FEVERSHAM

In reply to Mr. Fred Hale's letter published in The Advance of May 24, re the finances of Feversham school. He asserts that the present school board had employed me as their publicity agent. Of course he knew that was all popycock on his part, as he was present at the meeting of the ratepayers of S. S. No. 7, Osprey, which the school board had called to appoint a trustee in the place of Mr. Black, who had resigned, and to consider the financing of our schools. He heard it all and knew that I had reported it just as the present trustees reported it to the ratepayers at that meeting. He heard it all, but never opened his mouth. Why does he accuse them of employing me as their publicity agent. He knew better and if he knew they were wrong, why did he not correct them and not throw a monkey wrench, as he says at them after the meeting. No sir, he never cheeped then, but writes a great long letter to The Advance keelhauling both your correspondent and the trustees. Well, the ratepayers got the trustee they wanted and the trustees appointed Mr. Harvey Pedlar their sec.-treas., or rather their sec.-treas. was appointed trustee by acclamation.

As to the $1600 he talks about, the school board has no account of it yet, but perhaps Mr. Hale had account of that in the part torn out of the cash book when he handed it over. If you have it there, hand it over, Fred, and save them hunting it. As to his taking the books and financing the schools, he never was any better financing anything than the men who have the job on their hands now and if he can do it, they sure can. Then he intimates that I questioned the honesty of the auditors, Mr. Long, Mr. Heitman and Mr. Francis. He knows that is bunk, too, for Mr. Francis and Mr. Heitman only had his accounts to audit from Jan. 1st, 1933. Then he says that I am bucking an institution designed to raise the standard of intelligence of our young people, what a pity, Fred, that you and I did not have the privilege of attending such an institution when you and I were young; how much more respond for them, independent of it is too late now for either of us. But say, was it not carelessness on your part to let your children tear out a part of the school cash book, which you claim they did, and also careless of you for not attending to business of the county grants to our schools and causing you and another trustee at the time a right to drive to Owen Sound. Had not Mr. Heitman, our Deputy-Reeve at the time, not helped you out you would have been out of luck, as the county council had to pass the estimate for your grant, but you had not sent in the request for it.

I could give you my reasons for not being in favor of the new school from the beginning, but will close by reminding Fred that I am expecting him to buy me the silk plug hat he bet me against a cigar that the ratepayers would not have to pay any of the 5,000 debentures of the new school as there is only five of the 15 year debenture paid yet.

Now, Fred, if you read anything in the Feversham items in any of the papers who print them that doesn't suit you don't blame any Company or Corporation for employing me to report for them. Just blame me. The correspondence will be continued so long as the papers want me to correspond for them, independent of whether you like the items or not. One thing I am sorry for though is that the correspondents to the papers don't get so well paid as you did when you were sec.-treas. up to the last part of your service. Before that you received $50.00 per year for your services and a number of sec.-treasurers handled the business before you for the public school and the first and second forms of the continuation school for $15.00 per year. I, as well as others, got $15.00 yearly salary for nine years, three terms, and other sec.-treasurers I can name got the same amount. No wonder you felt sore when you lost it. Perhaps I would too, but I would not show it the way you have, Fred. Thanking you for space in your valuable paper, Mr. Editor, I am as ever your

ASCENSION DAY SERVICE HELD AT DUNDALK

A very inspiring and impressive Ascension Day service was held in St. James Anglican church, Dundalk, on Thursday, May 25th, at 8 p.m. To the majestic words of hymn 183, "O Christ, Thou hast ascended," the surpliced procession wended its way up the main aisle of the church in the following order: Christ church, Markdale choir; St. James church, Dundalk choir; St. Paul's church, Shelburne choir; St. Paul's church, Melancthon choir; the Lay-Readers and Revs. Pherrill, Oldham and Hurford R. D.

The first section of the service of evening prayer was taken by Rev. M. F. Oldham. The proper Psalms 24, 47, 108 for Ascension Day were sung by the choirs. Rev. R. P. D. Hurford read the two lessons, the 2nd chapter of Kings and the first chapter of Acts of Apostles. The chants used were the Cantate Domino and Devs Misereatur. Rev. C. O. Pherrill took the prayers. The Old State Prayers were used after singing the hymn 185, "Holy Ghost Illuminator" and the National Anthem. The hymn before the sermon was No. 179, "Hail the day that sees Him Rise." The Rural Dean, Rev. R. P. D. Hurford, delivered an excellent Ascension Day sermon on St. John 16: 7, "It is expedient for you that I go away." He dealt in full with the Ascension Day teaching and its great bearing on all Christian believers. He dealt with our Lord's heavenly work and the glory thereof. The Markdale choir under the direction of Miss Madge Lucas rendered a fine Ascension Day anthem while the offertory was taken. Rev. C. O. Pherrill said the closing prayers and the choirs marched out of the church singing hymn 178, "O Lord Most High Eternal King." Mrs. J. Lyons, organist of St. James church, Dundalk, was in charge of the music. There were over 40 choristers and the church was well filled for the occasion. Members were present from the various churches in the southern section of the Deanery. The service was a very noteworthy one and will be long remembered by those present. It was the first of its kind ever attempted in this section of the county and was most successful. It was a splendid way to mark the 1900th anniversary of our Lord's Ascension, as more interest should be taken in this noteworthy day.

Sells Share In Reserve

Mr. John Gardiner, veteran hardware merchant here, has sold his share in the Rowbotham Fishing Reserve, Melancthon township, to Mr. R. W. Brett of Shelburne. We understand the price was in the neighborhood of $2300, and that Mr. Gardiner will have the privilege of indulging in his favorite hobby once a week during his lifetime. Needless to remark, in the past forty-five years in which he has fished at the reserve, Mr. Gardiner has derived a great deal of pleasure therefrom, and he is recognized as one of the best fly fishermen in this part of Ontario. He is the last of the original members to sell his share in the reserve. Mr. Brett now owns three shares in the reserve and Mr. Little, Guelph, one.—Dundalk Herald.

STAY IN YOUR CAR

If you are driving along the highway when an electrical storm comes up, and you seek a nice place to stay until the storm passes, just take the advice of experts and stick right in the driver's seat.

The Bureau of Standards tells us that automobiles are practically immune to lightning despite the fact that rubber tires and the car as a whole becomes very wet during a storm.

Persons driving within a conducting enclosure are fairly safe against lightning, and the auto body, although enclosed to a considerable extent by glass, approaches this condition.

The average motorist is probably safer in his car during an electrical storm than in his home. Come to think about it there are mighty few cases on record of autos being struck by lightning. And this is rather remarkable when you stop to consider the hundreds of thousands of cars out in electrical storms, particularly in our larger cities.

Pears are somewhat different to other fruit in so far that they do not develop their highest quality if allowed to ripen on the tree. For example, a William pear that has a tinge of color on it, wrapped in paper and placed in a drawer for a few days, will ripen in such a way as to give a flavor that is highly desirable.
