AN OMEN OF GOOD TIMES

The Imperial Economic Conference in the two weeks it has been in session at Ottawa, has covered a good deal of ground. Some people were of the opinion, before the conference assembled, that there had been so much preparation, so much preliminary exchange of ideas, so many efforts to provide means to overcome the oppressive measures of taxation that there would be nothing to do but to pass the resolutions and go home There has, however, been some very plain talking and a good many struggles to maintain preconceived notions as to how best to overcome man-made obstacles to freedom of trade. The conference, after the first day's opening, has been held with closed doors, but with so many persons attending it and with large numbers of those interested in its deliberations, to say nothing of the ever-alert corps of newspaper men who came from all over the world to ferret out its doings the earliest possible moment, it would be strange, indeed, if there was not much publicity. And one criticism applicable to the nations composing the British Commonwealth, as well as the countries outside of it, has been strictly exemplified in the debating and negotiations at Ottawa. There has been, it is now conceded on all hands, a disposition of governments to maintain a policy of taxation, the primary object of which was to ensure that the nation should sell, but not buy. Professor Leacock recently observed that nations so acting were obsessed with the law of self-preservation, but if this were their idea of statesmanship, they have been getting fearfully disillusioned in these years of hard times. We are glad to learn from Ottawa that there is now a swing of the pendulum in the other direction and that men like Mr. Baldwin and Mr. Runciman are insisting that nations must buy as well as sell, or bear the consequences. They are under no misapprehension as to the need of unshackling international trade wherever possible and for getting rid of all pin-pricking methods of mulcting taxpayers when they bring into their country payment in goods for the exports of products made by them.

With the removal of all such unnecessary impediments to trade between countries composing the British Commonwealth in the first instance which would, of course, have to be homologated by the Parliaments of the respective countries, might we not expect to see many other nations following the good example? Then, and not till then, are the good times, so devotedly wished for, likely to be fully brought about. But, in any case, we can all take courage and hope that from the friendly and conciliatory attitude of the negotiators there will at east be substantial progress made in the unshackling of commerce and revival of industry, not only in British nations, but in such enlightened portions of the globe as may emulate their example.

A FAR REACHING DECISION

A noteworthy decision was given by Magistrate Spereman of Owen Sound last week when he gave his opinion that fishing property had to be properly fenced, to keep out cattle and sheep, before a charge of trespass could be laid against a person. There are numerous streams around here that are not protected by fencing in any way and are therefore open for public fencing in any way open for public fishing, whether the fishing rights are owned by the owner of the property or sold to some fishing club. In order for some of these clubs to hold their fishing rights it would according to this decision be necessary to spend a great deal of money to build fences and the outlay would be prohibitive. Then the clubs would no doubt have to purchase the land in order to protect their right, therefore the outlook does not appear very enticing from the standpoint of the clubs in question. Another point is, that any stream in which the fish have been deposited free by the Government, is open for public fishing This is a far-reaching decision and all clubs interested will receive it with dismay.

EDITORIAL NOTES

A 300 pound cement frog was recently stolen from a yard at Port Stanley. Probably some enthusiastic fisherman intended to use it as bait and entice some of the "big uns" to take a nibble.

There must be considerable chagrin in the United States to have a negro runner win at the Olympic games as their representative. They do not seem to draw the color line in field sports as they do in boxing, as their love for the negro race is of a very low order.

During the past year there has been a steady exodus of city dwellers to the farming communities. Though there is no money being made on the farm they evidently desire to have three square meals a day and a job than the uncertainties of unemployment in the cities. Even with low prices the farmers are far better off than thousands of workers in the cities.

Won Court Case

A fishing case that will have far reaching effects was tried in Markdale last in which the Galt Fishing Club sued Mr. G. B. Welton of town for trespassing on their fishing reserve on the Beaver River. Magistrate Spereman of Owen Sound gave his decision in favor of Mr. Welton as the evidence showed that the property was not fenced and any person was entitled to fish in the river.

Mr. Welton was found fishing on the property by one of the Club's watchmen and information was immediately laid for trespassing. Evidence was produced to show that the river was not fenced at the bridge and any person could enter the property by walking. A proper wire fence was needed which would keep out cattle and sheep. Quite a number of town people attended the court as considerable interest was aroused over the case.

FLESHERTON 19 — MARKDALE 3

Another league mixed softball game was played between Markdale and Flesherton on Tuesday, August 2nd, in the park, the latter team was victorious the score being 19-3. Oram pitched for the Flesherton team and gave the finest exhibition of pitching that has been seen around here for some time. The next battle will take place in Flesherton, on Thursday, August 11th, when a doubleheader will take place with Dundalk's mixed and boys teams playing the local teams. These will be whizbang games as each team has to win to stay at the top of the list. The following list is how the teams stand.

Grey Regiment Had Camp At Orillia

The Grey Regiment returned home after a very enjoyable ten day camp at Orillia. D. Company was in command of Capt. A. E. Bellamy, while the regiment was headed by Major E. N. McDonald of Owen Sound in the absence of Lieut. Col. Ferguson of Thornbury. Time at camp was almost entirely taken by specialists training and field tactics for open warfare, which was very interesting to all who took part. On Wednesday of last week new colors were presented to the Simcoe Foresters by the County and the ceremony was an impressive one. Following the presentation the whole brigade marched past General Ashton of Toronto, head of Military District No. 2, taking the salute, together with Brigadier Col. T. J. Rutherford of Owen Sound.

We were indebted to Mr. C. H. Hale editor of the Packet and Times for a most enjoyable motor ride around the town and enjoyed the beauty spots of that lovely town. There is no finer spot in Ontario than Couchiching Park and the many attractive flower beds receive commendation from all sides. We enjoyed our stay in Orillia and look forward to another visit when we have more time at our disposal.

On the Saturday afternoon in camp a field day was held and "D" Company marched off with premier honors in the sports. Russell Cameron of Eugenia won 2nd in the 440 yard dash, first in middle weight boxing and wrestling and first in heavy weight wrestling, with Ab. Ashley of Durham taking the heavy weight boxing title. Chas. Bellamy of Owen Sound, a member of "A" Company took first in the three sprints. "C" Company from Meaford took the cups for marksmanship and efficiency, for competition in the Grey Regiment, the second year in succession.

DO THRESHERMEN SPREAD OR CONTROL WEEDS?

Yes is the answer in both cases. The thresherman who is inclined to be careless, always in a hurry, who does not take time to clean the weed scheen in the shoe of the mill, who never has his mill adjusted quite right and who is not particular in cleaning his mill inside and out after finishing each job certainly does assist in spreading weed seeds back on the farm and from one farm to another.

The careful thresher on the other hand always has his mill properly adjusted for the type of grain he is threshing. He makes sure his mill is fed properly and that the weed screens are clean and doing the work for which they were intended. He watches the grain spout carefully to make sure his mill is doing a clean job at all times. He cleans and sweeps his mill carefully before moving to the next farm, and thereby represents a very important link in the chain of weed control activities.

The thresherman while doing a job is in the employ of the farmer and is largely influenced by his desires If he wants a rush job the thresherman often tries to oblige him by crowding his mill and not taking time to keep it properly adjusted with the result that grain is often poorly cleaned, with considerable loss from grain being blown out with the straw.

Farmers and threshermen alike should be very careful that stook threshing is done in such a manner that sow thistle and other weed seeds are prevented from blowing to neighboring property.

The careful threshermen is truly a credit to his industry and is very largely responsible for preventing many weed seeds from spreading from one farm to another.

To reduce the heavy overhead it is proposed to reduce the number of cheese factories in Ontario and make fewer but bigger and better plants.

Study Markets Closely

Marketing conditions and systems have been radically changed by truck transportation and jobbers who own trucks.

There is no doubt that the truck has extended markets to growers. Some recent occurrences show the disadvantages, not so much of the truck as a means of transportation but of jobbers. There are cases where these men have taken advantage of growers who have not up-to-date knowledge of markets. As an example of this might be noted, an early carrot grower in Southwestern Ontario was approached by a buyer who owns his own truck. This particular grower did not have up-to-date knowledge of the markets and took what the trucker offered. The grower much to his sorrow, later learned that he sold his carrots at one-third the market price.

PROTECTING PAPERS FROM FRAUD

Court decisions respecting newspaper subscriptions are very clear. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the post office, whether in his name or another's or whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for payment. If a person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made, and then collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken or not. The courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers or periodicals from the post office or removing and leaving them unpaid, is prima face evidence of fraud.
