A Wonder To Others

In his write-up on the Old Home Week Picnic, held in Flesherton a week ago, Mr. Frank Irwin, editor of the Durham Chronicle, says:

The success of these Flesherton picnics is a wonder to other towns, where something similar has been tried and has failed. The secret seems to lie in the co-operation of both village and out-of-town committees, and the fact that those away from home want to get back, and those at home want to have them. The personnel of the Toronto committees, too, has a lot to do with it. There's Charlie McTavish, head of the sales department of the General Motors at Oshawa; Bill Hemphill, with the T. Eaton Co.; Alex. M. Gibson, superintendent of Toronto District postal service; B. E. Field, head of the Burton E. Field Co., customs brokers, and many others who could be named.

Whatever the cause, the fact remains that Flesherton successfully carries through that which many larger places have fallen down on, and —they're coming back next year!

To Improve Bacon Hog

Hon. Thomas L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture, has announced that new regulations have been adopted by the Province and Dominion jointly to improve the standards of bacon production. Under these provisions what is known as an advanced register of sows is to be established. Pigs from a first litter will have to make 200 pound of pork in 200 days, will be slaughtered and their carcasses judged by the Dominion graders and scored for value as bacon. In the event that they are scored as "extra good bacon," the sow will be placed on the proposed advanced register with proper ear-marking or tagging, and the farmer owning her will be bonused to the extent of $15, to which the Province and Dominion will contribute equally. Any boar that is secured from this advanced register of sows will be looked over by judges at the age of six months, and if showing the right conformation, will earn for its owner the amount of $15 from the Governments.

Playground Of Ontario Cannot Be Beaten

Any person who loves nature in her wildest state should take a week end trip through northern Ontario, as the writer did last week. For a panorama of lakes, large and small, rivers, pine and spruce forests in their original beauty, where man has not defaced mother nature, we commend the trip from North Bay to Temagami. Here on either side of the Ferguson highway are great forests, mountains, lakes and rivers to satisfy the most fastidious taste in that direction. At every lake along this 60 miles of wild country are found campers and motors, but no buildings. Frequently wild life is encountered on this highway in the form of moose, red deer, partridge, etc., and this wild life does not seem to be much afraid of man or motors. We encountered partridges that acted exactly as domestic fowl do here—foved to the side of the road but did not think it worth while to fly. Temagami, the northern end of our trip is situated on an eastern arm of wonderful Lake Temagami, where boat trips over 90 miles of water may be had. The population is reckoned at 150 all the year round, with many more during the summer months. There is a handsome station here on the T. & N.O., a fine summer hotel at $4 per day good general store, etc. The government is at present fitting up a motor park a mile and a half from the station on the main channel where all lake boats pass There were a large number of "tenters" here when we visited the camp.

To be more explicit a party of three left Flesherton on Thursday last at 10 a.m., going to Owen Sound, where a fourth member was picked up. Then the route lay by Meaford, Collingwood, Barrie, Orillia to Severn Bridge, where we joined up with the Ferguson highway for the north. In the evening we pulled up at Huntsville, where the night was spent in furnished cabins at the Central garage (which by the way is far from being central), visited Huntsville's wonderful park and lookout, then on to Sundridge. Here on the shore of beautiful lake Bernard is the finest tourist camp we visited on the trip, run by Mr. Johnstone, a native of Walkerton. If you ever go up that way call on him, and don't forget to tell him you are a Conservative Mr. Johnstone has switched that old slogan "Nothing too good for the Irish." There is free tenting and bathing in his park. Previously, at Burks Falls we had called on Mr. and Mrs. John Stuart. Mr. Stuart has not fully recovered from his bad motor accident last fall.

Friday afternoon we passed North Bay, and seven miles beyond, where we put up for the night at the furnished log cabins of Mr. Mallon. In the morning two of the party skirted a small river and captured enough brook trout for a good meal. Then the road passed through the Temagami forest reserve. We arrived at Temagami motor camp for dinner and returned as far as Powassan that night, where the party was royally entertained by our mutual friends, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Stuart and his charming family.

Passing through the forest reserve we noticed one sawmill near the highway. This gave us a sort of shock. We had always understood that this reserve was to be retained in its original beauty and the scarring hand of the lumberman was to be held in check. It seems a criminal thing that the lordly pine covering these granite hills and enclosing the gem-like streams and lakes should be destroyed to satisfy the greed of man. There is danger that political pull will prove the undoing of this lovely district. It is even now beginning to get in its destructive work, judging by the sawmill mentioned. We were told that political pull was responsible for the presence of this mill on the reserve.

At Sundridge on the return journey we left the highway and crossed to Magnetewan village on the Magnetawan river, then by Ahmic Harbor and Dunchurch to Parry Sound, over a good improved country road. Then the route lay by Rosseau to Port Carling and Bala, back to Gravenhurst, where we again joined the highway and on by way of Barrie home, where we arrived Sunday night after four days of the most scenic motor trip we have ever enjoyed. It was a wonderful experience. The journey embraced 750 miles of the most beautiful play ground in all the world and a play ground of which all Canadians should be proud, and one which should be preserved to future generations in all its pristine beauty and the fingers of the logger kept out of the pie.

Take the trip yourself and you will acknowledge that our enthusiasm is only a tame thing beside the reality.

Health Service

Canadian Medical Association

GRANT FLEMING, M.D. — ASSOCIATE SECRETARY.

PASTEURIZATION OF MILK

In this country, opposition to compulsory pasteurization laws frequently came from those who had lived for some years in the British Isles. There they had used raw milk, very often dipped from a can, and they found it difficult to believe that pasteurization was necessary, since it had not been required by law in their home land.

We have learned a great deal in Public health matters from the British Isles. To one who reads the story of the development of the modern public health movement could fail to be convinced of our debt to the home of public health. Nevertheless, during the past years, valuable contributions have come from this continent and we are now able to repay some of our debt.

Pasteurization of milk is one of the greatest contributions to public health and particularly to the safeguarding of infant lives. A safe milk supply, secured through inspection and pasteurization, together with the education of mothers in the care of infants, secure for the infant, protection from disease and a better chance for good health. It is the safe milk, safe because it is pasteurized, that has largely banished the dangers of the summer for babies.

Acceptance of pasteurization as a necessary public health measure has been slow in the British Isles. At the present time it is accepted and the pasteurization of practically the whole milk supply of the city.

The milk-borne epidemics have occurred in Britain, have convinced those who believed that a safe milk supply could be secured through the enforcement of strict regulation, that pasteurization is absolutely necessary. The Medical Officer states in a recent issue that since the Brighton sore throat epidemic, "no medical authority has stood out seriously against pasteurization."

Public Health workers on this side have long wondered at the failure of British workers to adopt pasteurization. It now appears that they have been giving a great deal of attention to the subject but that they first had to be convinced that their own methods of milk control were unsatisfactory.

Pasteurization of milk supplies provides a safeguard that no other method provides. Through inspection, as clean a milk as possible should be secured, and then it is to be rendered safe by pasteurization. The time is close at hand when travellers will be able to have safe milk wherever they go because pasteurization will soon be a universal public health procedure.

Priceville Service

Large crowds attended the annual Memorial service at Priceville on Sunday afternoon and paid tribute to the memory ofthose boys who made the supreme sacrifice during the Great War. Hanover band provided music during the afternoon and a community choir assisted in the singing. The following fine old hymns were sung by the huge gathering: "O God Our Help in Ages Past," "Lead Kindly Light" and "Lord of the Lands" to the tune of "O Canada."

Mr. John McQuaker of Owen Sound acted as chairman and introduced Mr. Sorsoliel, Deputy Minister of Public Welfare for Ontario, who gave a splendid address. Miss A. C. Macphail, M.P., F. R. Oliver. M.L.A., and Mr. Ed. McClocklin of Durham also spoke. Messrs. Vic Sherman, Jimmy Wier and Wm. McBride laid a wreath on the memorial in memory of their fallen comrades. The Last Post was then sounded by a member of the Hanover band. During the service Mrs. Wm. Arrowsmith rendered a splendid solo.
