THE AFFAIRS OF THE HOUR

HERE IT IS IN SHORT ORDER FOR WHIG READERS.

Telegraphic Tidings From all Parts of the Globe Condensed and Assorted For Easy Reading.

Henri Rochefort, editor of L'Intransigeant, has fought more than 200 duels.

Senator Hoar will be 75 when his term in the United States senate expires in 1901.

Lord Rosebery recently said that when wealth reached a certain point it ceased to give pleasure.

Dr. Coulden, the blind chaplain of the United States house of representatives, shaves himself. He has six razors.

Richard Mansfield is about 42 years old. He was employed in a Boston dry goods store before he went on the stage.

Representative Mercer of Nebraska is a devotee to euchre and very seldom misses playing a game every evening of his life.

The United States consul at Vladivostok, Russia, is Richard T. Greener of New York city, a negro and a graduate of Harvard.

Congressman Champ Clark of Missouri is authority for the announcement that he will be a candidate for the senate to succeed Senator Vest.

Senator Cockrell is exceedingly fond of apples and is never so happy as when he can secure one of the juicy pippins for which his state is famous.

Harry N. Pillsbury, the chess champion, says that he learned the game with great difficulty, and for some time any great amount of playing always resulted in severe headaches.

Congressman Cousins is one of Iowa's most famous fishermen. He spends every summer by a lake abounding in black bass and goes fishing twice a day—at sunrise and at sunset.

Senator Vest is very nearsighted, but frequently forgets to bring his glasses to the senate chamber, and consequently in writing sits curled around his desk with his nose almost touching the paper.

Owing to his multitudinous agencies in all parts of the world Lord Rothschild knows of the most important events often before any government and even before the most enterprising newspapers.

The Duke of Newcastle, one of England's richest peers, owns a London newspaper and writes for it continually. He is a stanch believer in the press and in journalistic circles is a great favorite.

Governor Stanley of Kansas is an expert penman and does most of his own letter writing. He uses either hand with equal ease, and his signature is identical whether the pen is held in his left hand or his right.

Captain Brinkley, the leading authority on all things Japanese, has sustained a heavy loss through fire. The whole of his library, his works of art and manuscripts of more than 20 years' collection have been entirely destroyed.

James Oliver, who is probably the richest man in Indiana, laid the foundation of his fortune by saving from his salary of 50 cents a week as a farmer's "chore boy" enough to buy a house and lot on the installment plan and then selling it at a profit.

BEE BUZZES.

To obtain the greatest amount of honey swarming must be controlled.

All danger of bees absconding may be prevented by clipping the queen's wings.

Desirable results in honey production cannot be obtained by allowing too much increase.

Dividing may be continued safely as long as the honey flow lasts, and if afterward more increase is desired it may be secured by feeding.

Much success is obtained in securing straight combs by the use of foundations, either by using full sheets or even starters of the same.

The first thing necessary after hiving a swarm of bees in a frame hive is to adjust the frames to their proper places. One and a half inches is the proper distance.

Combs in which bees have died should be put in a hive of bees as they are, and the bees will clean them up readily and thoroughly in a short time. Empty combs are too valuable to be thrown away.

The wiring of frames and the imbedding of the foundation undoubtedly make the most substantial job. The wire running through the base of the comb does it no perceptible injury, while such frames will stand shipment better than otherwise.—St. Louis Republic.

THE WRITERS.

The late R. D. Blackmore, author of "Lorna Doone," was a famous chess player, and his name appeared in the list of champions in many a match.

Frank L. Stanton, the newspaper poet, began earning his living when most boys begin going to school by serving as office boy for Joel Chandler Harris on the Savannah News.

William Dean Howells, the novelist, does all his own writing. He has little faith in the typewriter at first hand, but all his manuscript is carefully copied out by one of these machines before it goes to the publisher. The original manuscript Mr. Howells keeps himself.

The late Stephen Crane was never remarkable for his attention to textbooks and lectures at Lafayette college. On the contrary, the Center square of Easton was his favorite post. He would stand there for hours alone and idle except for the continuous smoking of cigarettes.

POPULAR SCIENCE.

Winter suspends the activity of certain microbes, but does not destroy their life.

All material substances have weight. Even hydrogen, the lightest known gas, has weight.

The number of waves required to produce the sensation of red as they break upon the eye must be 39,000 in an inch and 447,000,000,000,000 in a second.

If the whole envelope of air were the same in character, it would reach only about five miles above the earth; but, as it becomes rarefied as we ascend, it probably extends to a height of 80 or 90 miles.

POLITICAL QUIPS.

The chief difference between bossism and peerless leadership is that the boss always belongs to the other party.—Detroit News.

In politics we often find the round peg crawling out of the square hole, while the square peg is left in the hole simply through being square.—Detroit Journal.

With nine presidential tickets in the field the average voter ought to be able to pick out something that will harmonize with his complexion.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

KRUGER COINS DEAR.

Lord Roberts Gives "Tommy Atkins" His Choice—He Takes Boer Bullion.

Lord Roberts is giving his troops the option of being paid in British or "Kruger" sovereigns.

Thrifty "Tommies" are taking the latter coins, and sending them home to their relatives, who are disposing of them at a considerable profit.

The soldiers generally are procuring as many "Krugers" as possible, for the word has gone round the camps that they will be worth twice their face value in England.

The statement is not incorrect, and during the past few days a number of "Krugers" sovereigns have been sold privately for £2 and £3 each.

A Daily Mail representative yesterday interviewed a leading London jeweler on the subject of these coins, and ascertained their present prices.

Kruger pennies are being sold at the large figure of from 7s 6d to 10s., the nimble three-penny bit of the Transvaal fetches 3s 6d., and a like sum is giving for the Transvaal sixpence.

The larger South African Republican coins are not bringing such large prices. You can get a shilling for 2s 6d., a florin for 3s, a half-crown for 3s 6d., a half-sovereign for 15s, and a sovereign for 30s.

Questioned as to the remarkably high figures paid for the smaller Kruger coins, the jeweler stated that they were due to the scarcity of these coins in London.—London Mail.

The Way She Managed It.

He was a timid young man, but she swung upon his arm with the ease and grace of a new gate on greased hinges. He tried to think of something to say, for a lull in the conversation was to him as picking a bool with a dull pin. Finally, he made the same remark that every bashful lover since Adam has made under similar circumstances, to wit:

"It's a nice evening."

She said: "Yes, it is truly delightful, but then I think the company one may chance to be in has a great deal to do with the atmosphere."

He threw his eye up along the gable end of the market house and said he'd bet there would be many a good steak and soup bone sold in "that buildin'."

She said she had no doubt but there would be, and went on to remark that it would be a nice thing for newly-married people to get their marketing at a newly-finished market house. Then after a pause she told him of the funniest dream she had the night previous — she dreamed somebody had proposed to her!

He replied that he believed that dreams were nearly always caused by eating too much supper, but he hoped hers would come true, providing it was himself that did the proposin'. This took her so completely by surprise that she said he's have to give her a week's time to think about it. And the young man is now undergoing all the agonies of suspense, fearing his forwardness has lost him a bride.

A Bird's Awning.

A contributor to The American Sportsman tells an interesting story of a humming bird. "In front of a window where I worked last summer," he says, "was a butternut tree. A humming bird built her nest on a limb that grew near the window, and we had an opportunity to watch her closely. In fact, we could look right into the nest. One day when there was a heavy shower coming up we thought we would see if she covered her young during the rain.

"Well, when the first drops fell she came and took in her bill one of two or three large leaves growing close by and laid this leaf over the nest so as to completely cover it; then she flew away. On examining the leaf we found a whole in it, and in the side of the nest was a small stick that the leaf was fastened to or hooked upon. After the storm was over the olil bird came back and unhooked the leaf, and the nest was perfectly dry."

Bananas Are Wholesome.

Banana-lovers will be delighted to know that their favorite fruit contains 72 per cent. of water, 2.14 per cent. of nitrogenous matter and 22 per cent. of saccharine substances. It is the 22 per cent. of "sweets" in the banana which makes it a nutritious food. A Mexican chemist has been comparing bananas with wheat and potatoes for food, and has arrived at the conclusion that for the same space and under the same conditions of cultivation the production of bananas is 40 times that of potatoes and 100 times that of wheat. He has figured out that an area of land which will raise enough wheat to feed six men will produce enough bananas to feed 150 men.

How to Clean Oil Paintings.

Artists sometimes use a raw potato for this purpose. Cut off the end of the potato and rub the painting very gently with the cut end. As fast as the potato becomes soiled cut off a thin slice and continue to use it until the whole surface is clean. Another method is to rub the soiled surface with the finger wet in warm water. If the dirt is very hard and old use oil instead of water. Let it rest for a few hours so that the dirt may be softened, then wash off with a sponge and tepid suds.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Goldfish in Glass Bowls.

A scientific man says there is cruelty in the keeping of goldfish. Half of such captives die from sheer want of rest. As fish have eyes so formed that they cannot endure the light, in a glass vessel they are in an entirely wrong place, as is evident from the way in which they dash about and go round and round until fairly worn out.

He Admitted It.

"A man," she said, "never knows when he is well off."

"True," he replied, "and it's a mighty fortunate thing for women who do not care to be old maids that they don't."—Chicago Post.

There are ninety-two firms in Amsterdam registered as diamond cutters. In one 350 to 400 workmen are constantly employed.

Dr. Hett, of Watertown, N.Y., is in the city on a visit. His many friends were pleased to see him.

WIT AND HUMOR.

The Westerner's Tale.

In Arkansas along the road I stopped my horse and spied
An old gray haired man, who sat mid ruins on ev'ry side.
It looked as if a cyclone had pamed o'er this lonely trail,
And so I asked the man, and thus he told to me his tale:

"No, stranger, 'twan't a cyclone that wiped out this little town.
One day a chap named 'Burly' Meade blowed in an settled down
Here in this place an started up a whisky joint, an that
Was 'g'inst the doctrines of the town, an so we told him flat.

"We also told him easy if he didn't go, some night
His place would journey skyward by the route of dynamite;
But, stranger, how he fooled us, an he turned us mighty pale
When next day he hung a sign out, 'Nitroglycerin For Sale!'

"Well, we knew in jist a minute that to blow him up 'ud be
To also blow ourselves into the realms of mystery,
An he'd been runnin yet, would this here 'Burly' Meade,
If there hadn't been a feller in the town what couldn't read!"

It Seldom Is, at All Events.

An Atchison girl fell into the lake recently while out boating. She was afraid her mother would scold and explained her wet garments when she got home by saying that she went in swimming and was so modest she wore all her clothes in the water. The explanation was entirely satisfactory. Modesty can't be overdone.

A Refusal.

HE.

Since this was what you meant to say,
I wish that I had never spoken!
But yet, whene'er you looked my way,
Though this was what you meant to say,
Your blue eyes told me, day by day
(I thought) that silence might be broken,
And this was what you meant to say!
I wish that I had never spoken!

SHE.

And dare you venture to accuse me
Of turning love into a jest?
I own you did perhaps amuse me,
But * * * dare you venture to accuse me?
'Tis not your heart that grieves to lose me,
'Tis wounded vanity at best.
Then dare you venture to accuse me
Of turning love into a jest?

—Pall Mall Gazette.

One of the First.

"Yes, he is one of our first citizens."

"He doesn't look it. I should judge from his appearance that he is a very ordinary person."

"He is so far as that is concerned, but his name is Abner Aarons, and it's mighty seldom that anybody comes before him in the directory."

His Love.

I love my love in the morning,
For she, like the morn, is fair—
That is to say,
Late in the day,
When she has crimped her hair.

I love my love in the morning,
I love my love at noon,
For she's sublime
At luncheon time,
If I don't get home too soon.

I love my love in the morning,
I love my love at eve,
Unless she's cross
And wants to boss,
And then I want to leave!

Yellow.

The color that we all dislike
Is yellow;
The Boxer with a head on pike
Is yellow;
The dragon blots a yellow plain,
Each road is but a yellow lane,
All China seems one mighty stain
Of yellow.

The banner each sensation flies
Is yellow;
The tint of all the glowing lies
Is yellow;
For each is penned in yellow ink
By scribes who through buff glasses blink,
And all the crooked thoughts they think
Are yellow.

His Colors.

Mrs. Krimsen—The fact of John's having blue eyes and red hair makes it so hard for us to decide.

Mrs. Azures—So hard to decide what?

Mrs. Krimsen—Whether to send him to Yale or to Harvard.

Excelsior.

The shades of night were trotted out,
Though worked almost to death, no doubt;
The parodist some stunt quite new
Has thought, it seems, to make them do,
Excelsior!

A Polite Conductor.

An Essay on Man.

Man is the martyr of his deeds;
The gods abuse their powers.
He spades the garden, fights the weeds,
And woman plucks the flowers.

His Boast.

"Yes, he boasts that he has lived nearly 70 years without ever having been inside of a bank."

"What is he, a bank director?"

Recognition.

"I'm sure I must have met you,"
She said and looked me o'er.
"Oh, yes, we were engaged last year
And also once before!"

One Man's Theory.

Smith—After all, what would we do without doctors?

Brown—Patronize drug stores less, I imagine.—Chicago News.

A Drawback.

Full oft originality
Makes people shrug and smile,
For it must naturally be
A trifle out of style.

BEES KILL A HORSE.

Reward for Killing Two Man-Eating Lions—Married Men Barred.

A Northumberland, Eng., farmer's horse died from bee stings. The farmer was carrying several hives in a cart, when they were upset. The bees swarmed on the horse and killed him.

A postman named Alfred Storey has been fined £2 and costs at Newcastle-on-Tyne Police Court for not exercising care and diligence in delivering letters. When apprehended a bundle of 45 undelivered letters was found on him.

"Big Ben," the great clock at Westminster, has gone wrong. The clock will be stopped for three weeks. London robbed of the famous Westminster chimes for this long time is indeed a bereavement.

A reward of £100 has been offered at Kima, British East Africa, to anyone who kills the two man-eating lions which have been terrorizing the district for some time past. No married men are allowed to try for the reward.

Don't Give Brandy.

The moral effect of early acquaintance with scientific truth is illustrated by a little story which the Rev. Dr. Plumb tells in The Boston Transcript:

A millionaire brewer, a Senator in another State, said to Mrs. Hunt, "I shall vote for your bill. I have sold out my brewery, and am clean from the whole business. Let me tell you what occurred at my table. A guest was taken dangerously ill at dinner—insensible—and there was a call for brandy to restore him. My little boy at once exclaimed, 'No, that is just what he don't need! It will paralyze the nerves and muscles of the blood-vessels so they will not send back the blood to the heart.'

"When the liquor was poured out to give the man, the lad insisted on pushing it back.

"'You will kill him; he has too much blood in his head already.'

"'How did you know all that?' his father afterward asked.

"'Why, it is in my physiology at school.'"

It seems the text-books prepared by such men as Prof. Newell Martin, F.R.S., of Johns' Hopkins University, had succeeded in giving the lad some definite information which was proving useful.

"Senator," said Mrs. Hunt, "are you sorry your boy learned that at school?"

"Madam," the man replied, raising his hand, "I would not take five thousand dollars for the assurance this gives me that my boy will never be a drunkard."

Concert On The Square.

The 47th regimental band gave another complimentary concert on the market square last evening. A platform had been raised, so that the bandsmen had better accommodation than last week. Their elevation made a big improvement in the sound of their music. The square was black with music-loving citizens, who listened with much pleasure to the music the band discoursed.

What Is
Dr. Chase's
Nerve Food?

is the question on the lips of many who are hearing of the Wonderful cures brought about by this great restorative.

For a comprehensive answer to this question you must ask the scores of thousands of cured ones in Canada and the United States who have tested and proven the merits of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food — the famous blood builder and nerve restorer.

Ask the pale, weak, nervous, irritable, and despondent women who have found new health, new hope and new vitality by its use.

Ask the overworked and worn-out men, sufferers from brain fog, nervous dyspepsia, and nervous headache, who have felt new energy and vigor return to their bodies while using this famous treatment.

Ask the puny, sickly children who have been made healthy and robust by using this prince of restoratives.

Ask people of all ages how they were rescued from nervous prostration, paralysis, locomotor ataxia, epilepsy. They may tell you of doctors failing, of medicines taken in vain, but one and all point to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food as the only hope of persons with thin, watery blood and exhausted nerves.

Mrs. S. Dempsey, Albury, Ont., writes: "My little grand-daughter nine years old, was pale and weak, she had no appetite and seemed to be growing weaker. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food proved invaluable in her case, restoring health and color and making her strong and well."

Mrs. Margaret Iron, Tower Hill, N.B., writes: "My nerves were so weak I couldn't walk twice the length of the house, I couldn't work or sleep, and my hands trembled so I couldn't carry a pint of water. I thought there was no health for me, but after using five boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food my nerves are fully restored. I can walk a mile without inconvenience, and though seventy-six years old and quite feeble I do my own work and considerable sewing, knitting and reading. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food did me a world of good."

In appearance Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is an oval, chocolate-coated pill. It is easy to carry and easy to take in this condensed form it contains all of nature's most strengthening and invigorating tonics and restoratives, and for this reason it is unapproached as a blood-builder for spring.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food cures naturally and permanently by the building up process. If used regularly and persistently it cannot fail to make the blood rich and life sustaining, and to reconstruct the tissues of the body wasted by disease, overwork, or worry. Fifty cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Tait-McLaughlin.

A pretty wedding was solemnized by Rev. Fr. M. Nieumann, O.F.M., in the church of St. Boniface, Golden Gate avenue, San Francisco, Cal., on Wednesday, 15th Aug., 1900, he contracting couple being Miss Cecil McLaughlin, formerly of Centreville, Ont., and Dr. Ernest R. Tait, of Melbourne, Australia. The bride, who is a bright and clever graduate of Ville Marie convent, Montreal, Que., has developed into a semi-brunette of rare, delicate beauty, and looked strikingly handsome in a tailor-made travelling gown of castor Venetian cloth. The groom, a prosperous young physician and dental surgeon came to the coast six years ago, where he has established a good practice. The happy couple took the noon train for Del Monte, Santa Cruz and Los Angeles, and upon their return, 15th Sept., will take up their residence permanently in Oakland, where both have many warm friends.

That Pale Face.
