SIX IN ONE BATHING SUIT

Six Swinton Park boys wanted to go in swimming but they had only one bathing suit among them and there were ladies on the river bank nearby. The boys solved this difficulty by going into the water one at a time, then throwing the suit back to the waiting list. In this way all reached the protecting cover of the water and swam to their heart's content. It was quite an ingenious way of getting into the water under the circumstances.—Mt. Forest Confederate

Barber: "Haven't I shaved you before, sir?"

FATIGUE

Although there are many contributing factors to inefficiency, there is none more potent than the failure of individuals to live within the boundaries of natural laws. This is particularly true as regards failure to secure adequate rest.

The human body stands only a certain amount of abuse. It says "Thus far you may go, but no further." Unless rest is obtained and the products of fatigue got rid of, there is danger ahead. There is a limited reserve beyond which it is injurious to go if trouble is to be avoided. This margin of safety varies with each individual. It is well-known that what one person can accomplish with ease is apt to cause physical discomfort in another. One individual is able to carry on with but little rest or sleep for a period without obvious ill effect on either appearance or efficiency, while another so deprived shows the characteristic drawn and tired look, and approaches the days' work mentally dulled and physically fatigued.

Apart from the lowering of the accepted standards of efficiency, it is also well-established that many injuries and accidents are directly attributable to fatigue. In former days, when industries were less carefully supervised and the industrial worker lacked the guidance of the plant physician, it was noteworthy that the majority of accidents occurred at a time of day when fatigue was at a maximum. A brief rest from a monotonous task and the removal of conditions which contributed to fatigue resulted in a marked reduction in the number of accidents.

Accidents due to fatigue are, however, not confined to the workshop or factory. The tired motorist not only jeopardizes his own life but also the lives of other motorists and those of the people on the road.

With increase in years, the capacity for physical activity is lessened. This is Nature's reminder that, with age, we tire more readily as a result of physical effort. The hill that once was climbed with ease is now approached with difficulty and the ascent causes shortness of breath. Over-fatigue should naturally lead to an investigation into its cause.

A periodic health examination will determine between what is normal for age and what the beginning of disease.

Feversham Won From Kimberley

One of the best football games of the season was played at Feversham last Saturday night when Kimberley Valley lost 1-0 to the Feversham Maple Leafs when they met in an exhibition game.

The play was fast from the start but the Maple Leafs heavy kicking and their fast forwards gave them a large margin of the game. There was no score in the first period and only luck saved the Kimberley goal on half a dozen occasions as Feversham carried the play to the Valley boys in hard well-planned rushes. In the first few minutes of the last period Henderson scored for Feversham in a hard swift shot. Kimberley tried to rally but the heavy kicking of the Feversham defence and the fast combination of their forwards completely disorganized any of their plays.

We understand this is Kimberleys first real trimming this year, but while Feversham played on their goal all the time Kimberley only made two rushes past the Feversham half backs. Feversham Maple Leafs have improved wonderfully this summer and having all young players, should in the future do well in this popular sport. Interest in football is growing fast as the crowd of fans for both teams clearly showed on Saturday night.

BANDING OF BIRDS USEFUL IN RESEARCH

The banding of young birds, which is carried on as a joint effort by the governments of Canada and the United States under the provisions of the Migratory Birds Convention is resulting in the compilation of valuable data.

Last fall a resident of Bradore Bay in north-eastern Quebec, shot a drake pintail which bore a small aluminum band on one of its wings. This band was stamped with a Danish name and address which he sent to a member of the migratory bird staff of the Department of the Interior Ottawa, Ont. An investigation by that department proved that the bird had been banded as a duckling on June 30, 1930, in Aldaldal, northern Iceland.

In its investigations the government is being assisted by all major organizations interested in game protection, among the most active being the Fish and Game Department of the Canadian National Railways which asks all hunters and tourists finding banded birds to report a description of the band to the Department of the Interior, Ottawa.

Dundalk Ties Kimberley

Dundalk eliminated Vandeleur from a play-off position in the Centre Grey League on Thursday afternoon last at Vandeleur by the score of 15 to 9. Dundalk scored in only three innings, but they made these count with five runs in the first, six runs in the fourth and four in the eighth. Vandeleur kept pecking away at Mountain, the Dundalk hurler and in only three innings failed to shove a run over. Boland started for Vandeleur but he immediately vacated the mound to Reg. Hutton. Douglas finished the last inning for Dundalk.

Dundalk is now in a tie with Kimberley for League leadership, but a postponed game between these two clubs will be played at Kimberley this Thursday afternoon. Either of these two teams will meet Flesherton in the semi-finals to decide who will play for the final League championship games.

Flesherton has won their last four League fixtures and are playing good baseball. They should make either Dundalk or Kimberley step to defeat them. It is likely that the first game in the play-off series will be held on Thursday of next week.

While Kimberley defeated Dundalk on the latter's grounds it is expected that the Dundalk team will turn the tables and take first place. The game should be a real one and no doubt a large crowd of fans will be on hand.
