BONINE'S TRIAL BEGINS.

A BEAUTIFUL WOMAN ACCUSED OF MURDER.

Her Trial Now on at Washington—A History of the Celebrated Case—Wanted to Carry Her Secret to Her Grave.

Washington, D.C., Nov. 12.—Mrs. Lola Ida Henry Bonine, the beautiful woman accused of the murder of James Seymour Ayres, jr., was placed on trial in the district court to-day.

Mrs. Bonine has been in jail ever since the arrest following her confession, efforts to obtain her release by writ of habeas corpus having failed. She professes innocence of any intention to kill Ayres, but the police declare they have a strong case against her. Her husband and friends are standing by her and have provided eminent legal counsel to conduct her defense.

Young Ayres, a Michigan clerk in the census office, was found dead in his room at the Kenmore house, May 16th, with three bullets in his body. The imprint of a bloody hand on the wall near a window and a trail of crimson leading to the fire escape were the only clews for the police to follow. Several women living in the hotel were under suspicion because of social jealousies, but Mrs. Bonine cleared them of blame by confessing a week after the murder that she was the mysterious figure in white that had been seen by neighbors climbing down the fire escape several hours before the discovery of the tragedy.

"For the honor of my boys," she said, to explain why she had so successfully baffled the detectives, who had racked her with questions, "I wanted to carry my secret to the grave."

Finding, however, that detection was certain, she made a statement of the shooting. Mr. Ayres knocked at her door late at night, she said, complaining of a severe headache.

"I refused to let him in my room," she continued. "He then attempted to put his arm around me, I resented this act."

He repeated the attempt, she said, but on his urgent entreaty, she consented to get some quinine and take it to his room.

"Before going to his room," she continued, "I dressed myself completely. I went to his door, which he at once opened. I stepped into the room, and Ayres stepped from behind the door, and standing between myself and the door bolted it. He carried a pistol in his right hand, but this I did not see until after the door was locked and he stepped toward me. Then I turned toward the window, but before I had taken two steps Ayres caught me, put his arm around my waist, and pointed the pistol with his right hand. I grabbed the pistol with my right hand, and the next thing I knew I felt his arm about my neck and heard shots. Somehow, I don't exactly know, I reached the window and got out on the fire escape. There were red stains on my hands and on my wrapper, but I paid no attention to this. I went down the fire escape to the parlor window and went back upstairs to my room."

Knew All About it.

St. Thomas Journal.

In the course of a sermon Rev. Dr. Young, of the First Methodist church, used as an illustration the fact that once on a trip on a steamer from Boston to Portland he had gone down on the main deck and there he found a couple of sleek looking fellows, with a couple of young men, a pile of gold before them, the latter evidently taking their first lesson in gambling from the former. He watched for a few minutes and heard such expressions as "I pass," "I'll play it alone," "What's trump." Many in the congregation began to smile, when the doctor remarked with that dry humor peculiar to him, "I am glad I am speaking to a congregation that understands what I am talking about."

Look For Leonids This Week.

Will the great Leonid swarm, expected last year and the year before, come this year? For two years past all devotees of astronomy, professional and amateur, have had their hopes followed by disappointment, as they watched during the nights of Nov. 13th, 14th and 15th, for the coming of the shooting stars known to the science. Will this year witness another and a final disappointment? Certain astronomers believe not; they think that the Leonids will appear this month in all their original splendor.

THE ANNUAL MEETING.

Home For Friendless Women And Infants.

A large and enthusiastic meeting of the home for friendless women and infants was held in the board rooms, Union street, on Thursday. The reports may be thus summarised:

The year just ended has been in many ways most encouraging, and while we have had disappointments and worries, our work has been singularly blessed. Our workers and sympathizers have greatly increased, and we feel confident that, as our friends know more plainly what we have been able to accomplish, their helping hands and hearts will be further extended. This year we have been most fortunate in securing good homes for six children. We have heard from all parties, and in every case the foster parents are delighted with the children. There are applications for four more on our books; number of inmates on October 1st, 1900, twenty-three, seventeen of these being infants; admitted during the year, thirty-five, twenty-seven being infants, under three years of age, and eight adults, some of whom are in situations and earning good wages, while the others returned to their homes. On October 1st, just past, the opening of a new year, there were twenty in the home, fourteen being infants, with four ready for adoption in a couple of months.

Income, 1900	$1,511.36
Disbursements	1,730.07
Deficit	$218.71

Miss Bell, the superintendent, and Miss Germain, her assistant, have been untiring in their work, and the home is in every way most satisfactory. It is greatly owing to Miss Germain's work and influence that we have secured so many good homes this last year for the children. Our medical attendant, Dr. Bell, still continues his kind, gratuitous services, for which we are truly grateful. Dr. Edward Watson, with Dr. Bell's permission, performed an operation on the eyes of a little girl, which was so very successful that we are able to put the child in a good home for adoption.

We are glad to welcome back as a visitor our oldest friend, Miss Inkster, and very much regret that Miss Van Straubenzee's visits, which were fraught with so much good to some of the inmates, have for the past few months been interrupted. Mrs. McCallum still holds her Monday night bible class. The inmates are allowed to attend their own churches for divine services, and find it has a most beneficial effect, and in no way has our trust been imposed upon. In thanking all our friends for generous assistance and donations, we particularly wish to mention John Gleason for ice, J. H. Breck for Auer light, and Joseph Jamieson for repairing gas fixtures.

The Superintendent's Report.

"As I listened the other day to a detailed account of the beginning of this work, it was with a feeling of great admiration for those ladies who notwithstanding such opposition have carried on the work for so long, and surely were it not worthy for the Master it would have been crushed long ago. We owe much of our happiness to the influence of our prayer meetings. I would like especially to emphasize the work of Miss Straubenzee and Miss Inkster. They have been especially instrumental in influencing the girls; through them two have taken a stand for the Master. Of course we cannot expect great results, when we take into consideration the lives of some of these girls before coming here, but if through our work even one soul is saved, surely it is worth working for. It is my earnest prayer, and in this I ask every member of the committee to join me that not one of these girls leave the home without giving heart and life to Him who alone can keep in the hour of temptation. I cannot speak too highly of the help Miss Germain has been to me, and of her devotion to the children. I cannot stop without thanking all the ladies of the committee for their kindness to Miss Germain and myself."

WHEN GERMANY FIGHTS.

BARON TALKS OF CONFLICT WITH ENGLAND.

Says 100,000 Men Could be Landed on the English Coast in About Thirty Hours—Quick Naval Action Might Gain Temporary Success.

Berlin, Nov. 11.—Considerable attention is attracted here by a pamphlet just published by baron von Edelsheim, an officer in the chief general staff of the German army, in which he declares that Germany could throw 100,000 men on the English coast within a very short time. The baron put forward his statement as a matter of absolute certainty, and it is considered somewhat curious that he is permitted by his government to publish it. He also discusses the possibility of landing troops in Russia and France and proceeds to contemplate the hypothesis of a war between Germany and the United States.

He starts from the assumption that Germany must one day be involved in a conflict because the growth of her traffic and commerce is a source of danger to England. He holds the opinion that Germany might hope to secure some success at sea shortly after hostilities began as the German navy would start mobilization first, but before long England would be able to set such powerful naval forces in action that Germany would be reduced to defensive tactics in which success could not be reckoned upon. His paper proceeds:

"England's weakness is our strength. The land forces of the English army correspond neither in strength nor in quality with her position as a great power. England is convinced that every hostile invasion can be prevented by her fleet, but this conviction is not by any means well founded. Even if England after a time could set in motion great naval forces, those which would be ready at the beginning are not so overwhelming that an opponent essentially weaker at sea, who has everything ready, may not have a chance of scoring a temporary success. Germany must throw part of her land forces on the English coast and thus bring the conflict to an issue on land, where German troops are much superior to English."

After summing up the shortcomings of England's land forces the baron declares that only her present standing army and regular reserve can be counted on in case of sudden invasion, as the others would take a considerable time to mobilize. He observes:

"We must also take account of their slight fighting value compared with well trained German troops. The only troops ready in England for action are three divisions of the east army corps, about two divisions of the second and a combined division of the third, together with three cavalry brigades. The strength of an English division on a war footing is only 10,000 men, while a similar German division numbers about 16,000 men. Germany can transport six infantry divisions, or one cavalry brigade and five infantry divisions to England in a very short time. How the operation could be carried out must not, of course, be explained here. But this can be said when it can be done within little more than thirty hours in favorable weather from German harbors in the North sea. Large tracts of the English coast furnish good landing places for troops, and the country itself has so many resources that an invading army could live on them for a long time. On the other hand the island is not large enough to allow English troops to destroy a once victorious hostile army. It is unlikely that such a war would last very long and considerable reinforcements would, therefore, not be needed."

MALT BREAKFAST FOOD

Is a Boon To Dyspeptics.

The weak, erratic stomach of the dyspeptic demands nourishment that can be retained and that affords strength. Malt Breakfast Food is the only grain food that perfectly fills the bill, because it agrees with the weakest stomach and is easily assimilated and ready to be taken up by the natural process of absorption.

Malt Breakfast Food gruel is acknowledged to be the most refreshing and appetizing dish for the poor suffering dyspeptic. Its use for a few days will tone and strengthen the stomach and digestive organs, after which the patient may commence with the regular Malt Breakfast Food porridge, which will soon banish all trouble and establish a healthy and natural appetite.

The best physicians instead of prescribing medicines, are strongly advocating the use of Malt Breakfast Food for impaired digestion. If your stomach is weak, try Malt Breakfast Food for a week; results will be so pleasing you will never give it up. Grocers everywhere.

Had a Painful Operation.

An Extreme Case of Nervousness and Female Weakness—Was Pale and Weak and Fainted Often—Doctors Failed to Help Her.

There is scarcely a limit to the sufferings which women endure when their nervous systems become run down and give way beneath the burdens which they are forced to bear. There are ills peculiar to women, which in nine cases out of ten are the result of a low state of vitality and a depletion of nerve force. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food cures women of their ills, irregularities and weaknesses by thoroughly restoring the vigor of the nerves.

Mrs. BENJ. HATFIELD.

Every woman will read with interest the following letter from a lady who has been cured of a serious illness by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. She says the testimonials she reads are not half strong enough.

Mrs. Benjamin Hatfield, Hillyard Street, St. John, N.B., writes:—"For three years I was a sufferer from extreme nervousness and female weakness; I was pale and weak, had no appetite, and would sometimes faint two or three times a day. I had three miscarriages, and underwent a very painful operation. For seven weeks I was under the doctor's care, but he seemed unable to help me. Despairing of recovery, I took the advice of a friend, who told me that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food would build me up and make me strong and well again. After four months' use of this preparation I found myself greatly improved, but continued the treatment for one year, using in all sixteen boxes. I have been blessed with a young daughter now, and believe that I am as strong and well as ever in my life. As a result, I cannot say too much in favor of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. It has performed a complete and thorough cure in my case, and I am healthier and fleshier than I have been for years. The testimonials I see are not half strong enough. I tell my friends and neighbors about it, and many of them join me in pronouncing Dr. Chase's Nerve Food the most effective restorative obtainable. Desiring that other sufferers may benefit by my happy experience with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, I willingly give you permission to use this testimonial."

is an up-to-date, scientific preparation of most extraordinary merit. It has proven itself the most effective nerve restorative of the age. It is certain to benefit everyone who uses it, because it forms new red corpuscles in the blood and creates new nerve force. It is especially efficacious in the cures of female ills and weaknesses.

There Was No Strike.

Alderman McLeod, contractor for the new opera house, seen by a Whig reporter, denied that there had been any strike among the masons at work on the opera house. Some time ago, Mr. McLeod explained, the rate of wage had been raised from $3 a day to $3.50. Now that the work is nearly done, he thought it advisable to go back to the old wage. The men, with the exception of two, arranged to work hereafter at $3, if given $3.50 till the opera house was completed. This was agreed to and there was no trouble over it.

He Will Recover.

Willis C. Frontz, the student of Queen's university, who, in a fit of insanity, attempted to commit suicide at Park Grove, N.W.T., where he was teaching, has been taken to the Protestant hospital at Ottawa, where he is being attended by Dr. Birkett. The doctor thinks the young man, if confined in an asylum for a few weeks, will recover.
