Meteorological Observations

Weather was made for conversation—indeed, it is the chief necessary.

A calculation has been put forth by an eminent actuary that three out of every five conversations open with a remark on the weather. He was engaged two years, in all weathers, in collecting data for this computation. His sufferings were greatest in the bad quarter of an hour before dinner.

The ancients thought much of the weather. The Greeks had a Temple of the Winds, an anticipation of the meteorological Bureau, and their most popular comic author called one of his dramatic pieces "The Clouds."

One of the most remarkable phenomena connected with the weather is the number of persons who are constantly endeavoring to raise the wind. They are more numerous than the other class of people—a considerable one, no doubt—who are always looking out for a rainy day.

Many persons are so much taken up with the weather that they are continually in the clouds.

With all the discoveries science has made, we are yet very far from knowing what the clouds exactly contain, so many things are still in nubibus.

There are two kinds of dew. The one prevails in the early morning, and leaves its traces on the feet; the other makes its appearance mostly in the night, and affects the head. There is a difference of opinion among philosophers about morning dew, but a remarkable unanimity as to mountain dew.

Music has been composed on the weather; for instance, the well-known glee, "Hail, Smiling Morn!" (Note the sly allusion to the fickleness of our climate.)

There are four quarters of the wind, consequently there ought to be two halves, but nothing is known of them at Washington.

Every information about ice can be obtained of any eminent confectioner or fishmonger.

There is a want in literature—there is no good biography of the Clerk of the Weather.

No poultry show can be considered complete without a collection of weathercocks.

In Northern countries they call their dances in the winter snow-balls.

The weather was very dismal in the Dark Ages.

Eugenie's Luck Ring

A singular circumstance connected with the recent sale of the Empress Eugenie's personal effects has just happened, to confirm the superstitious in their belief in the supernatural. It will be remembered that on the last gay season of the Fontainbleau much clamor was raised and stories told concerning the loss of a ring, to which the Empress attached value as having been received from a certain weird woman when her Majesty was in Scotland on her visit, a few years ago. The legend attached to the ring was, founded on the assurance made by the weird woman that so long as her majesty wore the ring, so long would ill-luck and misfortune be kept at bay. The ring was missing, and although the most generous reward was offered, all was of no avail. Curious enough at the sale which took place recently, the lady-artist patronized by the Empress had attended, in order to procure one of the morning costumes worn by her Majesty, so as a certain portrait might be finished and sent to Madam Montijo. The Fontainbleau uniform was chosen by the artist just for the sake of the pleasant memories it conjured up. And lo! in one of the pockets of the mosquetaire jacket lay the weired woman's ring. A telegram was despatched to her Majesty, then at her country chateau in Estramadura, and no doubt by this time the conviction of a restoration to the Tuileries has once more returned to the Imperial mind.—The Ladies.

HOT.—It was so hot in Lynchburg on the 2nd that the local editor of the Virginia did not stir out of the house all day, but simply remained in the house and wrote hot weather items. This is a specimen: "Yesterday, as the day blazed on, Phœbus heaped additional coals upon his burning fiery furnace, until at last Mercury, unable any longer to bear the pressure, leaped madly out of the thousands of glass tubes in which he has been confined by Minerva, and ran about the city in streams of wild, boiling quicksilver. Common house-flies became fire-flies. The sulphur on lucifer matches boiled, and gas ignited simply by turning it into the atmospheric air. The seats in the porches became so heated that inconsiderate persons who plunged themselves down upon them leaped immediately to their feet, and filed shrieking away like human locomotives on a drunk.

A Chemical Food & Nutritive Tonic.

THE GREAT POPULARITY OF DR. WHEELER'S COMPOUND ELIXIR OF PHOSPHATES AND CALISAYA is owing to its perfect reliability in building up constitutions run down with diseases of the Stomach, Liver and Kidneys which arise from Dyspepsia or Feeble Digestion, and result in poor blood and breaking down of the general health. It effectually relieves pain or a sense of fullness in the Stomach after eating, Heart-burn, Flatulence, Constipation from torpid liver, Billious Headaches, Irritation of the Kidneys and Bladder from the red deposit in the Urine, irritability and restlessness followed by nervous prostration and general debility which inevitably arise from the one common cause—Dyspepsia or feeble Digestion. All those delicate constitutions that lack energy and vitality, and are unable to arouse themselves to any exertion or undergo any fatigue, will be astonished at the rapidity with which the whole system is raised out of this prostrate condition and energized and vitalized under the use of this preparation. It is harmless, delicious, does not lose its effect, and is not followed by a relapse. Sold at $1.00.
