A Hunting We Will Go

Thrusting out into the sunlit waters of a little Canadian lake is a grassy point on which stands an old log hunting camp. An ancient pine sweeps the cabin roof with its branches and year by year lays a thick brown carpet of fragrant needles before the door-step. Grey lichen and moss fill the chincks between the logs and spaces around the door and window openings. On the roof a weather-beaten stove pipe juts out, securely anchored by heavy wire against the attacks of the elements. From the shore a curving path leads past clumps of white birches to the entrance. The door, a solid affair of hewn boards, is secured only by a rusty latch. Inside a stray beam of sunshine lights the dim interior making visible a row of bunks, a stove, rough table, chair, shelves and other articles of simple woods carpentry construction.

For many moons the squirrels and chipmunks have had the freedom of its shelter. Claw marks on the door post are in the nature of a visiting card left by Mr. Bear. Deer have gazed on it questioningly, and in the clearing to the west of the cabin tuft tailed bunnies have kept a wary eye on it as they hopped about on their own affairs. For long it has been enveloped in the silence of the north woods, a quiet hush made more noticeable by being broken occasionally by the whirr of a partridge, the weird laugh of a loon on the nearby lake, or the plaintive calls of the whip-poor-wills as evening closes in. Hark! Far down the lake sounds the exhaust of an outboard motor, carrying to the invisible inhabitants of the point the message that the owner of the camp will shortly take possession and that the hunting season has arrived.

The Flesherton contingent is already planning for their vacations at their various camps and although hounds are barred from hunting this year, they have hopes of securing their allotment.

Anomalies Of The Law

An excursion boat out of Goderich was stopped on a recent Sunday by the Lord's Day Alliance, and this prompts the Godrich Star to comment on the anomalies of our laws; "Sunday ice cream, if you take it away inside you, is legal; if you take it away in a container, is illegal. Sunday excursions if you go sorewhere are legal, but if you merely go and come back they are illegal. It is not legal to have liquor served at a banquet but it is legal to have it served in a bedroom in a hotel where the banquet is being held. It is not legal to drive a motor car more than 35 miles an hour yet hardly any driver ever thinks of confining his speed to 35 miles an hour except when he is telling about it afterwards in court, and then it is always 35 miles an hour or under." A host of other instances might also have been added to those quoted by our contemporary. It is illegal to buy "smokes" in a drug store on Sunday, but you can go to any refreshment booth or hotel and get all you want. You can play golf anywhere on Sunday —and tennis in many centres—but you can't play baseball. You can obey the law by getting a driver's permit and yet be fined if you forget to carry the card with you. And so on. Certainly, a lot could be done to make our laws more rational. — Walkerton Herald.

We rather think our contemporary is in error about the illegality of playing baseball on Sunday. Our impression is that the law does not make Sunday games illegal if no charge is made for admission to witness them and if the participants do not cause disturbance or noise that will be a nuisance to the general public. There is one other illegality that is made legal if connected for the benefit of a church — that is raffling. If a game of chance is indulged in at a church "fair," the participants are exempt from prosecution.

Finest Exhit of Live Stock In History of East Grey Fair

Enjoyed Fair Crowd Who Were Highly Pleased With The Entertainment Given — Sixteen Horses In Four Races—Track Record Lowered

One of the finest agricultural fairs was the highlight of the annual exhibition of the East Grey Agricultural Society held in Flesherton on Thursday and Friday of last week. There was an excellent turnout of horses, some fine animals being on display, competition in many of the classes being very keen. Harvey Burns of Meaford took first place with a heavy draught team and also best animal, while Jas. Picken of Durham took the team prize in the Agricultural class, with Cecil Green of Heathcote securing the prize for the best animal. J. B. Thibaudeau of Markdale secured first for General Purpose team and best animal. The roadster class was well filled and some very fine teams were competing a pair of blacks owned by Wm. Thompson of Dundalk taking first prize over Frank Taylor and T. H. Wilson of Markdale. A. McDougall of Durham won first and second prizes with his single drivers.

All cattle classes with the exception of Holsteins brought out keen competition and with more entries than for years. Shorthorns were exhibited by H. I. Graham of Vandeleur and McLoughry Bros. of Markdale. Jerseys by Walter Ferguson of Varney, G. E. Henry, F. Stuart, G. A. McTavish of Flesherton, W. R. Graham and McLoughry Bros. of Markdale and Edgar Betts of Eugenia. Polled Angus by Percy Sims of Markdale, Herb Corbett of Proton Station and Walter Ferguson of Varney. Holsteins showed by C. B. Boland and H. I. Graham of Vandeleur. There was an exceptionally fine display of Hereford cattle with Henry Eckhart & Sons of Priceville taking the majority of the prizes. Others showing were Otto Fay and Fred Boland of Markdale, Jas. Hudson of Feversham and Campbell Watson of Varney. The beef grade classes were also filled. It was one of the best cattle shows in the history of the fair and Judge Jeffs gave general satisfaction in his awards with so many outstanding cattle to choose from.

Yorkshire and Tamworth classes in hogs were well filled with Alfred Weppler of Priceville taking most of the prizes in the former and Geo. Ross of Maxwell in the latter. Except for an ewe lamb shown by T. Sled, Flesherton, Russell Ellis of Kimberley took all prizes in Oxford Down sheep and Wm. Heard secured all prizes in the Leicester class. The Shropshires were won by Clifford Hutchinson.

Very seldom has the East Grey fair brought out such an excellent exhibit of plants and flowers as those which graced the hall this year. All classes were well filled, many of them having from three to seven entries. The flowers were displayed at one end of the hall and many vases of cut flowers were displayed on the table reserved by fruit and domestic science. The beautiful background of bloom seemed to bring out the fine qualities in other exhibits. The fruit and domestic science exhibits filled one of the centre tables and overflowed to the stands at the sides. Vegetables and field roots were not as large an exhibit as other years and ladies' work was just as numerous.

In the hall Alf Down had an exhibit of radios and E. J. Bennett had an excellent display of furniture. Alf. Down also showed a few of the new Ford v-8 and four cylinder models.

The poultry house this year also had more entries, with W. D. Connor and Mark Wilson of Durham winning most of the prizes.

A softball game was played between Bognor and Flesherton with the latter emerging with a 21 to 9 victory. This was a popular event for the entertainment of the crowd.

A small midway entertained the crowd, but the minature train was unable to operate owing to the fact that a part of the steam engine had broken. This would have been a popular resort for the kiddies.

Four horse races were held by the Flesherton Driving Club and each of them were well fought. In the 2:15 class Derby Dan, owned by Gordon McLeod of Owen Sound, took first place, Billy Wilkes, C. Hodgins of Lucan, second and Bingen Todd, Welsh Bros. of Palmerston third. Danny Boy, H. Nesbitt of Listowel, took first place in the 2.25 trot or pace, with Minnie Direct, Wilbert White of Orangeville, second, and Mary Ann Gratten, C. Hodgins of Lucan third.

A named race for local horses was held with Verna Patchen, owned by Bert Porteous of Maxwell, taking first place. Brino Patch, owned by Chas. Welsh, second and Dexter Derby, owned by Gordon Eager of Owen Sound third. Bert Patch, owned by John Johnson of Markdale and Hazel Peters, owned by Gordon McLeod of Owen Sound, were drawn after an accident on the south side of the track.

A consolation race was held in which local horses were entered with Teddy Patch, owned by Ed. Seeley of Maxwell, taking first place, Darky B., Russell Irwin, Proton Station, second, and Nancy A., Gordon Acheson of Proton Station, third.

Sixteen horses were entered in the four races, the largest number to attend the Flesherton fair for years. In the second heat of the 2.15 trot or pace Derby Dan lowered the track record to 2.10¼.

W. W. Trimble acted as starter for the races, N. P. McIntyre of Durham and J. A. Crowston of Markdale as judges and Mark Wilson and J. O. Dargavel of Flesherton as timers.

The management of the fair are delighted with the co-operation of the citizens of Flesherton in staging the races and to all those who attended to swell the crowd. The fall fair is an asset to any municipality and acts as an incentive to raisers of purebred stock to improve their strains by competition with the owners. While a person may be defeated in winning the majority of the prizes they may come into their own the next year and defeat their opposition.

Both nights of the fair concerts were given in the town hall by the Holstein Dramatic Club with their play "Yimmy Yomson's Yob." The first night rain interfered with the crowd attending, but on Friday evening the hall was well filled. It was a fine play and the players took their respective parts well.
