Osprey Council Make Many Appointments At First Session

DUG OUT FOX

Saturday's Owen Sound Sun-Times says:

Mr. Walter Akitt, residing near Flesherton pleaded guilty before Magistrate Spereman on Friday in Owen Sound to digging a fox out of its den on the farm of Mr. George Hannah, in Holland township, near Holland Centre. He was fined $10 and costs, as it is against the game laws to do this thing.

A Misconception

The "flu" must have been interfering with the ordinary smooth-running routine of the staff of the Goderich Signal for the editor of that paper, has some comments to offer about colds and fevers. Here they are: There is an old saying "Feed a cold and starve a fever," which is misinterpreted by nine out of every ten people who use it, and in these days of prevalent colds—"the grip," "flu," or what you will—it may be worth while to try to get a few more people to join the possible one tenth who given the right meaning to the adage. In more extended form it would go thus: "If you feed a cold you may have to starve a fever." Most people take it literally, however, as an injunction to treat a cold by feeding and to treat a fever by starving. Nobody misunderstands the precept, "Spare the rod and spoil the child," although it, too, must be rendered in the extended form, "If you spare the rod you will spoil the child," to give it its true meaning. Feeding a cold is the worst thing you could do with it, unless you want it to keep on growing and staying right with you until it develops into something worse. Contrariwise, the way to get rid of a cold is to starve it. Let up quite a bit on the meals, but drink plenty of water, not too cold. If this doesn't cure the cold, go to the doctor and he will tell you about the same thing and also to go to bed. That's a good thing, too, if you can stand it. We don't know whether this last paragraph is contrary to the constitution and bylaws of the medical fraternity or not—that is, the giving of free advice—but what is written is written. Our chief concern, however, is to vindicate an old and wise saying which is misunderstood, misconstrued, misinterpreted and generally mistreated.
