were for the entertainment of the counry's visitors as well as for his own guests. All nations of rank in Canada have visitors and these are usually entertained at the nation's expense. A fall fair could hardly be conducted without visitors who required entertainment. Much less a country. Mr. Bennett paid it all himself. Other Prime Ministers had not the means to do it. The country met its own obligations for entertainment of this kind under these premiers, as it should in every case.—Drayton Advocate.

Enjoyed Motor Trip

The Flesherton and Priceville public school boys enjoyed a trip last week to Muskoka in the care of Mr. Ira Merriam, principal of the Flesherton school and Mr. Findlay Shakleton, of the Priceville school. The lads had a real pleasant trip to Bracebridge going by way of Owen Sound, with a stop at Wasaga Beach. Then a visit was made to the shrine at Midland, where the two Jesuit priests were put to death by the Iroquois and then the party proceeded to Orillia. They spent the night at the armouries at Bracebridge, which was loaned for the occasion. They had their own bedding with them and were as comfortable as could be. The return trip was made by Barrie and Stayner with side trips to places of interest. Last year the two principals took the boys to Niagara Falls. The happy crowd arrived home late Saturday night and pronounced the trip the best yet.

MEASURING GRAIN IN BINS

This is the time of the year when it becomes important to the farmer to know fairly accurately the quantities of grain he has available for seed or other use. A rule of thumb for determining the quantity of grain in a bin, which proves very reliable, is supplied by the Division of Field Husbandry of the Dominion Experimental Farms. To estimate the amount of grain in a bin multiply the length by the width, by the height of the grain in the bin to determine the capacity in cubic feet, and then divide this sum by 1¼, which will give the contents in bushels. Care must be taken to see that the grain is levelled off to ensure accurate measurement.

TO PAVE HIGHWAY.

A well-founded rumor is to the effect that King's Highway No. 10 will be paved from Melancthon north seven miles. We understand an oil-bound macadam will be laid on the present waterbound macadam with oil top. Owing chiefly to the fact that the logs laid as corduroy in this road in the early days were not removed when this surface was laid, this road has always been rough, especially in the spring months when the logs are heaved by the frost. This road will never be satisfactory until these logs are all removed, as old logs are forced up each year, causing trouble.—Dundalk Herald.

BETTER OFF HERE

Mr. Fred Haddell, who some years ago ran a bakery here and has since been in Detroit, was in town last Friday and for anyone who is bemoaning conditions existing here just now, his stories of Detroit were most stimulating. Mr. Haddell is seeking a location in Ontario, it being his intention to again establish himself on the Canadian side of the international boundary. He says there is absolutely no business in Detroit and people are leaving the city in thousands every month. Houses that rented for $50 and $60 a month three years ago can now be rented for $15 a month. The shortage of money has made it impossible to gather the taxes and firemen policemen, teachers and all civic employes are getting only a portion of their salaries Last year the school teachers got one half their due and the outlook is that they will not get even half of their salaries this year.—Alliston Herald.
