Two Alleged Bandits On Trial Saturday

Jack O'Brien and John M. Burlie were arrested on Thursday last in Toronto and charged with the robbing while armed of the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch in Flesherton and alleged to have stolen over $6,000 from that institution. They were taken to Owen Sound on Friday night and lodged in the County jail. While passing through Flesherton they had supper at the Munshaw House, along with Inspector John Miller of the Criminal Investigation Department of the Provincial Police and Detective Hogan. The prisoners ate a hearty meal, as it was reported to have been the only one they had received that day.

Immediately following the arrest of the two men Manager A. E. Preston and Mr. Dow were summoned to Toronto and each identified the two men from amongst a number of others. Previously they had picked out the two suspects from a number of photopraphs presented to them.

It is reported that when arrested neither men had any money in his possession.

When the two alleged bandits were taken into court Saturday morning before Magistrate Spereman and formally charged with robbery while armed, they were represented by Mr. Austin Ross, K. C., of Toronto, who made no objection of the men being remanded for one week and the preliminary trial will take place in Owen Sound on Saturday of this week. Mr. Ross stated that he had a perfect alibi for both men and that they were innocent of the charges preferred against them. He intimated that he could prove that one of them at 1 o'clock on that day was talking to a policeman in Toronto and that the other one was in his home at 3 p.m. taking care of the other's baby. He said that Burlie was on civic relief in Toronto and proposed to prove that he had obtained relief on that day. Mr. Ross asked for bail for both men, but on account of the serious charge Crown Attorney Henry could not consent to the granting of bail and in this the Magistrate concurred.
