DOT BABY.

So help me gracious efry day
I laugh me wild to saw der vay
My small young laby try to play—
Dot funny little baby.

When I look of dhem leetle toes,
Und saw dot funny leetle nose,
Und heard der vay dot rooster crows,
I shmile like I vas crazy.

Und ven I heard the real nice vay
Dhem besples to my wife dhey say:
"More like his fader" every day,"
I vas so broud like blazes.

Sometimes dhere comes a lettle schquall,
Dot's vaen der vindy vind vill crawl,
Right in his leetle schomack schmall;
Dot's too bad for der baby.

Dot makes him sing at night so schveet,
Und gorrybarrac he must eat,
Und I must chumb schby on my feet,
To help dot leetle baby.

He bulls my nose and kicks my hair,
Und crawls me ofer efrywhere,
Und shlobber me—but vat I care?
Dot vas my shmall young baby.

Around my head dot leetle arm
Nas schpreezin me so nice and varm
Oh! my dhere never coom some harm,
To dot shmall leetle baby.

Dot vas me himself.

President Lincoln and the Office Seeker.

Lincoln's not a bad man, said Gen. Squash, though he sometimes attempt to palm off old Joe Miller as a new story, and make himself the hero of it. And as we are talking of him, I will tell you a story that he once told in my presence that will illustrate the matter. Said Lincoln to Seward—they are great friends and cronies, though Seward likes his glass and Lincoln does not—and there were eight or ten of us present, including Mrs. Lincoln—"I had a visit yesterday from old Ephraim Tight. What do you think he wanted?"

"A place, I suppose," answered Seward.

"Right," continued Lincoln. "He levelled a long speech right at me, as if it had been a revolver, and said it was all owing to his influence and exertions in his own state—Vermont or Rhode Island, I forget which—that I was elected President. "In fact, Mr. President," said he, "I made you."

"Well, I daresay you helped," said I, for I didn't want to offend him; "but at least a thousand other people have told me the very same thing. So I'm like the Universe, you see; for I have had many makers. But what can I do for you, Mr. Tight?"

"Well," said Mr. Tight, clearing his throat into the great presidential spittoon that has done service for a quarter of a century in the White House. "I'm glad you recognize my claims so far as to ask the question. I should like to have the Collectorship of Customs for the Port of New York."

"There were fifty thousands applicants for that," replied I, "and it was bespoken long before the election."

"Well, then, the Embassy to Paris," said Tight.

"Filled up, long ago," replied I; "there must have been at least forty thousand applicants for that."

"London will suit me equally well," said Tight, nothing abashed.

"Gone again," said I; "there were thirty thousand applicants, and there must have been twenty-nine thousand nine hundred and ninety-nine disappointed men, of whom two-thirds, perhaps, have learned to hate me after."

"Any foreign embassy will answer," said Tight, "I'm not particular. London would have done best, as I don't speak French; but as that is filled up, Berlin, Vienna, the Hague, Japan—anything you like."

"All gone, and no chance of a vacancy," said I.

"Well, then, suppose you give me a Post office?"

"All fell at present, and likely to remain full until a new President shall make a clearance of the whole lot."

"I don't much like a light-house," said Tight; "it's lonely work, and darnation ill-paid; but I'll rather take a light-house than nothing."

"Mr. Tight," said I, giving his hand a hard squeeze, so hard that I made him wince, "I admire your perseverance. 'Never say die,' is clearly your motto, and half a loaf is better than no bread, but I'm really very sorry to say that I have not even a light-house left for your acceptance."

"Well," said Tight, "all I can say is that it is cussed hard that I should have worked so long for you and made you President without getting the least reward for my trouble. At all events, you can loan me a hundred dollars?"

"Indeed I can't," replied I. "I wish somebody would loan me fifty, for I'm hard up, ain't I, Seward?" Seward winked.

"The country's going to the devil," said Tight; "and what's the good of fighting for your party, if your party won't fight for you? Perhaps, however, you've an old coat or an old pair of boots you can give me?"

"I think I can manage the boots," replied I; "but I've an uncommon large foot, as you may see, and they mightn't fit."

"Well, that's possible," said Tight, "and I think I'll take the coat."

And I sent him one to his hotel, and I heard that he immediately sold it for five dollars to the bar-tender, and spent the money in old Bourbon whiskey.—St. James's.

Five Minutes for Refreshments.

The Danbury News man says:—"When the train draws up at Stamford five minutes for refreshments, it is easy to distinguish the experienced traveller from the rest. He has already got out on the platform, and is either on the bottom step or close enough to it. Just as soon as the speed of the train becomes less than he can make, he spring off and dashes madly for the saloon door, through it and up to the counter, giving his order for coffee while moving, and snatching up the right article the first time. He knows just now how much time is required to make five minutes, and when it is expired he is out on the platform, picking his teeth, and talking about real estate. Alas, for the inexperienced traveller, such is not his record. He is inside the car when it stops, with twenty persons ahead of him. He jumps down on the platform in time to see the mass surging into the door, and then it strikes him that he may be too late, and under this inspiration he throws himself into the struggling gang. Unhappily he does not reach the table. He, in company with the other inexperienced travellers, forms the outside line, and blow their orders through the openings, and receive what is handed them with thankfulness and what dexterity they can muster. Such a man will perspire, and choke, and paw and jaw during the entire five minutes and in that time may get down two-thirds of a sandwich, one-third of a piece of a custard pie, and more or less of the coffee, and then get out of the door just in time to catch hold of the car rail, and be pulled on by the brakeman. And when he has reached his seat, and is scraping the rest of that pie from his boot, and drawing cold air into his throat to allay the pain of the scald, he will think up things about the keeper of that restaurant that would make the hair on a saw-horse stand on end."

Pond's Extract—by word of mouth the information of its merits has been carried everywhere.

"Amongst the live and progressive institutions of the day is Geo. P. Rowell & Co's Advertising Agency, No. 41 Park Row, New York. The establishment is so systematized, that their facilities are so ample, and the public is sure of being served in the most complete manner.—Boston Post.

Thousands of people are now carelessly allowing themselves to drift through the preliminary symptoms of consumption, under the fatal delusion that they are troubled with nothing but a "slight cold." How necessary is it, then, that a cold should be cured for from its incipiency, and every exertion used to get rid of it. "Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers" will stop the hacking cough in a few minutes and by their influence on the bronchial and pulmonary organs all fears of dangerous results will soon be dissipated—but they must be taken in time. Sold by all Druggists and country dealers. Price 25 cts. per box.

DR. WHEELER'S COMPOUND Elixir of Phosphates and Calisaya is the best Tonic in use, because it is the most physiological, being composed of ingredients absolutely essential to the development of the system. It speedily relieves indigestion, promoting a a vigorous appetite and healthy nutrition. All cases of general debility, arising from wasting diseases, such as Consumption, Scrofula, all diseases of the skin, diseases of the blood, prostration of the nervous system, caused by protracted mental exertion, anxiety, or over work, will derive immediate benefit from it, frequently beginning with the first dose. It is a delightful cordial to take, and its use may be protracted for an indefinite period without becoming repugnant to the patient.

Cure Your Horses.—It is to the interest of all who own horses to keep them in a healthy and sound condition; experience has proved 'Darley's Condition Powders and Arabian Heave Remedy' is the most efficacious, it has been used by thousands who will cheerfully confirm this statement. For Heaves, Coughs, Colds, and all diseases which affect the wind of horses it has no equal, nor is it equalled as a condition medicine; it purifies the blood, corrects and improves the appetite, and softens the skin; in fact, so great is the improvement in the condition and appearance of the animal as to have led many to doubt if it could be the same horse. Remember the name and see that the signature of Hurd & Co., is on each package. Northrop & Lyman, Newcastle, Ont., proprietors for Canada. Sold by all medicine dealers.

IMPORTANT CAUTION.—The wonderful success of Savory & Moore's Pancreatic Emulsion and Pancreatine in consumption, wasting, loss of the power of digestion and assimilation has firmly established these remedies in the estimation of the Medical Profession on both sides of the Atlantic. Imitations of them—made in U. States, Canada, and England—being in reality either saponaceous compounds or pomades, without a trace of the Pancreatic principle, are entirely useless. The efficacy of these preparations, made by Messrs. Savory & Moore from the first, under the direction of the Physician who introduced them, has been and can only be ensured by strict adherence to the original formulæ, and the medical profession recognize no other Pancreatic Emulsion and Pancreatine than those thus prepared, the purity and strength of which is guaranteed. See "Reports of the Experience and Opinions of Medical Men on the value of Savory & Moore's Pancreatic Emulsion and Pancreatine as remedies in Wasting Diseases." (Churchill & Sons, London), to be obtained of all the principal Chemists in the United States and Canada. SAVORY & MOORE, 143, New Bond Street, London, Chemists to the Queen, H.R.H. Prince of Wales.

ELECTRICITY.
