Hens Speeding Up Production

Technocracy has reached the henroosts in the Maritimes. At Dalhousie, New Brunswick, a hen which recently branched out into quantity production has taken to laying two-yolked and four-yolked eggs and as a result has got her barnyard associates all guessing. The four-yolked egg weighed exactly half a pound, was three and seven-eighths of an inch long and eight inches in circumference. Hearing of the feat of the New Brunswick hen, a bantam in Truro, Nova Scotia, throught she would go one better. At noon, on examination her nest was empty. Three and a half hours later the bantam was sitting on two eggs and while the surprised attendant was staring at the two eggs the hen produced a third. All three eggs were full size and normal in every way.

IN MEMORIAM

ENGLISH — In loving memory of my dear twin brother, Harry English, who died three years ago, August 28, 1930.

Oh, if I could hear his voice once more
And see his loving smile
The one that my heart still cheers
But I must wait a while,
Someday I'll clasp his loving hand
And never say farewell.
